GLADIOLUS BULBS.

We predict that eventually 90% of all Gladiolus bulbs used for greenhouse forcing will be GROWN in IOWA.
GARDENS OF SMEDLEY, WATERLOO, IOWA.

NONE BETTER.

We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

MR. FLORIST!

These big fellows are the cheapest bulbs you can buy, running mostly from 1¾ to 2¾ inches. Nearly all of these will furnish 2 or more spikes of bloom and a corresponding increase in mature bulbs at digging time.

Onset, Mass., Nov. 23, 1919.

Willis E. Fryer, Mantorville, Minn.,

Dear Sir: Book me for 500 of the Gladiolus Mrs. W. E. Fryer under ½-in. Considering the size of the bulbs, under ½-in., it did fine with me last summer and every bulb produced a bloom. It is by far the finest red that I have yet seen. Yours truly, J. G. Burrows.

Mrs. W. E. Fryer, No. 1, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000; No. 2, $4.00 per 100, $30.00 per 1000; No. 3, $3.00 per 100, $24.00 per 1000; No. 5, $2.00 per 100, 300 for $5.00. Bulblets, $3.00 per 1000; qt. of about 4000, $10.00. Primulinus, per 100, No. 1, $5.00; No. 2, $4.00; No. 3, $3.00; No. 4, $2.25; No. 5, $1.75. This is fine for early cut flowers. Halley, No. 4, $8.00 per 1000; No. 5, $5.00 per 1000. Choice Mixed, No. 3, $6.50 per 1000; No. 4, $5.00 per 1000; No. 5, $3.00 per 1000. Bulblets, $2.50 per peck. Crackerjack, No. 3, $7.00 per 1000; No. 4, $5.00 per 1000; No. 5, $3.00 per 1000. Hohenstauffen, per 100, No. 1, $3.50; No. 2, $2.50; No. 5, $1.00. This grows a tall spike and will produce more flowers than any white I ever grew.

The largest stock of seedling Iris of my own, originating in the U. S. 5000 transplanted baby seedlings of the tall bearded Iris, and not one of this number has been selected to name. Write for new descriptive list of over 80 varieties.

VEGETABLE PLANTS

TOMATO PLANTS.
20,000 Bonny Best and J. Baer, from extra selected seeds, especially adapted for greenhouse forcing, and grown, not as surplus, but with extra care for the trade. Seeds were germinated and later transplanted in sterilized flats with soil as protection against the dreaded "wilt" disease.
Plants ready to set in beds or benches. Place your order now and be protected. Say when and where and I'll do the best I can; $1.25 per 100, $10.00 per 1000.
GRAND RAPIDS LETTUCE PLANTS.
Seeds were germinated and later transplanted in sterilized flats with soil, no disease, $2.50 per 1000.
No discount on large orders.

Roof Bar at Gutter

Note one of the features of Callahan Cut-to-Fit construction—the lap and beveled shoulder of the roof bar at the gutter, which forms a double brace. Also the extra wide drip moulding, which does not so easily fill with lint and dust.

The strength and simplicity of Callahan design will appeal to you—and lengthen the life of your greenhouse.

Keeping Costs Down

In these days of constantly rising costs, it is gratifying to know that scientific planning and modern factory equipment and efficiency are pulling together to keep down necessary investment expense for the florist.

Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses

represent the last word in economy and efficiency. They are factory made, shipped to you knocked down, and can be put together by any carpenter who can work from blueprints.

They may be any size desired, from the modest back-yard conservatory to the largest commercial plant. No matter what the size, they can be erected at the lowest possible cost for a good greenhouse.

Write today for catalogue giving all details or send us your specifications for estimate. We will also be glad to send you a booklet on Callahan Duo-Glazed Sash for your hotbeds—the worryless sash that really protects your plants.

WOOD LABELS

LABELS FOR NURSERYMEN AND FLORISTS.
Benjamin Chase Co., Derry Village, N. H.

Wapakoneta, O.—The greenhouses formerly owned by William McMurray & Son are now operated by Buthker Bros.

Amesbury, Mass.—J. Wesley Patterson receives much mail at his address, 12 Bay street, directed to J. Cattriery, though there has never been such a person at that place.

Independence, Mo.—Mrs. M. W. Moran, who grows chiefly asters, sweet peas, pansies and peonies, as well as vegetable plants, expects to enlarge her establishment this season.

Columbia, S. C.—The Rodgers Cut Flower & Plant Co. has been incorporated with a capital of $3,500. The incorporators are Francis S. Rodgers, Jr., and William G. Albrecht, both of Charleston.

Ada, Okla.—W. E. Pitt, proprietor of the Ada Greenhouses, has contracted with the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for an additional greenhouse, 27x100 feet. This is apparently a habit with Mr. Pitt, for he has added a house to his range each year for the last five years.

From Coast to Coast—

The first greenhouse manufacturing company to span the continent with offices.

The sun never sets on the AGMCO in the U. S. A. No matter where you are located, you cannot be far from an AGMCO sales office, for you will find one in Seattle, Kansas City, Pana, Ill., Chicago and New York.

What does this prove? It proves that the demand for AGMCO houses throughout the country has become so insistent that the establishment of these various offices was practically imperative.

And what does this mean to you? It means ultra-service to you; figures without delay; a salesman on the ground on short notice; and it means that the best advertising done by The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is done by the AGMCO houses scattered over the country—north, south, east and west.

This is strong food for thought, but you must digest it rapidly if you're going to get that AGMCO house this year!

AGMCO

Roof Bar at Gutter

Note one of the features of Callahan Cut-to-Fit construction—the lap and beveled shoulder of the roof bar at the gutter, which forms a double brace. Also the extra wide drip moulding, which does not so easily fill with lint and dust.

The strength and simplicity of Callahan design will appeal to you—and lengthen the life of your greenhouse.

Keeping Costs Down

In these days of constantly rising costs, it is gratifying to know that scientific planning and modern factory equipment and efficiency are pulling together to keep down necessary investment expense for the florist.

Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses

represent the last word in economy and efficiency. They are factory made, shipped to you knocked down, and can be put together by any carpenter who can work from blueprints.

They may be any size desired, from the modest back-yard conservatory to the largest commercial plant. No matter what the size, they can be erected at the lowest possible cost for a good greenhouse.

Write today for catalogue giving all details or send us your specifications for estimate. We will also be glad to send you a booklet on Callahan Duo-Glazed Sash for your hot-beds—the worryless sash that really protects your plants.

AGMCO

L. Stapp Co., of Rock Island, Illinois, orders three more All Steel Greenhouses, 34 x 300

The Stapp Company have been buying greenhouse material and building greenhouses off and on for thirty years. They used to buy materials years ago a good deal like most florists did then, the heating pipes from a local dealer, the glass through the local jobber, and the millwork from us. Then they would hire some local carpenters and after many vexatious delays and mistakes the greenhouses would finally get built after a fashion.

They do it in a different way now—they simply give us the contract complete and we turn the houses over to them ready for them to wheel the soil in the benches. Troubles and worries are over and the job is done right.

How about having us handle your job this way?

Greenhouse Builders

An Important Something About Something Else

THIS is an advertisement about an advertisement. It happens it's like this.

For years you know how we have had our weekly talks together on this inside front cover. Talks mostly about greenhouses in the West, because being published in Chicago, The Review's circulation is strongly Western.

The other day, however, it occurred to one of us, that some of you might be losing a good bet about some of the worth-while things East.

So this is just to remind you that on the outside and inside back cover of the Exchange, we have weekly talks that are frequently entirely different than those in this paper.

They are mostly about Eastern subjects.

We are this week telling the Exchange readers about The Review; and now we are telling you about the Exchange; which is kind of like making one hand wash the other. Which, by the way, is one of the best ways to wash hands.

LILIES
For Your Easter Use

Draw your Lilies from what undoubtedly is the LARGEST AND FINEST SUPPLY IN AMERICA

In figuring on the lilies you can use this Easter, consider several factors—remember the flower business is booming, that a tremendous demand is assured, at the best prices ever paid by the public, giving a chance for unusual profits for retailers who provide the stock and facilities to meet the demand. Remember, also, that Lilies will be of much better quality than last year. In 1919 all the Lilies for Easter were from bulbs that had been in cold storage a year and a half—this season fresh bulbs were again available, with the result that Amling's Lilies, forced from large size, selected bulbs, will be of old-time quality. They will sell easily and give unqualified satisfaction to your customers. We offer you any part of

100,000 CUT LILIES for EASTER

Packed in wood boxes, 100 or 200 to the box.

SELECTED GRADE Best and Longest		AVERAGE GRADE Medium Stems		SHORT GRADE Good Flowers, Short Stem
Per 100	$ 35.00	Per 100	$ 30.00	Per 100	$ 25.00
Per 1000	300.00	Per 1000	250.00	Per 1000	200.00

Bear in mind that the total number of Lily bulbs imported last fall was not over one-half, perhaps only one-third, what America received before the war. Consider how greatly demand has increased. A shortage of Lilies is certain—but you can assure your supply by ordering today.

CROTON

Leaves and Sprays

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail Florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place for three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 35 and 50 cents each. Cut leaves, $3 and $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

ADIANTUM GLORIOSA

Same as Farleyense, but as hardy as Nephrolepis.
4-inch strong plants, $60 per 100.

PTERIS AND CYRTOMIUMS

Pteris Argyrea, 4-inch, $25 per 100.
Pteris Tremula, 4-inch, $20 per 100; 6-inch, $6 per doz.
Cyrtomium Rochfordianum, 4-inch, $25 per 100.

CYCLAMENS

We are growing 100,000 plants this year and our stock was never in finer condition at this time of year. Grown from the best seed obtainable. Home-grown seed plants from the best German strain. Booking orders for May and later delivery. Suggest placing orders at once to insure prompt delivery.
2½-inch pots, equal to 3-inch stock, $20 per 100, $175 per 1000.
4-inch pots, July 1st delivery, $60 per 100, $550 per 1000.

BEGONIA MRS. PATTEN

Dark Sport of Chatelaine.

Blooms continually the entire year.
2¼-inch pots, $12 per 100, $100 per 1000.
4-inch pots, $6 per doz., $40 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per doz., $90 per 100.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases.....$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases..... 1.00 each
Small size cases..... .50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

TERMS: Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

It takes 5,000 houses to shelter the workers who make up-to-date National Cash Registers

THESE 5,000 houses are the homes of more than 25,000 people — a city in itself.

They are good homes, too, because the workers at the N. C. R. factory are intelligent, skilled mechanics who are able to demand exceptionally good living conditions.

The factory in which they work comprises 21 modern buildings, providing over 40 acres of floor space.

It has taken 35 years of the hardest kind of work to develop this tremendous organization —an organization engaged solely in the manufacture of labor-saving machines that help merchants all over the world.

GRAPPLING WITH GROWERS' NEEDS

For the permanent organization of the national growers' association, launched at the American Carnation Society's convention at Chicago, the officers seek advice and suggestions, so that their actions at New York next week will have the guidance of those who are to form its membership.

By FRED C. W. BROWN.

WE have all experienced that feeling of helplessness, of groping our way around when suddenly plunged into blank darkness, and we all have felt the keen appreciation of light when the first ray reveals our surroundings and we are once more able to control our movements intelligently, without fear of disaster.

The great octopus of the flower business, the growers' industry, with its many arms stretching out into the industrial world for sustenance, has been floundering in the dark. It is true that the individual arms, retail, wholesale, supply, nursery, bulb and others, each with its branches, are to a greater or less extent organized for their advancement, but the great life-giving body, on which all are dependent, is in poorer condition to care for its own requirements than any of its dependent children.

Organization.

An illustration should make the case clear to all of us. A few years ago, the creative imagination of an individual made our F. T. D. At its inception we thought that the few dollars a year business exchanged between one florist and another was quite considerable, but who of us, in our wildest dreams, visioned the enormous strides and possibilities of that association? Where we planted in single units, we have reaped in thousands. What was the underlying principle of that success? Organization! Organization that had as its inspiring factor necessity.

Today the great necessity of the flower growers' organizing for their own protection and the advancement of their industry is far greater than was ever the necessity for bringing into life any of the florists' societies which exist at present. We are indebted to the father of this new association, J. Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., for the opportunity given to the growers of America to bind themselves into a society to combat the wrongs and advance the interests of the only large producing element on this continent which is without real representation at critical times, such as we have had and are experiencing with the fuel administration and legislative acts, such as Quarantine 37.

The growers are today without even fairly accurate data as to the size or importance of their business. We cannot go to the "powers that be," whoever they are, and say that we are representing so many thousands of good, law-abiding citizens of this great country who have invested in their business so many millions of dollars and we want protection.

Laws are put on the statute books that are unfair to florists. Illustrations are the fireman's act in Ohio, where a licensed fireman must be employed, no matter how small your greenhouse may be, and Quarantine 37, which is considered a hardship by some and a blessing by others. You are told by bulb growers just how, when and for what price you may buy bulbs and just what your packing charges will be, but you send your stock to the wholesaler with a thank-you-for-taking-them air and no control of any kind is permitted you. Great gluts of cut flowers are faced and the loss is all borne by the grower.

Fred C. W. Brown.
Temporary President of the American Flower Growers' Association.)

Coöperation.

The growers individually are working day and night to eliminate the many insect and fungous pests in their houses, working almost blindly because, through lack of organization, the valued information that their neighbor may have is denied them. Witness the chrysanthemum midge. Had a broadcast warning been sent throughout the land of that pest, or of the rose midge or the leaf roller, and we had heeded it, think of the many thousands of dollars that would have been saved.

In the matter of publicity, there are plans, preparations and ideas aplenty. The grower should take care of his own publicity and say in what channel his money should be diverted. One of the most vital necessities of our business, the growers' business, is to establish ways and means of disposing of the so-called surplus stock. There is only one way, publicity, or advertising.

Market Product.

The growers' product is the only manufactured article (our greenhouses are manufacturing institutions) in America today for which a market has not been created by the manufacturer. Create a demand and you will receive a fair price for your product.

The retailer will benefit, but see what St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day have done for the grower. We may not be able to create other days like these, but we can create a greater and more universal demand for our goods by careful and systematic advertising. Our national publicity campaign is wonderfully successful, but it is only scratching the surface and it is practically a retail project.

There is no idea in the mind of Mr. Ammann, or of those who are assisting him in forming this organization, of displacing any of the institutions already in existence, but we leave to your own judgment the great necessity for such an institution. The unqualified support and endorsement the project has received at the hands of our greatest and smallest growers who have already been approached prove that the opportune time has arrived to launch this society. Growers, we need your moral and physical support now.

The miner, with no investments, living in the home of the company for which he toils, is organized to such an extent that he says whether the grower will have coal to keep his greenhouses warm or not, but the grower, with hundreds, or hundreds of thousands, or perhaps millions of dollars invested in his business, sits back calmly and takes what is handed him. If agreeable, he smiles. If not, he squeals. Smile or squeal, he is scarcely noticed. Let the growers consolidate their squeals so that complaints may be heard and let them consolidate their smiles so that the sunshine of their flowers may enter more homes, for where there are flowers, there is happiness.

Send Suggestions.

During the week of March 15, the committee on organization will meet in New York to perfect plans and present a constitution. Will you not help us by your suggestions or criticisms?

CHICAGO CAMPAIGN LEADERS.

Officers Elected.

After the Allied Florists' Association at its meeting March 2 had amended the by-laws so as to put the choice of officers in the directors' hands, the nine men who form the executive board met March 4 to elect officers. The following were chosen:

President—George Asmus.
Vice-president—August Poehlmann.
Treasurer—William J. Smyth.

The directors consist of these three and the following: August Lange, John Michelsen, Paul Klingsporn, Eric Johnson, Otto Amling and Peter Pearson.

Advertising Actively.

Without waiting for the collection of funds, the directors have placed liberal advertising in the leading Chicago morning paper, believing that the present abundance of stock offers a big opportunity to push sales. The idea of the two advertisements reproduced in last week's issue of The Review was presented even more forcefully in the advertisement which appeared in the Tribune March 8, which occupied the largest space yet used, one-third of a page. This advertisement is reproduced on page 23.

To carry out this publicity, the directors themselves contributed the funds without waiting for returns from the assessments levied since March 1. It is expected ere long to have the affairs of the organization on a smoothly running business basis, when even more will be accomplished.

Making Capital of Lent.

Usually Lent is accepted by the florist as a time when his business will be dull. Social activities decline and the decorations, corsages and other orders which they cause diminish with them. So the retailer waits for the forty days of dullness to end, looking forward to a bountiful Easter at their close.

Now, instead of performing this patient act of resignation, Chicago florists are making capital out of the observance which causes the dullness, namely, the Lenten spirit of sacrifice. Last week the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois published in the Tribune, March 5, the advertisement reproduced on page 24. They urged therein the observation of Lent by giving pleasure to some one else in the days when one denies one's own.

This is a novel argument to be employed in florists' advertising and a good one, for it aids the sale of flowers at a needed time—when orders are fewer and stock more abundant. Chicago florists have started out to show the trade a few things of a coöperative nature and are showing the trade some excellent newspaper advertising.

L. & B. WILL SHARE PROFITS.

Plan Adopted for 1920.

For several years Mr. Burnham, the president of the Lord & Burnham Co. and the Burnham Boiler Corporation, has had under consideration the adoption of a profit-sharing plan. During this time he has carefully considered various plans that have come to his notice.

Before leaving Irvington for the Pacific coast early in December, Mr. Burnham expressed a wish to the directors that a profit-sharing plan be formulated at the earliest possible date, to take effect January 1, 1920. Since leaving, he has been in constant communication with the officers of the above companies regarding this matter, and, after going over several plans, one was adopted at the regular monthly meetings of the board of directors March 3 and 4.

The same profit-sharing plan has been adopted by the Lord & Burnham Co. of Illinois and the Lord & Burnham Co., Ltd., of Canada.

Provisions of Plan.

This plan is being printed in pamphlet form for distribution among employees. Its provisions allow the company seven per cent annual interest on its investment before any distribution is made. Then the remainder will be divided between the company and the employees, each receiving one-half. The employees' share is to be divided according to the proportion the amount of the annual wage of the individual bears to the total amount of the company's annual pay roll.

The amount due each individual will be credited on the company's books. The employees having such credit will be entitled to common stock of the company at its book value. The company, in case it cannot furnish common stock, may pay in preferred stock or cash, as it elects. If an employee's share of profits at a year's end is not sufficient to pay for one share of stock, the amount will be carried on the company's books at four per cent until the value of one share is earned. The wages of employees are paid just as before.

APPLY FOR EXPRESS COMBINE.

Plans for Improved Service.

The American Railway Express Co. is preparing to file application with the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to continue as a combine after the test period provided under the terms of the new railroad law. The express company officials believe such action is needed to accomplish the improvement in service that its patrons expect.

It is confidently expected that the application for permission to consolidate will be granted after the Interstate Commerce Commission has had a chance to review the matter. The American Railway Express Co. as it now stands is believed to be a more efficient and stronger organization than the four companies which were combined to make it. These four concerns were: American Express Co., Wells-Fargo Express Co., Southern Express Co. and Adams Express Co. The capitalization is estimated at approximately $33,000,000.

The belief was expressed that greater efficiency in the labor personnel will soon be secured. Officials of the company are out to eliminate the wholesale pilferage which has been common during government control. Confidence was expressed that under private operation this aim can be realized.

Increased Rates Coming.

The problem of increased rates will soon be thrashed out before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Regarding the exact amount of increase which is desired in the rate scale it is stated that nothing definite can be decided upon until the position of the rail carriers has been determined by the commission. It was conceded that the increase will have to be considerable to afford the combine sufficient funds to meet expenses. The American Railway Express Co. is said to be operating at a deficit of something like $24,000,000 each year.

Officials state that increases in the rates form the only solution to the present problem. It is pointed out that during government control the railroad administration allowed three separate increases in the wage scale to express company employees. Operating expenses are reported as materially higher than those obtaining before control started. Generally speaking, the situation is not considered satisfactory, but with higher rates, the legal power to continue as a combination and success in eliminating stealing, it is hoped by the officials that ways will be found to put the American Railway Express Co. on a firmer footing and to establish service more satisfactory to shippers than that under the government regime.

"More business is being handled by express today than at any time in the history of the business," stated an executive of the company in this connection. "We calculate that at least 1,000,000 packages a day are shipped by express, and we are constantly urged to give more service than we are physically able to.

"As a single organization we have been able to standardize express systems and institute many new and more economical and efficient methods of operation. But that only half solves the problem. There must be a considerable increase in express rates in order to give the carrier a reasonable profit, so that the service may become stabilized, improved and satisfactory to the shipping public.''

STYLE WEEK IN MILWAUKEE.

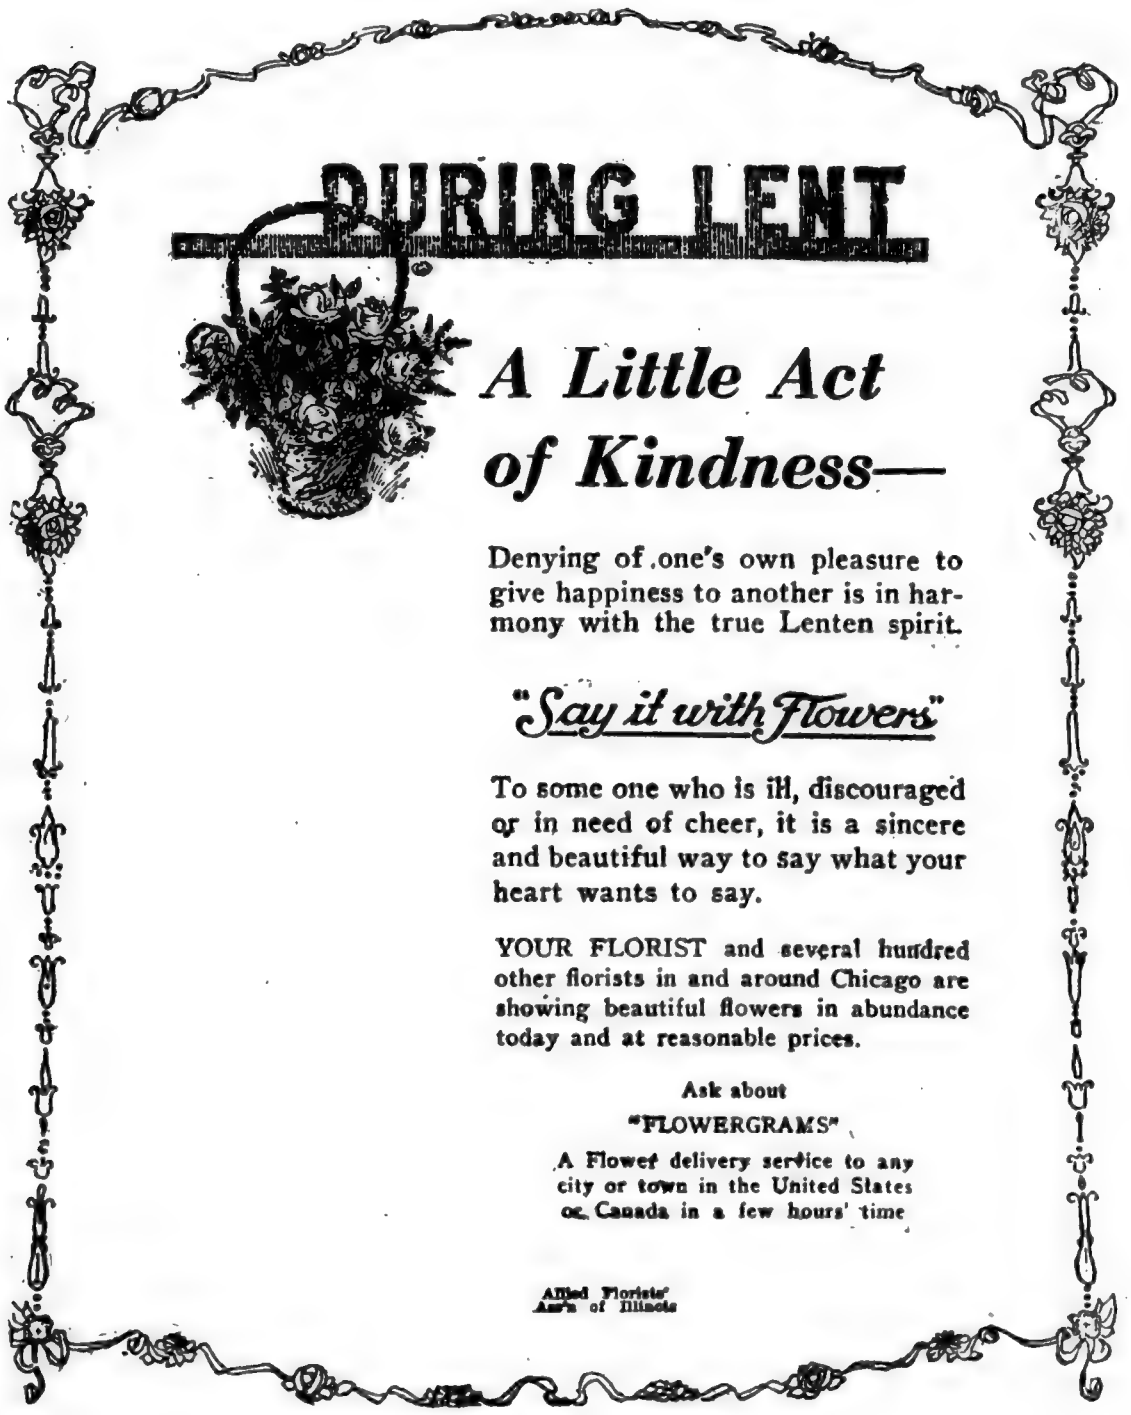
Style week is an innovation in Milwaukee that is of benefit to the trade. All merchants throughout the entire city put on their best in the way of window displays and large quantities of plants and flowers were used. Prizes were awarded for the best and most attractive displays and most of the competitors' windows used fresh plants and flowers exclusively. It was a big outlet for bulbous stock in pans and boxes and for other blooming plants. Considerable Alabama smilax and asparagus was also used. Some of the displays were a good boost for the use of flowers and plants for decorative effect. Little artificial stock was used, except by the smaller shops. August Kellner, whose specialty is decorating, did most of the work, but many of the florists had several jobs.

This style week is to be an annual event and no doubt will mean much to the trade, as it comes at a time when stock is usually plentiful.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society will be held at the Grand Central Palace, Forty-sixth street and Lexington avenue, New York, at 3 p. m., Tuesday, March 16, 1920, in connection with the seventh annual international flower show.



This will be a most notable meeting and there should be a large attendance. On this occasion the Gertude M. Hubbard gold medal will be presented to E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., for Columbia, the best rose of American origin introduced during the last five years. Dr. E. M. Mills, of Syracuse, will make the presentation. The annual election of officers will occur at this meeting, and other important business will be transacted.

Registration of New Roses.

Frederick R. M. Undritz, West New Brighton, N. Y., has requested permission of the executive committee of the American Rose Society to change the name of the variety of rose registered by him, August 23, 1917, as Frederick R. M. Undritz to General John Pershing. Inasmuch as this rose has not yet been disseminated, the executive committee voted to allow this change of name. Unless objections are received in the office of the secretary of the society within three weeks of this publication the registration will become permanent.

General John Pershing; class, hybrid Wichuraiana. Dr. W. Van Fleet x Mrs. W. J. Grant (Belle Siebrecht). Climber; foliage same as Dr. W. Van Fleet; vigorous; perfectly hardy; flower double, four inches in diameter, dark pink, center projecting, medium long, quite fragrant; bud pointed and firm; fifty-three petals, curved, stiff, center close; blooms profusely in June; may bloom later; lasting quality, on bush five or six days.

SPOTS ON RUBBER PLANTS.

I am sending you some leaves from a rubber plant and should like to know what disease is affecting it and what the cure for it is? The brown spots develop fairly quickly and when they get about the size of those on the sample leaves, or a little larger, the leaves fall off. The plant which is just now affected in this way is a fair-sized tree, being about 15 years old. It is in a good-sized pot and apparently has plenty of root room.

R. V. B.—N. Mex.

The leaves have every indication of being frozen. Possibly windows or doors have been left open long enough to affect the plant. If you are positive that this is not the trouble, it must be a fungoid affection and I suggest spraying the plant thoroughly with Bordeaux mixture or some other good fungicide. This should be done two or three times at intervals of a week.

C. W.

NEW OR OLD GROWTH?

Can you tell me what is the trouble affecting the vincas which we are sending you? K. & S.—Wis.

The vinca leaves arrived badly dried up, so that it was impossible to tell much about what was affecting them. Neither could I tell whether the leaves were taken from the vines made in the field before they were lifted last fall or whether they came from the new growth made in the greenhouse. Field-grown plants of vincas lifted from the field in the fall of the year and taken into the greenhouse will lose considerable of the foliage from the older vines during the winter time, especially when they are set away in a dark, damp and cold part of the house. It is not so important to consider the older vines of the plants as it is the new growths they are making at this time. If the latter are the ones that are affected, then there is some serious trouble affecting the plants which I am unable to determine by the condition of the leaves received. If the leaves were taken from the older vines of the plants and the new growths are not affected, then I would advise cutting off those that are affected to give the younger ones a chance. Also make sure the plants are not being starved in the pots and in need of repotting. M. P.

ROSES FOR CUT FLOWERS

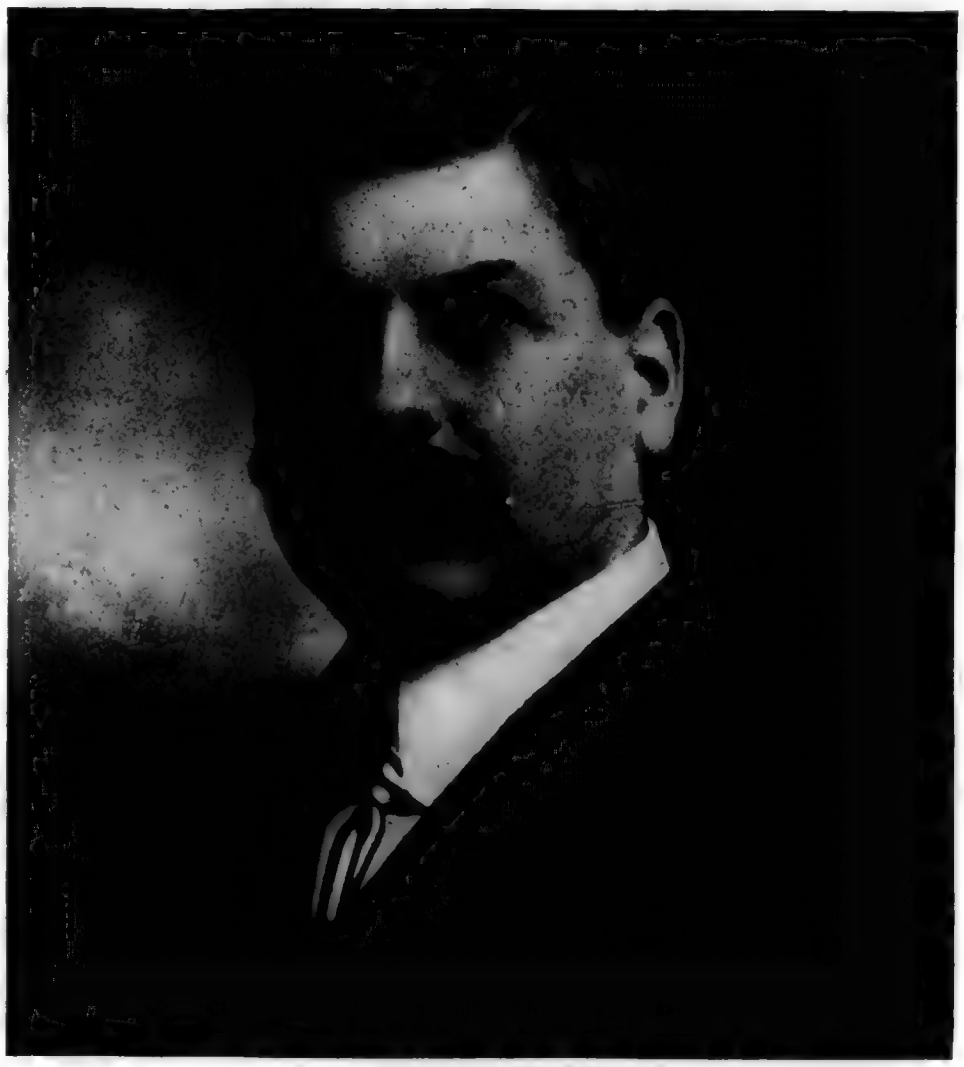
The address of C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., on "The Development of Rose Growing from a Cut Flower Standpoint," delivered before the New York Florists' Club March 8.

IT IS not my purpose to revive ancient history when discussing rose growing from a cut flower standpoint. The live business man is naturally more interested in the varieties that are coming than in "water that has already passed under the bridge," and yet a brief review of the development of the varieties may be of interest. My commercial experience with rose growing extends back only some twenty-five years, at which time I recall that Bride, Bridesmaid and American Beauty were by far the most grown of any roses. Yellow was represented by Perle des Jardins and, to a much less extent, by its two sports, Sunrise and Sunset.

In the red section, Meteor was reigning supreme; Liberty was the first serious rival with which Meteor had to contend. Liberty did not require such an intense heat as Meteor and gave a much longer stem and eventually crowded it out, to be in turn supplanted by Richmond, the E. G. Hill Co. introduction of 1904. Richmond proved much more tractable and more free-blooming than Liberty, which, therefore, finally struck its flag in favor of Richmond. Hadley, Milady, Hoosier Beauty and Francis Scott Key followed Richmond in rapid succession, with the odds all in favor of Hadley, though men in some sections of the country have made considerable money growing Milady, and Hoosier Beauty, with its delightful fragrance, is still quite a favorite in some markets. The year 1920 ushers in the new red Crusader and, coming as it does from one of our most conservative growers, Mr. Montgomery, who gave us Hadley, it seems a safe bet that Crusader will, in the language of the race track, "trot a good heat."

Pink Roses.

In pink roses, my first recollection is a house of Bridesmaid, which, if I recall correctly, I saw in the winter of 1895 in magnificent condition. The memory of that house of roses has never left me and Bridesmaid, if we could get it today as good in color and as productive and free from mildew as it was then, would still be one of our finest pink roses. Killarney came along and was never formally introduced to the American public. Imported by several growers, introduced once, if I recall correctly, by Siebrecht as Mrs. Westinghouse and known under various other names, it finally came into its own and was for several years one of our most popular and best paying roses.



Killarney was really the first rose that gave definite results; that is to say, it could be pinched at a given date and the crop brought in with the utmost regularity at any desired time. Killarney gave us successively White Killarney, Double White Killarney, Killarney Queen and Killarney Brilliant, a magnificent record, and many growers still have a soft spot in their hearts for the Killarneys, even though they have to give way to the newer aspirants for popularity. Mrs. Jardine flitted across the scene in 1910, but its period was short.

John Cook's Seedlings.

Radiance, also, was somewhat of a factor, but was quickly dropped, save by a few of the private growers who liked its free-growing propensities and freedom from mildew. Radiance and its relative, My Maryland, were both American seedlings of John Cook's, of Baltimore, and neither of them was ushered into the arena with the beating of drums or a brass band accompaniment; still they played a useful part in progress. My Maryland is still grown to some extent in certain sections of the country. Lady Alice Stanley was imported and grown by several growers about this same time, but Stanley, unfortunately, is inclined to be weak in the neck and not so quick on its "pins" as some of the other roses; therefore it did not last long.

In 1913 there was great competition between Mrs. George Shawyer and Mrs. Charles Russell. Shawyer in some sections becomes badly affected with mildew, but the fact remains that for form and finish a perfect bloom of Shawyer today cannot be beaten in the market. Russell did not prove so tractable and it took the growers a year or two to size up this newcomer; when they did, Russell proved itself a money-maker, since, when properly handled and cut at the right time, it is a marvelous keeper and shipper. Today Russell has many friends. Ophelia, which was properly introduced in 1914, jumped into instant popularity. It is a lovely pink color and its delicate shading rendered it immensely popular, as it could be used as a light rose in funeral decorations. If a lady wanted a pink rose and there was nothing else in the store, Ophelia was sent and it could be made to cover yellow roses in cases of necessity. In many cases it was, and still is, without a rival. I might mention also Jonkheer J. L. Mock, which, however, did not get any especially popular introduction and, while grown well today in some places, it can hardly be classed as a rose for the average grower.

The year 1918 was responsible for the introduction of Columbia, which the C. H. Totty Co. sent out in conjunction with the E. G. Hill Co. Columbia, like every other new introduction, was severely criticised, some growers contending that all the buds were of poor shape and that the rose was coarse, common and everything else. At the present time Columbia stands at the top of the list with the public, and with the grower also, on account of its lovely color and freedom of growth. Where the grower knows enough to let Columbia stay on the plant until the bud has assumed a definite character, there is little trouble about bad buds. Columbia also is spot-proof and the man who is not growing this variety should put himself down as a "back number."

Charles H. Totty.

Premier.

In 1919 we introduced Hill's Premier, also in conjunction with that firm, and this is still passing through its test period. Some growers who bought it last year treated it a little too well and got a bad dose of spot in consequence. When growers get to know its little peculiarities as well as they now know Columbia, Premier is going to be a wonderful rose in the dark pink class. Personally, I do not consider that it conflicts with Columbia, as it is so different in color. It will most certainly bury Mrs. Russell, as it is much more tractable in habit and will easily produce four crops to Russell's three. The fragrance of Premier is wonderfully fine and any rose that lacks this most desirable attribute cannot long be a favorite of rose lovers.

In 1920 we have Frank H. Dunlop, Madame Butterfly and Pilgrim as candidates for popularity and we may safely defer judgment on these varieties until they have been through the grilling which the different growers will put them through before giving them final approval. Butterfly does not differ radically from Ophelia, saving that it is a much freer grower and of better color.

Yellow Roses.

Yellow roses were represented for years by Perle des Jardins and its two sports, Sunrise and Sunset. None of these would take the graft, as there seemed to be no congeniality between this type and the Manetti stock. When Mrs. Ward was introduced, that grafted so well that it was hailed with joy and Ward soon became a good money-maker and still is in many places. Melody was introduced in 1910, but did not meet with popular favor, since Lady Hillingdon, introduced in 1911, quickly squelched its aspirations. Hillingdon, however, has a tendency to throw considerable blind wood, though it is today unapproached in its lovely color.

With the advent of Sunburst in 1912, yellow roses began to get popular. Sunburst, like the old Perle des Jardins, evinced a disinclination to graft and we had lots of trouble before we found this out; practically all the Sunburst grown today is own-root stock. Tipperary flitted across the scene in 1915 and Primerose in 1916, but neither one left any indelible impression. In 1917 came Madame Collette Martinette, which has the distinction of being the yellowest rose, but also has an unconquerable aversion to the Manetti stock. Martinette is "snub-nosed" and therefore does not meet with popular approval, at least not so much as Sunburst and Hillingdon. We could use nicely today a deep yellow rose of the freedom, size and finish of Columbia.

The history of white roses is comparatively short. Older growers will remember the varieties Cornelia Koch and Niphetos. The latter is one of the purest and most beautiful roses ever introduced, but it had a regrettable weakness in the stem; were it not for this handicap, it would be largely grown today for corsage work, as it is in Europe. Bride was a sport of the old Catherine Mermet and for years was unapproachable in white roses. The sentiment of the name and the beauty of the rose itself combined to make it popular. For years a bride's bouquet was not truly a bride's bouquet unless made with Bride roses and nothing except approaching age and infirmity with its consequent crop reduction was responsible for the passing of the Bride rose. Kaiserin had its day, but was grown much more for summer work than winter, because it proved "bull-headed" for winter conditions. Since then, White Killarney and Double White Killarney have been the only white roses grown for the market and, as in the case of the yellow, we are anxiously waiting for a first-class white. Mrs. John Cook, introduced in 1920, we understand is not an especially good white in color, but we hear great reports of a new seedling coming out of the west, which will make its debut in a year or two.

Such then, briefly, is the development from a cut flower standpoint of all the principal varieties of rose up to the present day. Many other sorts were presented, but they proved hardly important enough to mention in a passing review such as this.

Popularity and Efficiency.

It depends greatly on the retailer whether a new rose becomes popular with the public. Another important thing is the proper naming of a new rose. Roses with names that stick to the memory or are easily remembered, such as Bride, Bridesmaid, Killarney, Columbia, Sunburst, etc., and that are euphonious, often perhaps sentimental, are the kinds that sell best. Shakespeare is credited with saying, "A rose by any other name would smell as sweet," but any retailer will tell you that, however it may smell, it will not sell as well as one with an easily remembered name.

Rose growing as a business, in common with all other businesses, has progressed tremendously during the last twenty-five years, but the advent of the efficiency expert has taken away considerable glamour which the old-time grower threw around his roses. If a grower fancied a certain rose himself, he would not discard it even though the market did not have much call for it. Present-day efficiency methods keep track of each foot of bench space devoted to growing each variety. The cut from each bench is recorded, also the price the flowers bring, and at the end of every season the returns are totaled and show which kinds are the "sheep" and which kinds are the "goats." Then the variety that makes the poorest showing is thrown into the discard. In few places do we see nonpaying kinds carried over simply because the grower himself admired them. It is sometimes a matter of regret to older growers to see this and yet nothing can be done to remedy it. Every line of business shows it. I read of an efficiency expert the other day who was trying to produce a breed of roosters that would lay eggs with the hens, thus trebling the quantity of eggs he was going to get from a given flock.

American Beauty.

Modern efficiency is responsible for the limited growing nowadays of a rose which we have not yet mentioned, but which is entitled to a chapter by itself. This is the American Beauty. This variety has been grown for years, but naturally it does not have the vigor it once had and therefore it does not produce the quantity of flowers it once did. After thirty years, the public has turned from it to the newer and better exploited varieties and, from my knowledge of the quantity of Beauties grown now, it is safe to say that the day of the American Beauty is past.

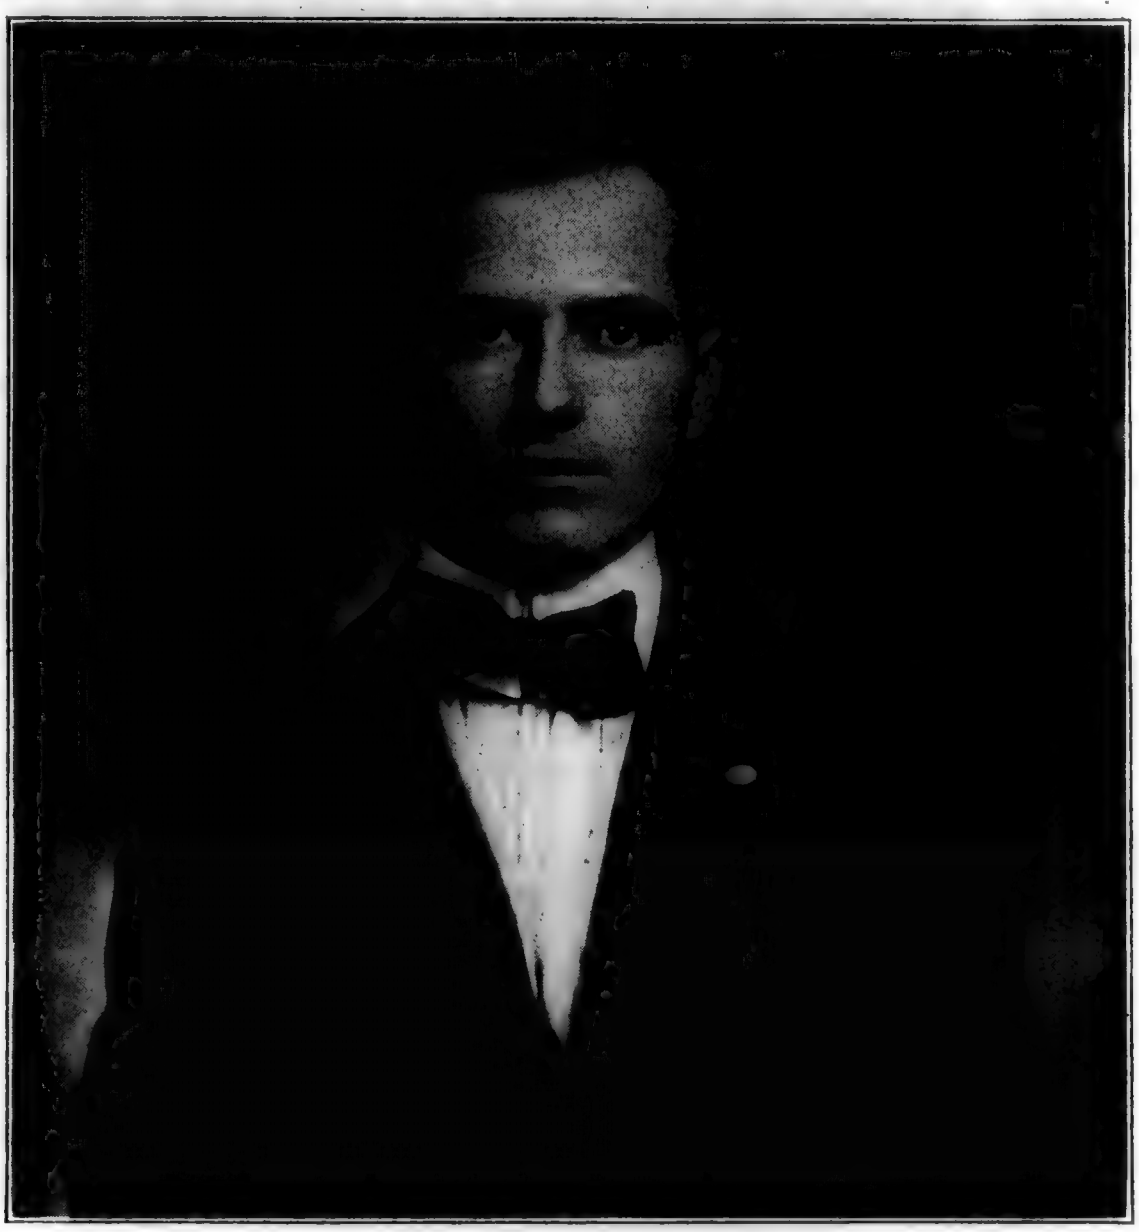
There is no doubt that the introductions of recent years have done much to keep the rose before the public. Pitiless publicity is the only way to encourage any desired object. We can remember years ago the boom that was created when Carnation Lawson was purchased from Peter Fisher by Thomas Lawson for a large price in order that he might name it after his wife, Mrs. Thomas Lawson. The advertising carnations received at that time lasted for years, while roses just happened to run along more or less, with the varieties Bride, Bridesmaid and American Beauty suffering from lack of publicity to sell them. Now, owing to advertising, we have more varieties and, we may safely say, better varieties and are enjoying the topmost wave of popularity with the American public, while carnations are suffering for lack of buyers, though of course the carnation can hardly be called a serious competitor of the rose when one is judging the likes and dislikes of the public.

Long Stems.

Another phase in the development of roses has been the craze for long stems, which is the wonder and despair of other countries. This, of course, started with the American Beauty producing stems five or six feet long and it was found that by pinching tea roses the length of the stem could be doubled and tripled. The grower shipping his roses in a cigar-box quickly found himself outdistanced. It would seem at this time that the desire for the long stem has reached its limit, since last winter flowers that had medium-length stems were the first ones sold and the long-stemmed stock in many cases was disposed of only when the retailer found no short-stemmed stock available. While this was of course largely a question of price, I think the growers from now on will do little pinching unless they want to bring the crop in at some desired period. In this way they will be liable to make more money than by growing to make all the blooms special.

To sum up the situation, then, a man who grows good stock, grades his roses properly and places them in the market in the best possible condition, may feel reasonably assured of a good return for his trouble.

Roses have always been the queen of flowers and, in my opinion, will always remain so.



SPECIAL OFFERS.

Long ago the department stores, whose extensive advertising has necessitated their study of securing the best results, realized the value of special offers. There was found to be a decided difference between the advertising of a certain line of merchandise and the offer of a particular article in that line. Between the two presentations there is as much difference as there is between the question, "Do you like fruit?" and the query, "Will you have an apple?" Undivided appeal, necessitating, not selection from a number of items, but simply the answer, "Yes," or "No," makes the chances for a favorable response much greater. Attention is concentrated on a single item and the stimulus to the possible buyer is strengthened.

The application of this principle of advertising is not easy in all lines of business. Occasionally it can be applied with success by the florist, particularly at a time when stock is plentiful and the retailer is certain of a large supply at reasonable figures. Dollar boxes were formerly an illustration of this principle. Violets are often used by city florists. Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, last week used tulip plants, which they were able to offer at a price which, compared with previous weeks' flower prices, was attractive to the public. There was a notable directness, also, about Grimm & Gorly's advertisement for this sale, which is reproduced on page 26.

The directness is carried out in the final line, characteristic of the Grimm & Gorly style, "Follow that impulse—Phone today." The advertisement is constructed to make favorable response as easy as possible and to minimize contrary suggestion.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

J. HARPER HETHERINGTON.

FOR the coming year the Florists' Club of Washington has selected as its president J. Harper Hetherington, manager of the Washington Floral Co. Though one of the youngest, he has been one of the most prominent members of the club, particularly in the last year, having aided materially in the success of Washington's "Say It with Flowers" week. Mr. Hetherington was born in Philadelphia thirty-one years ago. He is the son of the late Joseph H. Hetherington, who served more than thirty years in the employ of the Robert Craig Co. there. While going to school he worked in the Craig greenhouses during his spare time and at the age of 15 he was put on the regular payroll. About four years later he went to work in the Century Flower Shop, of H. H. Battles, Philadelphia, remaining there about four years. Then he went to Washington, securing employment with Fred H. Kramer, and eighteen months later joined the Washington Floral Co., of which he has been manager for the last five years.

ORCHIDS

RAISING ORCHIDS FROM SEED.

In Infancy in America.

The restriction recently placed by the Federal Horticultural Board on the importation of orchids has given the orchid grower an extremely difficult problem to solve, especially the florist who has depended absolutely upon importations, states the Missouri Botanical Garden Bulletin. Orchid raising is in its infancy in this country, the American hybrids possibly aggregating not more than one per cent of those tabulated in the orchid stud book. In European countries hybrids have been raised for years in the various private collections, particularly in England and Belgium. During the war the finest collections of the latter, however, were lost.

In recent years the florist has sold cattleyas at almost the same price as roses and commoner flowers, and considerable experience has been required to place the coveted flower within this reach. It is generally conceded that the cattleyas of the labiata type deteriorate under artificial cultivation, and periodical importations from the tropics, by the thousands of cases, have been necessary to maintain the floral supply. If the future supply will all have to be raised from the almost microscopic seeds the minimum period of five years will be necessary, and the orchid flower will again be the choice rarity of the millionaire.

Requires Long Period.

The germination of the seeds depends upon the action of a symbiotic mycorrhizal root fungus, without which failure is certain. During the entire period from pollination to the flowering stage the plants demand constant attention. Eight to ten months is necessary from the pollination of the flower to the ripening of the seed pod and at least five years from pollination to production of flowers. Thus, while the orchid hybridist is waiting for his seeds to develop, other hybridists experimenting with sweet peas, carnations, water lilies, etc., have succeeded in raising their plants to the coveted flowering stage. Few florists will therefore undertake to raise the trade cattleyas from seed.

Small Opportunity for Florist.

Insects upon imported orchid plants, according to our observations covering a number of years, are extremely rare. In fact, during the last fourteen years, only two shipments were infested with borers. These are commonly referred to as orchid fly and the dendrobium beetle, and their extermination, according to our experiments, was a simple matter. In the early stage the presence of the larvæ is indicated by an abnormal swelling of the young growth from strap-shaped to pear-shaped. Orchids are generally imported to a permanent destination, unlike roses, carnations, etc., which are annually vegetated to be shipped to all parts of the country, and it is therefore policy for the florist to keep his plants under strict observation for depredating insects.

Unless the government order is rescinded, the florist will have to turn from the showy epiphytic types to the terrestrial or semi-terrestrial lady's-slippers. Raising even this variety from seed would not be profitable. The present stock of orchids in ths country may be rapidly increased, however, by the annual division of the vegetative growths which readily adapt themselves to this medium of propagation. In the western states it is essential to divide the parent plants periodically to increase flower production.

BIG SHOW AT BOSTON.

An unusual number of rare orchids will be exhibited at the orchid show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, at Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24 to 28. Applications for space will exceed the capacity of the exhibition halls. More than $300,000 worth of orchids, it is estimated, will be shown.

Albert C. Burrage, who has the largest private collection of orchids in this country, will make an exhibit from his twenty or more greenhouses at Orchidvale, near Beverly Farms, which will completely fill the large lecture hall. The hall will be arranged with trees, palms and other tropical vegetation, with the orchids growing on them as they do in their native haunts. Although made to appear like a section of the tropical jungle, the various plants will be displayed to show each one to the best advantage. Orchid growers of Boston, western Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia will exhibit at the coming show.

Assistant Director E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, announces that that institution will make an exhibit of some 130 Japanese azaleas which have never before been shown in this country. These plants were secured from Japan and are now being prepared in the famous Sargent greenhouses at Brookline so that they will be in flower at the time of the exhibition. There will also be large exhibits of other plants, but the orchids will be the main feature of the show, more than $3,500, in addition to gold, silver and bronze medals, having been allotted for prizes for this class of plants and flowers alone.

ORCHIDISTS TO ORGANIZE.

A meeting will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Thursday evening, March 25, at 7:30 o'clock to discuss the desirability of forming a national orchid society for America. This date is the second day of the great orchid show to be held there and all orchid lovers are cordially invited to attend. With so many growers and fanciers visiting Boston's big show, it is believed to be an opportune time to start such a society.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Whatever the message,
Where'er it be sent,
If courtesy, condolence,
Or welcome is meant,
Say It with Flowers!"

"Exactly," observed Henry Eberhardt, of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., "and now that old Sol is beaming forth again, we shall be able to say the message more easily. What is most surprising is the philosophy of our patrons under the recent stress. It affords every reason to anticipate a banner Easter business."

* * * *

Frend Goldring, of Slingerlands, N. Y., is one of the growers upon whom the Albany trade relies to help out at Easter. A fine crop of lilies, hydrangeas and roses was noted.

* * * *

W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y., is another successful grower. Roses, hydrangeas and cytisus are among the principal items that are in prime shape for Easter.

F. A. Danker, of Albany, N. Y., reports big business and a fine assortment of stock for Easter trade.

* * * *

Sambrook Bros., of Troy, N. Y., note the fact that with Easter so near, it will be a question of sun heat for much flowering stock, although the long days will help greatly. From inquiries and orders booked, a record-breaking Easter business is looked for.

* * * *

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., is one of the unfortunate victims of the recent storm. While the loss of glass was not heavy, yet since the snow is piled up level with the top of the smokestack, necessitating tunneling into the greenhouses, the possibility of a heavy rain or sudden thaw is viewed with concern. "Just the same, we are pushing ahead with spring stock, believing the demand will be equal to, if not beyond, that of last season," observed the philosophic grower. The geranium is, as usual, the big leader at this establishment.

CLUB MEETINGS

STORM CUTS CHICAGO MEETING.

Flowers That Dye in the Spring.

At the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the Hotel Randolph Thursday evening, March 4, President Waters did not paint the lily, but he dyed the tulip, likewise the carnation and calla. Before the meeting opened, he dissolved the dyes and put them in vases containing those flowers, with some of the carnations stuck in calla stems as an experiment. Then the progress of the colors up into the blooms was timed, the tulips requiring about thirty minutes and proving most responsive. The chief color was, of course, St. Patrick's.

In the latter part of the evening, President Waters told how the possibility of dyeing flowers in this way was thought to have been discovered about twenty-five years ago by a young woman who accidentally stuck a carnation into the inkwell and shortly found a new variety, how a Boston florist had brought out green carnations and how he himself had carried still further the work of finding what dyes would be drawn up by the flowers and what would not.

More Members.

The club's meeting, however, drew color from other things than dyes and, while the evening's storm made the attendance a highly select one, it was to be regretted that not more were present.

Five were elected to membership and twelve names were proposed. The new members are: C. A. Wrigley, 130 North Wells street; Albert Koehler, 172 North Wabash avenue; H. W. Miller, 324 West North avenue; Vincent Neil, 172 North Wabash avenue, and Herbert Stone, 4011 Milwaukee avenue. The names proposed were as follows: Charles S. McCauley, Geneva, Ill.; W. Langhout, 172 North Wabash avenue; Lorenz P. Geiger, 4905 Quincy street; Edward Clody, 3912 North Clark street; George Wienhoeber, 41 South Wabash avenue; A. Hall, 4700 Sheridan road; H. E. Bruns, 3040 West Madison street; Fred Stielow, Niles Center, Ill.; C. Clemensen, 7801 Exchange avenue; Nick Damm, Jr., Morton Grove; James Paul, 1112 Lawrence avenue, and Ernst Weiss, Elmhurst.

A Good Time Coming.

At the request of Guy French, chairman of the good of the club committee, the members discussed the question of having a ladies' night and entertainment. All were in favor of it and the opinions expressed were concerned with such details as the time and the method of financing, with the trend of sentiment toward holding it in May and having it self-supporting. The matter was left in the hands of the committee. There was also talk of a picnic and several members testified sadly to their memories of the glorious days gone by; Milwaukee was mentioned with distinct longing.

As a result of the report of the garden committee, the club appropriated $100 for its use. James Morton, chairman of the committee, said that it wished to distribute, with the compliments of the club, copies of two pamphlets on flower and vegetable gardening to more than 1,200 persons whom it had listed from the time of war-gardening as interested in the garden movement. The chairman also suggested that the club offer premiums for amateurs at one or two fall garden shows. It was decided that the committee could attend to that matter and that it might be preferable to offer the premiums at the show of some garden society rather than at a show held by a seed store. Chairman Morton has selected as his coworkers on the committee: Ed Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store; Ralph B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co.; John Degnan, of A. Henderson & Co., and Everette R. Peacock, of the Everette R. Peacock Co.

Tragic Transits.

In addition to the flowers which President Waters used as colored illustrations of his remarks, there were exhibited several vases of carnations, seedlings of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., which had requested that the club score the seedlings. But unfortunately the blooms had been damaged in transit and, at the suggestion of C. W. Johnson, it was decided that justice could hardly be done the flowers, which Guy French had seen growing in Nashville and considered distinctly meritorious, by scoring these particular specimens. It was hoped that Mr. Joy would send another exhibit of these carnations. L. F. Kirchner, of Defiance, O., had sent an exhibit of the salmon-pink sport of Enchantress Supreme, which, however, arrived in such condition that it did not seem fair to show them.

Introducing the A. F. G. A.

The storm-caused absence of Vice-president Pyfer and of Joseph Kohout, president of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, was greatly regretted. In Mr. Kohout's absence, Secretary Lautenschlager outlined the development of what is to be known as the American Flower Growers' Association, which was recently launched in Chicago. He showed how the relation between production and publicity, through the need of disposing of what was produced at the best possible prices, would make this new organization a particularly energetic and powerful supporter of the national publicity campaign. The growers will work through this association as the retailers have been working through the F. T. D.

In giving his financial report, the secretary said that the total receipts of the evening were $434.51, as compared with $280 at the last meeting. Of the $434.51, $187.51 was the refund from the convention committee. He said that the back dues now totaled $395, but that that was a reduction, since January 1, of $150.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

Discuss Show Arrangements.

The regular monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held at the club's rooms in the Engineering Societies' building Monday evening, March 8, with a large attendance of members. President A. M. Henshaw occupied the chair, and the proceedings lasted until a late hour.

Charles H. Totty, for the flower show committee, reported that the final meeting of the committee had been held that afternoon and arrangements for the show were found to be completed. There was no reason, he said, to expect anything but a most successful exhibition. A. L. Miller announced that Governor Smith, Mrs. Smith and the official staff would pay a visit to the show on the afternoon of March 17. Manager Herrington reported that exhibits sufficient to fill entirely the two floors of the Grand Central Palace had been assured. If an entry for a large group or garden were now to come in unexpectedly he would be at a loss to determine where it could go. Three rose gardens, a display of acacias of 500 square feet, rock gardens, borders, groups and plenty of miscellaneous exhibits would form a material part of the exhibition. One exhibitor alone had made fifty or more entries, from large groups all down the line. Secretary Young reported that more trade space had been reserved than had been the case at any flower show ever held in the country, altogether about $16,000 worth. In addition, over $4,600 worth of space in the official program had been sold. The ladies in charge of the tea garden were working energetically and were planning some elaborate features, among them a grand ball for the Navy Club Friday evening, March 19, which would make for good publicity.

The Annual Dinner.

Roman J. Irwin, chairman of the annual dinner committee, reported arrangements for the dinner at the Hotel Biltmore on the evening of March 17 as completed. Many tables had been reserved for parties, and members desiring individual seats, he said, had better put in their reservations promptly, as there was a possibility of the limit of accommodations being speedily reached. Reservations for about sixty seats were made that evening, which carried the committee over the guarantee mark. The price of tickets, $5 each, he pointed out, covered only the actual cost of the menu furnished, so members would receive value greatly in excess of their payment. Three hundred persons, at the lowest estimate, would, he said, be in attendance at the dinner.

The secretary announced that the demand for trade tickets from members was not so active as it might be. President Henshaw, therefore, started a drive among those present, which resulted in the sale of about 1,600 tickets.

The matter of holding a "Say It with Flowers" week during the flower show was discussed, but after considerable discussion the project was tabled until next fall.

New Members.

The following were elected to membership in the club: C. B. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.; A. F. Kohlmann, Tompkinsville, N. Y.; Samuel Salzburg, New York city; Anton Ruzicka, Chatham, N. J.; Richard Gerling, Irvington, N. J.; A. M. Campbell, Philadelphia, Pa.; L. Lowenthal, New York city; Charles Moles, New York city.

The following were nominated for election at the next meeting: John N. Champion, New Haven, Conn.; Daniel A. Laird, 3014 Fulton street, Brooklyn, N. Y.; K. H. Leevat, 32 Broadway, New York; Herrman Berkowitz, 2188 Broadway, New York; J. Max Nitzschke, 2188 Broadway, New York; Harry M. Cooke, Plattsburg, N. Y.; Fred A. Heffner, 914 Washington street, Hoboken, N. J.; Michael J. Watson, 43 Barclay street, New York; Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y.; A. H. Brown, Greenwich, Conn.; H. Bergman, Far Rockaway, N. Y.; S. A. Dawson, Grand Central Palace, New York.

Messrs. Salzburg, Lowenthal and Ruzicka, newly elected members, were present and were introduced to the meeting.

Talks and Reports.

Charles H. Totty read an excellent paper on "The Development of Rose Growing from a Cut Flower Standpoint," and was given a rising vote of thanks.

Anton Schultheis, one of the club's delegates to the recent meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Clubs and Societies, reported action taken at that meeting and introduced the following resolution, which was passed unanimously and copies of which were ordered to be sent to the finance committee and the committee on appropriations of the New York state assembly:

"Resolved, That this club urges the finance committee at Albany to report favorably on the funds demanded to create additional greenhouses and buildings to properly take care of the different new matters coming up continually in the line of agriculture, floriculture and horticulture as recommended by and adopted by the conference of farmers and horticulturists, florists, etc., at Ithaca, N. Y., December 5, 1919."

Arthur Herrington, as chairman of the essay and lecture committee, announced that the lecturer at the next meeting would be J. P. Mossman, of Hackensack, N. J., and his subject, "Raising Orchids from Seed." At the May meeting Mr. Herrington himself will be lecturer, and his subject, "The Iris," with lantern illustrations. For the June meeting he hoped to secure a lecture by J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, covering his recent trip to the Pacific islands and Australia.

H. B. May, as chairman of the exhibition committee, announced that the committee hoped to stage at the next meeting some splendid exhibits of orchids and of bulbous flowers.

C. Lowther, for the transportation committee, reported that his committee had for presentation an arrangement for travel to the Cleveland convention, Monday, August 16, by way of the day boat to Albany and thence by train to Cleveland. Anyone wishing to leave in the evening by train from New York could join the party at Albany. Another plan was to proceed by rail to Buffalo, thence by boat to Cleveland. Action in the matter was deferred.

A vote of thanks was passed to the house and entertainment committee for the enjoyable spread served in the club's refectory that evening.

Exhibits and Awards.

The following awards were made to the exhibits shown:

Chas. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J.—Two vases of the new rose, Frank W. Dunlop; vote of thanks.

H. Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y.—Vase of sweet peas, sport of Rose Queen; scored 92 points; preliminary certificate.

John Canning, superintendent for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y.—Vase of Leptosyne maritima; certificate of merit.

H. M. Robinson & Co., New York.—Vase of colored freesias; highly commended.

E. Fardel, Great Neck, L. I., N. Y.—Vase of yellow freesias; certificate of merit.

A. H. Brown, Greenwich, Conn.—Vase of seedling carnations; vote of thanks. The committee would like to see it again.

A. Demeusy, Brooklyn, N. Y.—Vase of carnations, sport of Enchantress; scored 86 points; preliminary certificate.

Traendly & Schenck, Rowayton, Conn.—Vase of new rose, No. 33, dark pink sport of Ophelia; scored 86 points; preliminary certificate.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.—Vase of new deep pink carnation, Hope Henshaw; scored 88 points; preliminary certificate.

H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J.—Two vases Malmaison carnations; vote of thanks.

TATE'S TIPS

NEW METHODS OF BUILDING.

Cut Cost of Production.

In these days of reconstruction, the florists' business is entering upon a new era. We hear of large corporations making large investments in greenhouse ranges for the purpose of growing plants and cut flowers. Anyone who is watching the signs of the times will realize that this means an entire change in the methods of production. By this I mean that every item in the cost of production will be studied by efficiency experts and both plants and cut flowers will be produced and put on the market and sold at a minimum cost.

Take any of these corporations that are at the present time making these large investments. They have no idea that the present high prices are going to continue indefinitely, but they do see that with modern ranges and efficient methods, the cost of production can be cut in proportion to the reduction in prices that is bound to come. It is a well known fact that in spite of the present high cost of building material, the greenhouse construction manufacturers have more orders booked than was ever known in their history before. If all of this means anything, it means that the old slipshod methods that many of us are so familiar with will be a thing of the past.

Looking Backward.

There is a generation of men in the florists' business, who, like myself, can remember the time when our fathers were laying the foundation of the business as it exists today. These men will remember the makeshift houses and the waste which was connected with them. For instance, if a new house was to be erected, the services of the village carpenter were secured and all of the available men on the place were his helpers. This work was always done in the summer at the expense of the growing crops, but fall would come and the new house would be under way to fulfill the object for which it was erected. Stop and consider the amount of waste connected with such a house. In most cases, the sides were 1-inch thick 12-inch boards; these were lined with felt paper. There was twice as much wood in the roof as there should have been, defeating the primary idea of a good greenhouse, namely, to get every ray of sunlight possible. The ventilators were all that the name implies, for in most cases they ventilated in cold weather as well as in warm weather, but in those days coal was cheap and the florist did not mind contributing some of his fuel to heat the great outdoors. In a house 100 feet long, the difference in the thermometer from the end where the fire was to the smokestack was anywhere from 20 to 30 degrees.

There is many a man still in business who, as he reads this, will recall many a stormy night when he was afraid to go to bed, when he went from one house to another with his lantern all through the night and, if it was windy, he would often have to tie the roof down with ropes, or if the snow was heavy, get up in the gutters and shovel it out. Those are only a few of the obstacles we had to contend with. We never stopped to think of the repairs we were obliged to make each fall. If a house was becoming a little old, it would mean rebuilding. Yet in such houses good stock was produced and money was made, because the margins were large and everything that went into the cost of production was cheap. But in those days there were men who were wise beyond their years, men who realized all of this waste, and they studied the problem. From time to time improvements were made and today we have firms in this country who have reduced the construction of greenhouses to a science. These men know what kind of house you need in a certain location better than you know, because while you have been busy with the production of flowers, they have been just as busy, and in a great number of cases have gone away ahead of you, in the subject of durable and economic houses. All that they know they have learned from the florist.

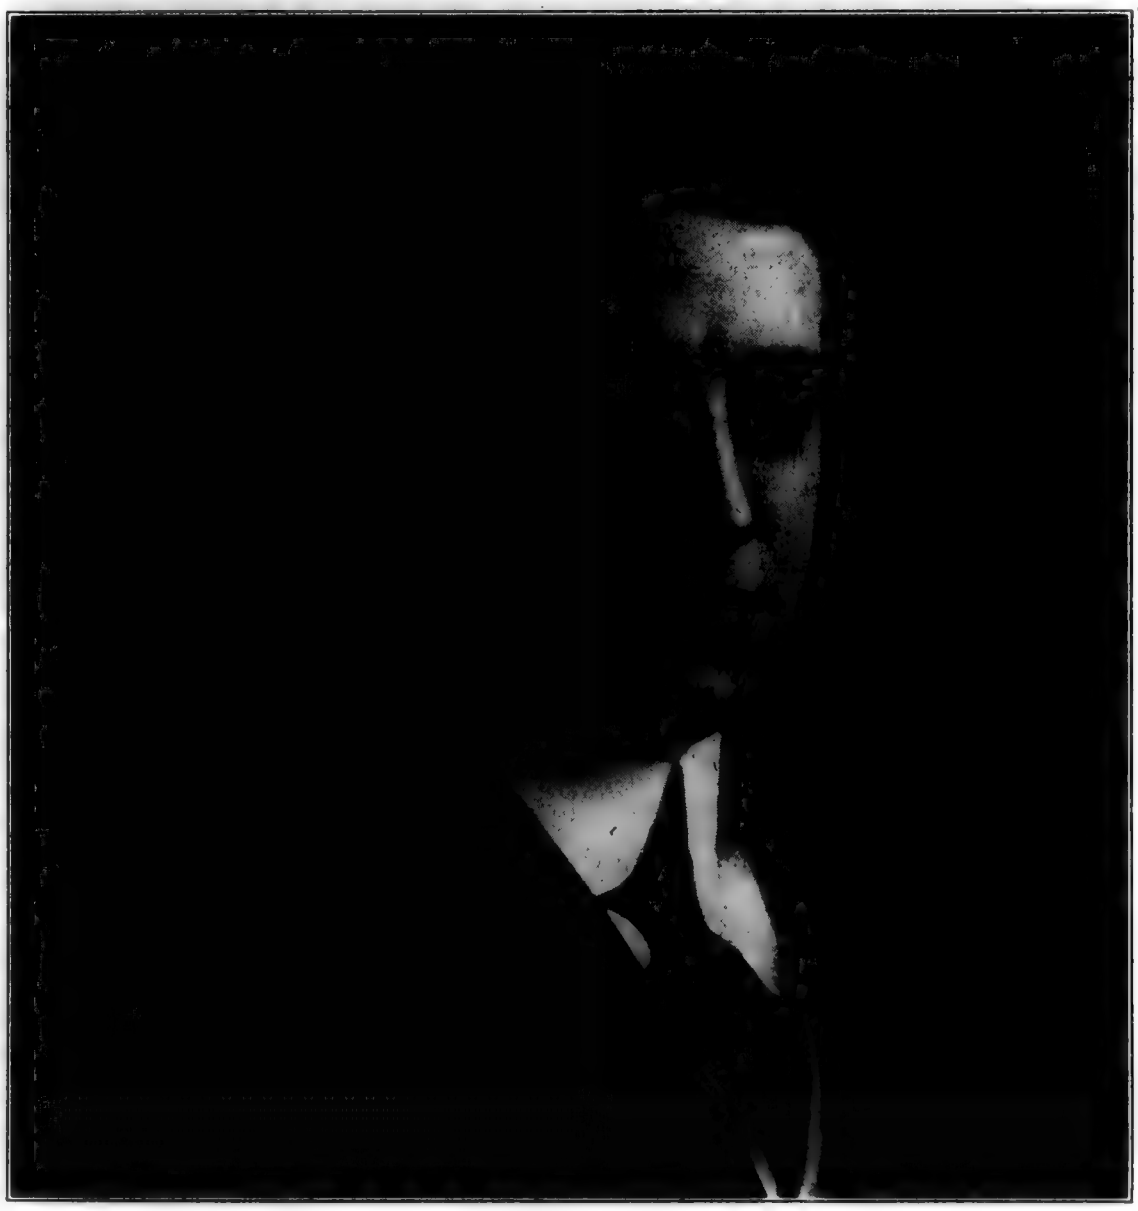
Looking to the Future.

I can remember the time when there was but one construction company in the east and it still exists today. Formerly the only houses it was called upon to design and build were conservatories on private places. As time went on some of the bolder spirits in the commercial end of the business had the company erect houses for the commercial production of flowers and, in following instructions from these growers, the construction men learned just what sort of greenhouse was required for the production of flowers. They were quick to improve on all the points they obtained and today we have the modern iron-frame greenhouses, with concrete walls and benches, with roofs that have a minimum amount of wood to obstruct the sun's rays and heating plants that are as near perfection as possible. Like the fireproof buildings in our great cities, these modern greenhouses are rot-proof, for there is nothing about them to rot and this brings the repair account down to a minimum. In fact, I know of houses that have been in use for the last fifteen years which have no repair account except painting and perhaps a few panes of glass broken through accidents. It is in just such houses as these that the flowers of the future are going to be produced, because the time is fast approaching when efficiency is going to be the watchword in production and the man who anticipates an addition to his range would do well to give this matter serious consideration.



Counting the Cost.

Of course, I can hear many growers who are ready to say this all sounds well on paper, but that they could not afford such houses. When I was a young man, not yet of age, an old Hebrew banker, one of the most successful in the city in which he lived, was giving me some business advice; it was this: "Young man, get into debt." His argument was that a business man who was not in debt did not amount to much. At that time, debt was the thing I was trying to avoid, but many a time since I have realized the wisdom of the old gentleman's remarks. In those days money could be had at five or six per cent interest. This old banker figured that a business worth anything should make a net profit on the amount borrowed equal to what it cost and at the same time create a sinking fund to take care of the principal. There is food for thought here for everyone who is thinking of building. Ponder it well; think of the efficiency of the houses; think of the repair account saved and, above all, remember that there is always going to be a market for flowers, but that if you want to stay in the business you must produce them at the lowest cost possible.

WORKING FOR BOND ISSUE.

The claims of other cities to high rank among American metropolitan centers have stirred St. Louis to efforts to maintain her position near the top. So a $24,000,000 bond issue is being planned. And to bind all interests together in the effort to promote the prestige of the city, Mayor Kiel has formed a committee, on which serves a member of each prominent organization in St. Louis. Since membership on the committee implies a position among the leaders in the profession represented by the organization, it is considered a distinct honor to serve thereon. The florists' profession is represented by Vincent J. Gorly, of the retail firm of Grimm & Gorly. President Hummert, of the St. Louis Florists' Club, made the selection.

Vincent J. Gorly.

THE CHANGING TIMES.

I am sending, under separate cover, samples of geraniums I received, supposed to be out of 2-inch pots, at $35 per thousand. This being my first attempt to grow geraniums, I am asking if these are fair samples of the plants one must expect when ordering 2-inch size? You will notice after the hard ball of soil is removed you will have to look closely to find the roots.

H. E. W.—N. Y.

The geraniums sent are not what, under normal conditions, one would expect to get out of 2-inch pots.

The old school of florists believed that a plant, to be "out of" a certain size of pot, should be well rooted around in that pot. In other words, the roots should have thoroughly permeated the ball of soil and worked around the pot, and the plant should be ready for a shift. But times have changed. With increasing demand, stock has been shipped more and more before it was ready, until today many florists seem to consider that stock is ready to come "out of" pots of a certain size when it has been in them long enough for the ball of soil to become fairly solid. Of course such stock from the first pot is little more than rooted cuttings and should be sold at little more than the rooted cutting price.

No doubt we shall go back to the old order of things when production again overtakes demand.

CYCLAMENS SHOW DRYNESS.

I am sending you some cyclamen leaves. There is some disease affecting them, of which I do not know. Please inform me of the disease and the treatment to overcome it. A. M.—Mich.

The cyclamen leaves arrived badly dried up, but they appeared to be infested with thrips and red spider. As the season for flowering plants of cyclamen is about over, there is little to be done with the plants now. When growing cyclamen plants for another season, be most particular in giving them an even temperature, so that they are not subjected to an extremely high temperature or dry atmosphere, conditions which quickly cause the trouble that seems to be affecting the foliage of these plants.

FLU among the pickers of greens has made some stocks scarce.

THIS year, so far, has been just one bad blizzard after another for the trade in the east.

"SPRING sales" might prove as good an institution for florists as for department stores to move accumulated stocks.

NEW YORK hopes for better treatment from the weather man for the international flower show next week, March 15 to 22, than it has had most of this year.

"IT has been definitely determined that the European corn borer originally reached this country through the medium of imported broom corn." For this pest, then, Quarantine No. 37 was not needed.

BANKERS think they see signs of impending change in the business situation. They advise against going into debt or assuming additional expenses which can not be cut off quickly in case of necessity.

BETTER service is expected from both railroads and express companies because of the private owners' desire to get back into the good graces of the public and by contrast kill the old agitation for government ownership.

WINTER'S last kick, let us hope, was in the storm which crossed the United States from the Rockies to the Atlantic last week.

THE shortage of Asparagus plumosus in northern markets is due to a freeze, March 2, in some of the Florida growing districts.

BETTER than publicity, the coöperative campaigns are bringing more closely together the various branches of the trade in the cities where they operate.

THERE is a call for a pot-washing machine. Does any subscriber know where they can be bought? Those advertised before the war seem no longer procurable.

IF a florist finds his accounts receivable rising month after month, he should examine his system; probably he does not use due diligence in collecting his bills.

WHEN there is a liberal margin of profit, as now, knowledge of costs seems not such a crying need. But when the pendulum swings back again, it will be much wanted.

THE trade will feel the effects of the shortage of galvanized wire. There will be difficulty in procuring as many wire hanging baskets as can be sold this spring and galvanized rose stakes shortly will be in strong request.

QUEER ideas of economy prevail in some persons' minds and the one that flowers are superfluous at a funeral bobs up every so often. But the solace of flowers survives fads and cranks, who need cause us no sleeplessness.

IT seems quite probable that greenhouse building will be limited this season by the inability to procure sufficient quantities of glass. Already it is impossible to get greenhouse sizes on short notice, many of the factories having been out of the market for some weeks.

FAILURE to collect, in these days, usually indicates neglect to make the proper effort. But it will not always be a mere matter of keeping after forgetful debtors; the time will come again when collections will be slow because there is little money to pay with.

IN asking subscriptions to carry on the work of its fuel and transportation committee, the Vegetable Growers' Association of America fixes the basis of contribution at $5 per acre of glass (43,560 square feet). The $2,253.63 raised since August 1, 1918, has been spent by the committee, which now has a deficit of $47.21.

FAVORABLE SYMPTOMS.

In the signs of continued business prosperity, accompanied by indications of a conservative mood that induces to a sounder basis, the Federal Reserve Board, in its report for the month of February, sees conditions which may be interpreted as highly favorable for excellent spring business by the trade.

"High living costs and the upward movement of prices have apparently not been checked," it states, "although there is a decrease in prices in certain lines and a tendency toward restricted trade in others. Interest rates are rising in most districts, while banks are exercising a greater degree of discrimination and judgment in meeting the demands of their customers."

General prospects at the close of February were for an active and prosperous spring season in all lines, the statement said. Agricultural prospects were said to be reassuring and the curtailment in exports, due to the exchange situation, while undoubtedly beginning to make itself felt, was believed by many of the banking authorities likely soon to be of benefit to the consumer here rather than injurious. It was pointed out also that there was a tendency to resist the advance in prices and that greater care was being exercised in purchasing, all of which were regarded as favorable symptoms.

General manufacturing was reported quite active all over the country. Wholesale trade conditions were said to be prosperous almost throughout the country. Some improvement was noted in general labor conditions.

CAN YOU ANSWER?

In The Review of February 26, J. M. asks the name of a plant that looks like salvia. There are a few such plants here every year, both white and red. It seeds itself and it will be late spring before plants can be obtained. I have seen the plant for a number of years, but have never known the name. It is known here as wild salvia, although it does not grow wild.

I have a plant much like the wandering Jew, but the leaves are much larger and thicker. It is known here as the corn geranium. I have never seen it in any catalogue and should like to know the name of it. C. M. Webb.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

C. E. S., O.—Ophiopogon Jaburan aureus variegatus.

P. S., Mich.—White spine; several seed houses catalogue selected strains.

THE CLEARING HOUSE.

Users of The Review have various names for the Classified ads, one well pleased patron styling them the "Little Wonder Ads." Here is another:

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

LADIES' S. A. F.

Through the courtesy of A. L. Miller, president of the S. A. F., the members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists are invited to avail themselves of the privileges and comforts of the booth which has been donated by him as their headquarters at the international flower show to be held in New York, March 15 to 20.

The president, Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, has issued a call for the meeting of the board of directors of the society Thursday, March 18, at 2 p. m., at the Grand Central Palace. Several matters of importance must be attended to and every member of the board is urged to attend or appoint a proxy.

The appointment of Mrs. A. L. Miller as auditor for the Ladies' S. A. F. for the year 1920 has been made by the president. Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Sec'y.

OBITUARY

Frederick W. Bruggerhof.

Frederick W. Bruggerhof, head of the seed firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co., 53 Barclay street, New York, died at his home Monday, March 8, at the age of 90.

Mr. Bruggerhof, often called the "dean of the American seed trade," was long a prominent figure in its ranks, having first become associated with J. M. Thorburn & Co. in 1849. He was born in Barmen, Prussia, October 15, 1830, of Holland ancestry. In 1855, after only six years of service, he became a partner in the firm and continued an active member until it was incorporated in 1894, when he was chosen president.

He was president at one time of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, whose directors at the time, in 1910, presented him with a loving cup upon the occasion of his eightieth birthday. At that time B. Landreth, secretary of the league, said of Mr. Bruggerhof, "He is acknowledged to be the best all-around seedsman in the United States, the highest authority on the history of the seed trade in America, and his views as to variations and merit command the highest consideration."

Mr. Bruggerhof's home was in Noroton, Conn., in which state he had been prominent in public affairs since 1874. He was elected on the Democratic ticket to both the House of Representatives and the Senate and was a presidential elector-at-large in the electoral college of 1884. He was a member of the Wee Burn Golf Club, of Noroton, of the Stamford Yacht Club, of Stamford, both of Connecticut, and of the Hardware Club of New York city.

His son, E. E. Bruggerhof, is vice-president and treasurer of J. M. Thorburn & Co.

Mrs. Christiane Smith.

Mrs. Christiane Smith, vice-president of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., St. Louis, Mo., mother of William C. Smith and of Mrs. Herman V. Hunkel, of Milwaukee, Wis., died at the home of her daughter in Milwaukee last week after an illness of six weeks.

Mrs. Smith was born in Holstein, Germany, in 1848 and had four brothers, all in the trade; they were William Edlefsen, formerly of Milwaukee and now of Portland, Ore.; Louis, of Los Angeles, Cal.; John, of Allegheny, Pa., and Edward, of St. Louis, Mo. The last two died a few years ago. Mrs. Smith was a widow and is survived by her son and daughter.

The remains were taken to St. Louis and the funeral took place March 5 from Kron's funeral parlors, 2715 Grand avenue. Many friends, both of the deceased and of W. C. Smith, in the trade attended and expressed their sympathy, and the room was filled with the beautiful floral emblems. J. J. B.

Leonard Lawson.

Leonard Lawson, of Rockford, Ill., died at his home Monday, February 23, from a complication of diseases, from which he had suffered for several years. He was 52 years of age.

Mr. Lawson was born in Rockford, October 6, 1867, and made that city his home during his entire life. He was engaged in the florists' profession for the last twenty-seven years and previously had been a helper in the greenhouse of George W. Tures. He left the business for a short time, but reëntered and took his brother into partnership with him, erecting a new greenhouse at Ninth street and Eleventh avenue. Because Mr. Lawson's health was poor, they had to sell a few years later.

During the last four winters he spent the time in the south, hoping thereby to regain his health.

The funeral was held Wednesday, February 25. The floral tributes were many and beautiful, all the florists in Rockford sending pieces.

Mr. Lawson was a charter member of the Court of Honor, No. 230. He is survived by his mother, three brothers and three sisters.

Frederick W. Bruggerhof.

Mrs. Albert Hornung.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Hornung, wife of Albert Hornung, of Bond Hill, one of Cincinnati's most promising young growers, died Tuesday, March 2, after a brief illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Hornung were married less than a year and his great sorrow is shared by the members of the trade, who sent many beautiful floral offerings in mute evidence of the esteem in which she was held. H. E. K.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan, Bridgeport, W. Va., died March 3, after an illness of four days with influenza and pneumonia.

Mrs. Morgan was well known to the trade, as the yellow chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, originated by her husband, was named in honor of her. She was born November 25, 1881, in Knoxville, Tenn., and was taken there to be buried. Her husband acted as greenhouse foreman for Hayman Greenhouse Co., H. Weber & Sons Co. and the McCallum Co.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nidiek.

Mrs. Elizabeth Nidiek, wife of William E. Nidiek, shipper for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., died Saturday, February 28. She was 42 years of age. The funeral services were held Wednesday, March 3, at 3 p. m., at the home, at 328 Loyal avenue, Beltzhoover. The interment was at Mount Lebanon cemetery. E. E. S.

Mrs. Mary A. Phelan.

Mrs. Mary A. Phelan, widow of the late Kiernan Phelan, and mother of John H. Phelan, died after a brief illness at her home, 16 Chapel street, Newport, R. I., Tuesday, March 2. She was widely known and highly esteemed.

John H. Phelan has conducted the business with which the family has been so long associated since the death of his father, in August, 1905. Mrs. Phelan leaves two sons and three daughters to mourn her. W. H. M.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market was oversupplied and weak March 5 and the next day the express service was discontinued because of a strike among the office and station employees. The result, although it came on the day shipping was the lightest, was to throw the market into a condition of confusion which did not improve as the strike wore its way into the present week.

Almost the first act of the express officials in meeting the situation was to order an embargo on perishable freight for Chicago, so that the growers found themselves unable to ship to market. They arranged for motor truck transportation and after a day or two the company found itself able to handle a part of the incoming stock, so that no serious difficulty was encountered in this part of the work. While there was a partial delivery service at all times, there was no pick-up service, nor any station service. In the emergency the wholesalers resorted to many expedients. Only a few made no attempt to keep their customers at least partially supplied. Several of them made more or less shipments direct from the greenhouses. Others got the boxes to the stations and into express cars any way they could, taking the chance of letting the shipments go without receipts. Some shipments were trucked to suburban towns, where they could be put aboard outgoing trains in the usual way. But the major portion of the shipments have been going out by parcel post, special delivery. Of course florists were not the only ones who had recourse to the parcel post and this service quickly became badly congested. The first day's mail shipments got through in good shape, so customers reported, but there were costly and vexatious delays when the postoffice clogged up. Later the service began to improve as facilities were increased and as the express service began to function again.

Writing March 9, it seems as though the strike may end at any moment and that it will wear itself out in a few days if it does not collapse.

Under such disturbed shipping conditions it was inevitable that the market should be greatly unsettled. There were, however, two or three saving factors. The new advertising campaign was put into action March 9 and unquestionably helped a rapidly reviving city retail trade. The retailers all have been doing a good business and the moderate price at which they have been able to obtain flowers has encouraged them to greater effort. Then the weather has been cold—winter's last kick, we hope—and it has held back production. At the same time there has been an ocean of flowers; no scarcity anywhere in the list. Prices have varied widely and there have been accumulations it was impossible to move, because sales to department stores and other cheap local buyers have become suddenly unpopular.

Sweet peas have come in heavily, the days having been clear if cold. Much of the stock is short in stem and strictly fancy peas still sell well in spite of the oversupply. Roses, too, are much more abundant, and so are carnations, violets, valley, tulips, Darwins, jonquils and nearly everything else. The possible exceptions are cattleyas and freesias, the former being between crops and the latter drawing toward the end of their season. Lilies are seen in some quantity, the early birds of the Easter crop. They are not in special request, as the call for funeral work has subsided to something like normal. The same condition affects the sale of callas. Except for the short-stemmed sweet peas, most of the stock on the market is of excellent quality and there is every incentive to push the business.

Asparagus is the only shortage among greens. The Florida growers have had their own troubles of late. March 2 there was a sharp frost, which will put some of them out of business for from one to six weeks. Also, there have been express embargoes, with the result that Easter Prospects.

The consensus is that Easter will make a new record for the trade, not only in the Chicago market but throughout the country. A tremendous volume of shipping business is expected. The view is that there will be stock enough, but not too much, and that good values can be realized as the result of the public's willingness to spend.

Roses and carnations will be in larger supply than last year, also of better quality. As to lilies, everyone says they will be scarce, but there is beginning to be a suspicion that cut lilies will go around—at the price.

Various Notes.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., Elm street, has completed plans for the increase of its capital for the purpose of admitting the older employees to a larger participation in the business. The newly created shares are to be sold to the employees on favorable terms. Mr. Wienhoeber is gradually turning the business over to the younger men.

The death of Harry M. Higinbotham, which occurred March 5, removes another of the family which came into prominence in trade affairs when J. D. Thompson and James Hartshorne built the range of the Chicago Carnation Co., on the Higinbotham estate at Joliet. It was Harry, representing the sons and daughters of the owner, who closed up the affairs of the original corporation and leased the greenhouses to the present concern, of which P. W. Peterson is the head. Mr. Higinbotham was 51 years of age.

John Weiland is having an excellent season on the north shore. Both the stores, at Evanston and at Wilmette, have been steadily busy. For a time there was a preponderance of calls for flowers for the expression of sympathy, says Manager John Weiland, Jr., but to the Out-of-Town Retail Florist—by a GROWER

You wanted and expected something to be done, something that would be accomplished in tangible form, that would represent YOUR RIGHTS.

The initial steps in Chicago were taken in the Growers' Petition of 1916, the first official and practical document towards practical changes in improving MARKETING CONDITIONS. I was its first signer. It pointed out what could be done for you as a Retailer—these things that are now occurring.

The Retailer finds conditions unjust in Extreme High Wholesale Prices and Extreme Low Prices. At times of low prices Department Stores take advantage of the competitive system of one Retail Florist against another in the same locality. Stranger still are the sources of supply that at such time provide the Department Store. Your interests are under my observation in my close contact with the Marketing Problems as they directly present themselves in Chicago. Your attention is called to your opportunity. Take advantage of it.

YOUR PROTECTION

Jan. 1st, 1917, our policy embodied certain principles of conducting a wholesale house "under growers' supervision," that would KEEP US OUT of any criticism of GROWER and RETAILER.

of a Department Store IN BIRMINGHAM:

"SATURDAY, a sale of fresh Cut Roses and Carnations at 37½c a DOZEN. Sold in original bunches of two dozen each for 75c.

"Saturday morning, at 9 o'clock, we will place on sale a generously Large Shipment of gorgeously beautiful fresh Cut Roses and Carnations—Cut Flowers that you pay $2.50 to $3.50 per dozen for, every day in Birmingham. A sale that enables you to 'Say It with Flowers' without the customary excessive 'Tax Talk,' and because these Roses and Carnations come to us in original bunches of two dozen each, we will sell them the same way. 'Say It with Flowers' to mother, wife, sweetheart and that friend who is ill and who will appreciate them most." Adv. on File Here

A WHOLESALE HOUSE can expect the respect of its position in the trade only as it has the full confidence of the Growers and Retailers. IT CANNOT BE FAIR TO THE GROWER UNLESS IT IS FAIR TO THE RETAILER.

Our Public Statement
Aug. 17, 1918

The wholesale house of the FUTURE will work in unison with the Retailers, with its Growers, with its Competitors, to master the law of Supply and Demand in the formation of sales.

Growers' Petition of 1916 says:

"Discourage the practice of selling to the Department Stores in times of overabundance, unless such stores operate retail flower departments ALL THE YEAR AROUND."

"The Growers, Wholesalers and a Retailers' Association through an advertising agency could well work out a plan of co-operative advertising so that the RETAILERS will learn to make their prices correspond to changes in the Wholesale Market." JOS. KOHOUT, now the trend is toward flowers for happy hours.

Chairman of our Growers' Committee, in Growers' Petition of 1916.

John Ziska says every florist should cut "What Flowers Mean," by Doris Blake, out of the Tribune of March 7 and paste it up in his store. It is "the language of flowers."

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smyth have sold the home they have occupied for years at 6541 Yale avenue, in Englewood, and May 1 will move to an appartment at 6618 Kimbark avenue, in Woodlawn.

August Jurgens, Jr., a member of the force of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is the proud father of a 12-pound boy, born last week.

A number of members of the trade were in the party which gathered at the home of H. N. Bruns and Mrs. Bruns, on Warren avenue, March 5, to celebrate that couple's silver wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Otto Goerisch had the bad luck to get her hand drawn into a clothes wringer March 8. The injury was so serious that Mr. Goerisch was called at once from his place with the A. L. Randall Co.

visitors and recipients of many attentions in several of the wholesale houses.

Those former florists, Lubliner & Trinz, who sold out to George Wienhoeber, now operate a string of fifteen moving picture theaters, including many of the largest and finest in town. Their headquarters are at 801 Kimball building.

John C. Enders, with the E. C. Amling Co., celebrated his fifty-fourth birthday anniversary March 8.

A. F. Longren was at home over the week end. He has been on the road in the middle west continuously for many months and says he never has seen a time when the trade as a whole has been so prosperous as now.

Last week The Review noted that March 5 was Peter Reinberg's birthday anniversary. The Tribune published a portrait of the florist and said: "Peter Reinberg, native son of Chicago, president of the board of county commissioners and the county forest preserves, for eight years alderman for the Twenty-sixth ward and a former president of the board of education, yesterday celebrated his sixty-second birthday. Friends smothered him with congratulations. Peter was born at what now is North Robey street and Balmoral avenue. His father came to Cook county in 1848. The Reinberg family still owns a considerable part of the original Reinberg farm."

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Another unusually severe storm, with rain, sleet, hail and snow, Friday, March 5, disrupted transportation facilities and made shipments from many near-by points difficult, if not impossible, for twenty-four hours or more afterward. However, the market supply of cut flowers was little disturbed, except in the case of a few items, for the reason that prior to the storm there was an accumulation of stock, the handling of which was becoming rather awkward. Conditions Monday, March 8, were much improved and transportation was normal over most routes.

The supply of cut flowers is quite plentiful, particularly in the case of bulbous stock, which is arriving in large quantities. Staple lines are much affected by this influx and prices generally have gone down to a point not experienced for some time previous. Tulips of good quality are to be had almost at pre-war prices, 35 to 50 cents per bunch being the range for ordinary varieties, with 75 cents for especially interesting sorts. Daffodils are on the same plane, being extremely plentiful. Freesias move at 10 to 35 cents per bunch, according to quality, with extra long-stemmed Purity bringing as much as 50 cents per bunch. Iris, usually available at this season, is little seen.

Sweet peas are in heavy supply and prices have tumbled considerably, 50 cents to $2 now being the range, with good stock moving at $1 to $1.50 and extra long-stemmed flowers occasionally bringing $3.

Roses are in good supply and clearances, with the exception of American Beauty, which is in short but quite sufficient supply, are at times quite difficult. The general quality of arrivals is good, but the demand is evidently affected by the liberal supply of spring flowers available. Long-stemmed grades

Cattleyas are in fair supply, with the movement somewhat sluggish. There is much stock of inferior quality in the market and really fine blooms are scarce. The price range is about $15 to $50 per hundred, with a few bringing as much as $75 per hundred. Gardenias are overplentiful, as may be judged from their appearance in the hands of street peddlers. Selected stock moves at about $3 per dozen and the rest at prices between that and $1 per dozen and even less.

Easter lilies are fairly plentiful again and are to be had at $20 per hundred downward. Both longiflorum and formosum varieties are available. The high prices expected for the Easter supply of lilies appear to be fading away as the certainty of a bountiful supply becomes more apparent. Lily of the valley is extremely abundant and clearances are made only through concessions from the range of prices quotable, 50 cents to $4 per hundred sprays.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers is much increased and values have declined materially. Acacia at $1.50 to $2.50 per bunch and lilac at $1.50 to $2 are especially choice. Lupines, pansies and primulas are in fair supply at prices according to quality.

Flower Show Plans.

Much anxiety is expressed in flower show circles as to what the weather will be like during the week of the show, which is to open Monday, March 15. The worry is not so much over gate receipts as over the transportation facilities for the many exhibits promised. The flower show committee is greatly elated over the prospects for a successful show and, with weather conditions favorable, success should materialize.

The entertainment in connection with the show will be as lavish as before. The tea garden is well organized and several social functions have been arranged in connection with it, including a ball one evening during the week. Each day will be featured as a day for one of the allied powers and the program for British Empire day is especially elaborate. There will be an unusually large gathering of out-of-town florists at the show, many of them acting as jurors. Governor Smith, with Mrs. Smith and his official family and staff, will attend the show Wednesday, March 17, after the St. Patrick's day parade; after looking over the exhibits, he will visit the tea garden.

The flower show committee held its final meeting Monday afternoon, March 1, when all arrangements for the show were found to be complete. The demand for trade tickets has been excellent and practically all the space available for commercial exhibits has been taken.

The Market.

The principal feature of the market last week was that there was more than enough stock. This was a novel feature; it was the first week of plenty since the first of last September. Many kinds of stock now obtainable in good supply were not generally available a short time ago.

The prices, while an earnest effort is being made to hold them up to a firm point, are breaking under the pressure of increased production. Carnations are holding best of all. The supply of these is not great yet, but the price for the best is down to $6 per hundred and the week end found many unsold; so it can be expected that much lower prices will rule.

In the line of roses, there is much fancy stock to be had at reasonable prices. The short and cheap grades are being used for funeral work. American Beauties of the best grades continue to be scarce. Many of these, as well as the best grades of others, have found an avenue of sale in the automobile show.

Various Notes.

For several years the florists and horticultural men of this state have been working to get a state horticultural building at the state fair grounds. When a bill was proposed recently in the legislature to put up another $600,000 barn instead of an agricultural building, W. A. Adams, treasurer of the New York State Horticultural Society, went to Albany, where with many others, he endeavored to impress upon the committee the injustice being done by putting off the horticultural structure for more barns. F. P. A.

New Philadelphia, O.—Weinhart Bros. have succeeded T. B. Stroup and report business exceptionally good. They were formerly with C. B. Dover and also worked for T. B. Stroup.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The first week of March closed disastrously for the cut flower market. There has been no business. The supply was only moderate, yet prices fell, nay, tumbled fast. The decline was so rapid that it fairly startled even the keenest traders. Interest centered in the last two days of the week, when it was hoped that the special sales in the shops and the job lots of leftovers and culls on the street would clear the iceboxes for a fresh start Monday, March 8. With such a start, it was confidently predicted that there would be no further decline this month, but it was not to be. The blizzard Friday night, March 5, spoiled the special sales in the shops and completely stopped street trading. True, it reduced the supply, but the supply already on hand was more than sufficient for all purposes and the market closed weakly, with prices decidedly low and much stock carried over.

While values are low, it is by comparison with those which prevailed during the winter. Compared with other years at this season, they are satisfactory. Carnations most clearly bring out the change. During the winter the quotations ranged from $25 per hundred for Laddie down to $15 per hundred for anything, but during the last week in February only the best stock brought $15 per hundred. The first week in March they sold at $6, $8 and $10 per hundred, the sales at the higher figures being for the best only, while a poor grade was hard to sell at $4 per hundred.

Pretty much everything is cheap and plentiful, with only a few exceptions. Beauties, of course, are one of the exceptions, the spring crop not being in bloom yet. The special sales are chiefly in cut daffodils, sweet peas and violets. Calendulas would benefit by about a dozen good, big special sales. With shipping orders so light, the city salesmen have had a hard time disposing of the surplus. They complain that even A. L. Fortunes has flowers to sell now. Mr. Fortunes ordinarily confines himself to ferns, but prices were so attractive that he took a flyer on some New York carnations for distribution here.

The Blizzard.

With clock-like precision, the tail end of the Chicago blizzard arrived here exactly on time, to wit, Friday evening, March 5. We are extremely thankful that Chicago spared us only the tail end. Had it been the whole thing, we could not have stood it. We are not accustomed to such rough treatment, even after the severe winter. Just what damage was done, it is too soon to tell. It did some damage. It blew out every loose pane of glass in the north side of every greenhouse hereabouts and it gave a good many of us a sleepless night and a good scare. We are told that it was not so bad as the blizzard of March, 1888. Perhaps not—it was quite bad enough.

lished a neat card in the local papers drawing attention to the merits of sweet peas, their fine quality and their moderate price. It is neatly done. Discussing this matter, Samuel S. Pennock said that he heartily approved of the publicity campaign and thought that it would do good. Mr. Pennock has made a special study of advertising. He considers that there are two all-important points which must be kept clearly in mind: First, there should be something distinctive, such as a trade-mark, to fix the subject in the mind of the reader. Second, the offer should be backed up. In the present instance, Mr. Pennock thinks that much of the success of this particular sweet pea offer depends on how fully retailers carry sweet peas in stock. Talk about them, make attractive prices on them, have window displays of sweet peas, special sales of sweet peas and show the customers some of the many ways of using sweet peas effectively.

Two Exhibits.

There were two exhibits at the March meeting of the Philadelphia Florists' Club, held in the roof garden of the Hotel Adelphia March 2, which demand fuller notice than could be given in last week's brief telegram. They were the sweet peas and the acacias. The sweet peas of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. are said to be the finest exhibit of fashion's fragrant flower ever made at this season, either here or in New York. They comprised fifty varieties, one vase of each variety, all of the early-flowering, orchid type and all the company's own seedlings, in many exquisite colors and shades of color. We are told that they were all grown in one small greenhouse at Fordhook. They represent the work of George W. Kerr. They open a vista of possibilities.

The other exhibit also was rare and beautiful. It comprised cut sprays of eleven varieties of acacias; each variety was in a vase by itself. They were shown by William Kleinheinz, of Lynwood Hall, and represented his work with the collection purchased at Convention hall from Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., some five years ago. It was said at the time that Mr. Roland felt that his collection, which was the admiration of flower lovers at the national show, had fallen into good hands. This is certainly true. Mr. Kleinheinz

Various Notes.

Fred J. Michell and Mrs. Michell returned from St. Petersburg, Fla., March 8.

Clarence U. Liggit is out of town on a short business trip.

Mark P. Mills has recovered from an attack of tonsillitis. This is believed to be Mr. Mills' first illness. Mrs. Mills thinks that he made as bad a patient as most strong men do.

John Berger, who has worked hard for the publicity campaign, teases Robert Kift by telling him that sweet peas were good stock until the publicity committee took hold of them.

Henry F. Michell says that Alexander B. Scott would not play him a golf match at Summerville, S. C.

Stephen D. Greene says there are fellows who take a roll in bed.

Gilbert Woltemate had the misfortune to have the iron smokestack blow down that awful night of the blizzard.

Louis Berger arranged a beautiful window with plant baskets for William Berger's Sons. Each basket was filled with a single variety of blooming plant. The selection of baskets and their arrangement betokened the artist.

Robert A. Craig says that he distinctly remembers the blizzard of 1888. His mother said, "Children, I am afraid that the weather is too bad for you to go to Sunday school." Mr. Craig added, with a smile, "We had a wonderful time."

The Florex Gardens will erect at their range at North Wales two greenhouses 72x500 feet, each to replace a house injured by the snow storm. Phil.

B. F. Leston and S. Gerard Smith, representing Carbone, Inc., Boston, Mass., were visitors in this city last week.

The Market.

Business was poor in the cut flower markets last week and prices dropped to low levels new for the present season. Efforts to stimulate buying by means of bold advertisements notifying the public that flowers are lower failed to achieve that purpose, since, on the day when big business could naturally have been expected, a fierce blizzard struck Boston and almost paralyzed business. Conditions show, in comparison with 1919, an improvement, but present prices seem decidedly low to growers and salesmen when compared with the extreme values maintained through January and February. We always get a Lenten slump and always hear the story that business is "the worst ever known at this season," but previous years' data do not bear out these pessimistic pronouncements.

Roses are somewhat off crop with most of the growers, but are more than ample for the demands. On short-stemmed stock, prices have dropped to as low as $20 per thousand, while the demand for other grades is not at all robust. Carnations are coming in abundantly and are of fine quality, but values are down to $3 to $5 per hundred, with white especially weak. Both violets and sweet peas are plentiful and move slowly. Lilies are hard to move at much reduced prices. Daffodils and tulips are slow at $4 to $5 per hundred. Calendulas, wallflowers and forget-me-nots are in heavy oversupply. The season for freesias is a membership contest and that no efforts would be spared to make a substantial gain. William J. Thurston, manager of the Boston Flower Exchange, on whom one or more retailers cast aspersions at the February meeting, defended himself in vigorous fashion and was warmly applauded. Charges made against him proved to be unfounded and those who had made them expressed their regrets.

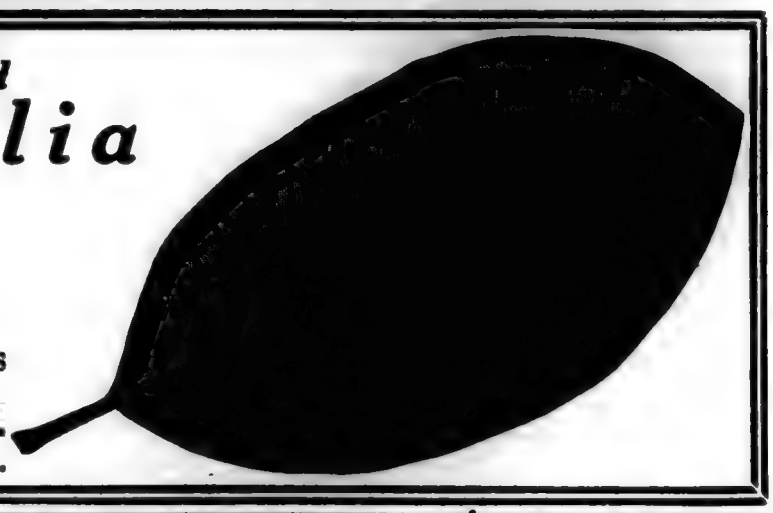
The wholesalers had the floor and Charles E. Robinson, of H. M. Robinson & Co., started the ball rolling. He discussed the causes of the present slump in business and said that high prices were not good for the cut flower business. We must endeavor to create a demand for flowers. The wholesalers were not considered so much as the retailers, although the bulk of the flowers coming into the cut flower markets in Boston were handled through them. Instead of having a market manager buy flowers for retailers, why not compel them to buy from a wholesaler? Cooperation and a get-together policy were never more necessary.



Edward Welch, of the Welch Bros. Co., thought that salesmen should not do a shipping business; if they continued to do so, why should not wholesalers be allowed to sell at retail on occasion? Benjamin A. Snyder, of the Boston Floral Supply Co., made a vigorous address. He said that the wholesalers were the men who looked for markets for the produce grown and that they had to face competition from other flower-growing centers. He scathingly denounced salesmen for refusing to sell a particular variety of rose or carnation unless a proportion of other colors, usually less salable, were taken. He also scored the practice prevalent among salesmen of buying from one another early in the morning, when prices were high, and demanding extortionate prices for such produce. Sam Robinson, of the Boston Floral Supply Co., defended the use of artificial flowers during epidemics and at Christmas and Memorial day; the demand for these was enormous and a good many of their customers have flowers at cost to keep them going.

Sidney Hoffman suggested that wholesalers and retailers get together and start a publicity campaign right away to let the public know that flowers are more reasonable in price. W. H. Elliott said that his experience had been that, in times of glut, the wholesalers were the real distributors. He did not see why the retailers should be allowed to buy at the same favored price as the wholesalers. The growers received more from the wholesalers than the retailers. The grower had by far the greatest amount of invested capital. He suggested that, to stop the present-day practice of salesmen making up floral designs to sell at retail in the wholesale markets, the retailers do so and allow a reasonable discount on orders. The retailers, in his estimation, made their money too easily.

H. H. Bartsch said that plants were uniform in price and did not vary like cut flowers; you never could tell customers what flowers would cost for even a short period. W. C. Stickel considered the retailer to be the legitimate channel through which the grower's flowers could be disposed of. Further remarks were made by J. Frank Edgar, A. I. Parker and others. It was urged by several speakers that now was the time, when flowers were abundant and cheap, to give the fact wide newspaper publicity. A subscription was started on the spot and the money received, together with what was added a day later by those who had not attended the meeting, was used to pay for bold, striking advertisements in the leading Boston dailies March 5.

Professor J. F. De Chant, vice-president of the Sheldon Business College, the speaker of the evening, made a short address on "Coöperation." As the hour was late when he commenced, it was suggested by him that he come again at the April meeting and the audience unanimously agreed to this. A handsome vase of snapdragons graced the president's table.

Boston Horticultural Club.

The Horticultural Club, at its meeting in Young's hotel March 3, was favored by an illustrated lecture on orchids by George I'Anson, Beverly Farms, Mass. Fine vases of William Sim's rose-pink seedling carnation, Romeo, graced the tables. An appeal was made for seeds, cuttings or plants by the Horticultural Society of the North of France and it met with liberal response. J. K. M. L. Farquhar stated that Secretary of Agri-

William Sim, F. A. Wilson, President E. H. Wilson and J. K. M. L. Farquhar. A special committee was appointed to consider the desirability of having a special dinner during the week of the Boston flower show.

Various Notes.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, through its board of directors, has drafted vigorous resolutions on Quarantine No. 37 and will ask the support and coöperation of every state horticultural society in the United States in an effort to get this obnoxious measure radically modified.

Many growers are still having a hard time to secure enough fuel to keep their greenhouses from freezing. William Sim, of Cliftondale, one of the best local growers, who specializes in carnations, violets and polyanthus, says that he has been paying $25 a day for a truck to haul coal, and that all it could haul daily was seven or eight tons, so badly were the roads blockaded with snow.

The many friends of the esteemed Alexander Montgomery, of Hadley, were pleased to see him in Boston March 3, looking remarkably well after his operation and serious illness.

At Penn's, the volume of business done in February went far ahead of that done in the same month in any previous year.

The success of Boston's big spring show, which opens March 24, is practically assured. Sufficient entries have already been received to fill practically the entire building. A. C. Burrage's orchid display is to be by far the largest and most valuable one ever staged in America, and it will completely fill one large hall. Another inspiring collection will come from the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J. A remarkable collection of Karame azaleas, which were secured by E. H. Wilson in Japan for the Arnold Arboretum and which are a new and remarkable race, will occupy 600 square feet of space. Thomas Roland will have two fine groups of acacias and other notable displays will be made by R. & J. Farquhar & Co. and many others. The exhibition will be the most noted spring display ever seen in Boston and, as it is being heavily advertised, a record attendance is certain.

Thomas Roland started marketing finely flowered Tausendschoen roses a week ago. He has a grand lot of roses and French hydrangeas coming along for Easter and his acacias and ericas are remarkably fine.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club comes March 16, one week before the opening of the big spring flower show. A prominent member of the American Association of Nurserymen will be the speaker of the evening and will discuss the association, its aims and progress. There will be much other business of importance.

Albert E. Robinson, of the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co., Lexington, has returned from a trip to the southwest and the Pacific coast.

T. F. Galvin, Jr., who has started in business as a retailer at 262 Devonshire street, states that he has done quite well since he opened three months ago. He has bought over $15,000 worth of flowers in that time, although he has a basement store.

Just when transportation companies had got cars running on nearly a normal basis there came the worst blizzard of the winter March 6. Driven by a 50-mile gale, the blinding snow fell for several hours and almost paralyzed train and street car schedules. Having been preceded by a warm day and heavy moisture, the cold wave and snow completely upset business in the city and nearly all stores closed at noon to allow their employees time to reach home. Business at the wholesale flower markets suffered severely and long-distance flower shipments were refused in many cases. Continued low temperatures and high gales characterized March 7 and 8.

Arthur Robbins, who for some years has conducted a store on Winter street in partnership with "Pansy" Leibman, has sold out his interests to the latter and will soon open a new store on his own account.

Wax Bros. are well settled in their new store on Temple place, where they have a commodious, well equipped establishment. They report good business, especially in funeral work. W. N. C.

McCRAY

REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

And, for the Floral Trade in Particular

THE McCray Refrigerator is the favorite with the floral trade. Many successful Florists have used McCray Refrigerators for years and years with perfect satisfaction. They have unbounded confidence in the refrigerator which bears the name "McCray" for it stands for quality and unequalled service.

Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage. The various compartments are of different sizes and accomodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

Both the exterior and the interior of the McCray Florist Refrigerators are handsomely made and easy to keep clean. You may have either heavy plate mirror or white enamel for the interior lining. The exterior may be of any finish to match your woodwork or fixtures.

There is a McCray built to suit your requirements. The styles illustrated here are designed for Florists, but this is not our complete line. Our Catalog No. 74 shows many more refrigerators. Get a copy of this Catalog—it will tell you more about the McCray and what it will mean to your business.

Send for Catalog—Let us send you a catalog that describes a great variety of designs—one to suit every requirement: No. 74 for Florists; No. 71 for Grocers and Delicatessens; No. 63 for Meat Markets and General Stores; No. 95 for Residences; No. 52 for Hotels and Restaurants.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Lack of Appreciation.

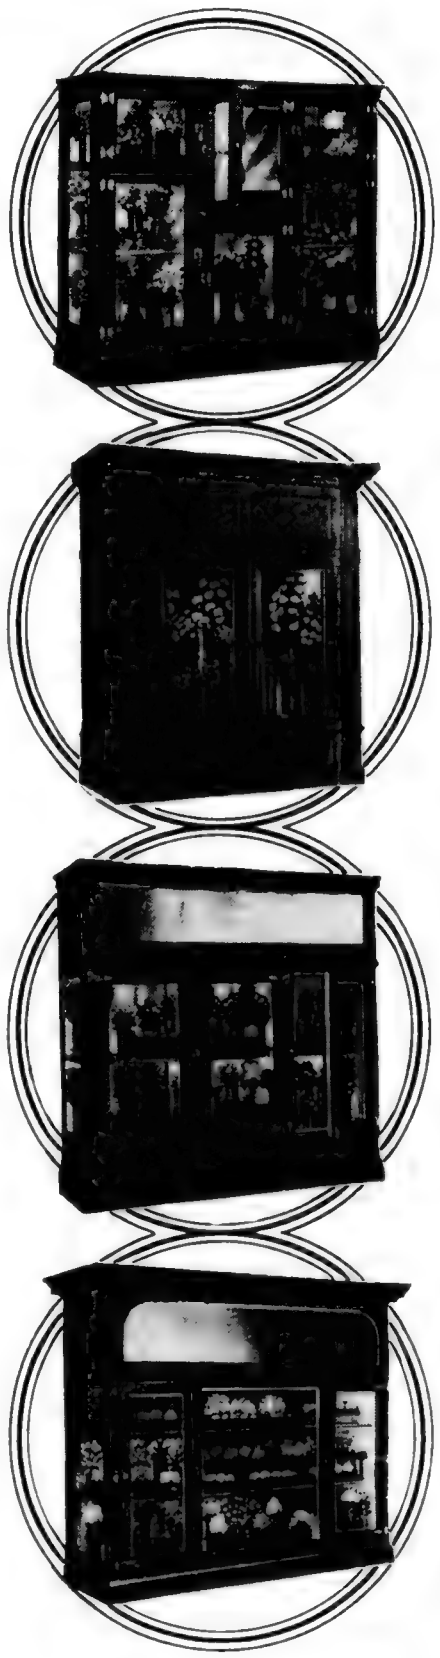
When the far-reaching results of our campaign are so noticeable as to promote interest such as is shown in the following letter, addressed to the secretary by Charles F. Meyer, president of the Corporation of Chas. F. Meyer, New York, it is time that the large body of florists who have not yet subscribed to our campaign fund should appreciate what is being done for them:

On my recent trip south and west I took particular notice of the publicity campaign and was much gratified and pleased to see the good impression it made upon the public and its beneficial results to the trade. Indeed, the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," expresses so much in all conditions of life, be it love, friendship, sickness or death, that it has taken a strong hold on the public and I really believe that the increased demand in flowers is to a large extent owing to it and the advertising in general. All of which impressed me and made me feel that the advertising crusade ought to be supported liberally. So when I reached Omaha and dropped in to see J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda, he easily detected the weak spot in my armor and neatly extracted a promise from me of a further contribution to the fund on the part of my firm. Therefore, you will find enclosed check of my firm for $100 as an additional contribution to the publicity campaign.

Our slogan is, undoubtedly, forcing its way rapidly into the public mind. It is not a mere jumble of words, as most other trade slogans are; it is straight to the point with its message and permits of no misunderstanding. Hardly a day passes that there is not received at the secretary's office some proof of its reception by the public.

Of late the cartoonists on the big newspapers seem to have taken it up and we receive many clippings showing its use. All this is publicity and its great value is fully recognized.

Some time ago we were advised that a proper appraisement of our slogan's value would be $1,000,000, but it is safe to say now that it is worth to us a great deal more. It should be remembered that this great asset would speedily fade away if the slogan were allowed to fall into disuse. Only by using it continually can we maintain its value and to insure this we must have the money to carry along our campaign.



Ca You Afford It?

All things considered, it is little we

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

EARLY START FOR EASTER.

Long beforehand the florist makes his preparation to handle Easter business when the rush comes. But does he make sufficient attempt to book orders before the few heavy days of Easter buying? Inducing the public to make an early start for Easter is as important a way of lightening the burden when the day at last arrives as are the arrangements which the florist makes in his store to handle the great number of orders. While the latter, however, is a matter of course, the former is not generally done.

Some florists have made it a practice each year to advertise for Easter orders two or three weeks before that day and have booked many orders from persons who recognize the wisdom of doing their shopping early. The retailer can make quotations on plants, so as to present a definite offer to the purchaser.

Particular effort to get telegraph delivery orders beforehand meets with good response. The results obtained are well worth the work to get them. The florist is enabled often to transmit his orders by mail, thus avoiding the errors so frequent in telegrams relayed at a rush time. And persons who send flowers to parents at the old home or to other relatives or to friends at Easter time desire infallible service. The florist also has more time to explain the nature of telegraph service to patrons who have not used it before if they make their inquiries before the final period of rush and hurry. This feature of the Easter holiday sales is worth pushing strongly this season. Each succeeding holiday in the last two years has seen a larger and larger proportion of wire orders. The number for this Easter is expected to be larger than ever.

The retailer who makes frequent changes of window displays will find it profitable to use a telegraph idea two weeks before Easter, changing to one of local nature as the holiday approaches perhaps. Other suggestions will present themselves to individual florists. The holiday sales will reach a big total. By getting an early start you may develop them as fully as possible with less strain and hurry.

ARE YOUR PATRONS IRISH?

Among the holidays that make sales for the florist, St. Patrick's day does not rank among the highest. It is, however, the occasion of considerable business, and the retailer is able to add to next week's total by making some effort for that day. Various opinions are held as to the artistic value of green-dyed flowers in the florist's shop. Aside from that item, there are the opportunities that shamrock plants and the various fanciful containers for them afford. These are not the only plants that can be sold for this day. Others may be decorated with green so as to be readily salable to Hibernian celebrants.

On this occasion, as on others, the florist reaps according as he sows. A window display to attract the passers' eyes and preparations beforehand to care for the orders are bound to result in increased sales March 17. At the present time, when flowers are abundant, any occasion for the florist to push sales should be welcomed and utilized. The retailer who makes extra effort, not only at the big holidays, but also as often as opportunity seems to offer in between, runs up a big yearly total. The small increases all along the line make an exceedingly respectable aggregate. St. Patrick's day offers the chance to get a little extra.

A MATTER OF ARRANGEMENT.

To display all there is to be displayed, to show all to good advantage, and yet to avoid an appearance of crowding too much into small space, is a problem which confronts many a florist. Many solve it after much trial and tribulation, but not all. One firm which has done so is the American Flower Shop, at Birmingham, Ala., which, one would say after a study of the illustration on this page, had plenty on display. Still there is an air of spaciousness about the store which gives comfort to visiting purchasers of flowers. The American Flower Shop has solved other problems of the trade and is doing an excellent business this season.

PIN HEADS TO MATCH BOUQUET.

The society dame and damsel long since demanded shoe uppers and spats to match their suits and dresses; now they go further and must have bouquet pins the heads of which match the colors of the flowers. A violet corsage bouquet must be pinned with a violet-headed pin, etc.

Up-to-the-minute florists have yielded to the vogue; possibly they have encouraged it. The fad may give them a slight edge on competitors seeking the ultra-fashionable trade.

The corsage pins have glass heads, made colorless originally and dipped into enamel of any color desired. The enamel is baked on. The pins cost little and the florist can furnish one with each bouquet without wrecking his profit on the flowers.

RHYMES THAT REINFORCE.

Greetings to Go with Gifts.

The designer of floral decorations and pieces, as well as the man who makes them up, may think of his work as the chief art of the trade. But there are important allied arts, which seldom receive due attention or employment. Of these, the art of the poet, though perhaps least often found, is most easily used. As W. J. Olds, of Union City, Pa., remarks, "In encouraging our friends to 'Say It with Flowers,' it may be helpful occasionally to supply along with the flowers some little interpretation of their possible message. With some adaptation of the message to the flower and the occasion, the value and appreciation of the gift may oftentimes be greatly enhanced.''

Following out this idea, Mr. Olds has written and copyrighted several short poems, some called forth by special occasions and others suitable for a variety of uses. In one case, a Sunday school class wished to send a number of valentines to its sick members; a pot of daffodils, with appropriate verses entitled, ''The Message of the Daffodils,'' proved a quite adequate valentine. Another greeting in rhyme was sent with a pot of primroses at Christmas time to each member of a Bible class. Somewhat more timely just at present is the following welcome to spring:

THE CALL OF THE DAFFODILS.

(Copyrighted by W. J. Olds.)

Here's a little pot of gold
We're sending you,
Telling that the winter cold
Will soon be through.
Daffies, yellow as the sun,
Speak of brighter days to come;
Jack Frost's reign will soon be done.
Who will rue?

When the earth is bare and brown,
Like a stone,
And all nature wears a frown,
Joy has flown;
Ah! How welcome! From the mold,
Daffy, with her green and gold,
Comes, like fairy queen of old,
With her crown.

She, with scepter in her hand,
Calls to spring;
Gently waves her magic wand,
Bluebirds sing.
So shall care and pain depart,
Loose their shackles from the heart,
Hope's sweet flowers in verdure start,
Swift of wing.

Sorrow's sway will soon be o'er,
With its pain;
Grief will bind our hearts no more
With his chain.
As the winter yields to spring
And the chrysalis finds wing,
So with joy our hearts shall sing
Yet again.

The Market.

Last week the wholesale cut flower market favored the retailer almost daily, as stock of any seasonable sort was in good supply and prices on big lots were lower than in the previous week. The slump is, of course, charged to the Lenten season and the retailers say that there is little activity in work for social affairs, but transient trade with the downtown florists has been brisk and plenty of funeral work has helped to keep them quite busy.

Shipping trade in the wholesale district has been excellent all through this season and many orders have already been booked for Easter.

Roses have been in good supply and of the best quality. Some of the local growers have sent in extra select stock in Premier, Russell, Ophelia, Milady, Columbia and Killarney. Carnations, too, are in adequate supply for all demands, with prices ranging from $4 to $8 per hundred and running somewhat lower for lots of 1,000 to 5,000.

Sweet peas are fast coming into their own and great quantities are seen daily at the wholesale markets; the long fancy ones hold their own in price, but shorts are sold cheap in lots. Violets are not going out so fast as the wholesaler would like them to go and the market had plenty of excellent stock on sale every day.

NOTHING TO SELL—
JUST A JUGGLER

PENN, of Boston, says he "has nothing to sell." Still you and I know his sales are in the hundred thousands.

BROWN, of Gasser's, Cleveland, says: "We have nothing to sell." Still, on Saturdays, it's no uncommon thing for them to sell a thousand or fifteen hundred of their special boxes.

DANKER, of Albany, says he "has nothing to sell." But he has a wonderful little shop on Maiden Lane that's always as busy as a bee hive.

What, then, are these bank-roll fellers trying to do —kid us?

Or are they sleight of hand artists, who take rabbits out of silk hats, or pick twenty-dollar gold pieces from the end of folks' noses?

No, they are neither or nor.

Then, what are they? And what do they mean by such talk?

I would consider it a real favor if you will write me your opinion.

You can depend on my treating it in strictest confidence.

Kindly address it to me, marked personal. Otherwise Jimmy the Hibernian Hybrid might get it.

In bulbous stock, the market has been loaded up all the week with a good supply of tulips, Paper Whites, jonquils, freesias and Von Sions. Extra good valley is quoted at $8 per hundred and cattleyas sell at $6 per dozen.

There is little change in the supply of greens, as the market had an excellent supply of asparagus, smilax, adiantum and galax. Flat ferns are exceedingly scarce and for a few days during the latter part of last week none were to be had at any of the wholesale markets.

County Growers' Meeting.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting Wednesday, March 3, at the home of Philip Goebel, Jr., in Kirkwood.

"The Cultivation of Orchids" was the subject introduced by David Miller and Adam Huber, both of whom are connected with the Missouri Botanical Garden, where they are caretakers of one of the largest and finest collections of orchids in the country; they were thus well fitted to lead the discussion on this subject.

All committees concerned with the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners reported that complete arrangements had been made.

L. Baumann and Hugo Schaff have been requested to prepare papers for the next meeting of the local association, which will take place April 7.

the Garden Club of St. Louis, says that any person, whether an amateur, professional or commercial grower, is eligible to stage exhibits at the spring flower show if the exhibitor lives within twenty-five miles of St. Louis, as all three classes have been well taken care of in premiums. The show will take place May 15 and 16 at the Missouri Botanical Garden and no admission fee will be charged. It is planned to make the show an annual affair. Mrs. E. J. Walsh, 4349 Westminster place, will supply any entry application blanks that are needed. The premium list will be out next week.

The St. Louis Florists' Club met Thursday afternoon, March 11, at the headquarters of the publicity committee on the second floor of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. At the officers' meeting held March 4 an interesting program was planned for the meeting.

The Retail Florists' Association met Monday, March 8, at the Mission Inn. To increase the attendance at the meeting, Secretary Ruff had sent out strong notices, announcing that the annual election of officers would take place at that time.

ask. We have been going along on the volunteer system of contribution, which many of our stanchest supporters declare to be a wrong procedure. But we did hope and hope still that it will serve our purpose. We never for one moment thought that a wide-awake florist would be a slacker, but if we are to judge from our returns so far, there is a big army of slackers and we are quite sure that the majority of those in this army do not really want to be there. Either they do not understand our campaign, or they are negligently putting off the writing of a check, with the thought that any time will do. They are wrong. We need their support now, right at this time. Our publicity committee has struggled along in the face of great difficulties for the want of money, ready money, to work with. They have often incurred liabilities in anticipation of being able to meet them from our collections and have come through, as a member of the committee expresses it, "by the skin of their teeth." All this anxiety, you, Messrs. Nonsubscribers, can relieve or prevent. This committee is working for you, for your interests, for your prosperity. Will you not pay their way, at least in the proportion that you would pay for a trifling service, which is all they ask. Your share of the expense is within your own estimate. You can make it $5 if you please, or as much more as you wish. If you only do a $5,000 business, a $5 contribution would amount to just one-tenth of one per cent. Can you afford it? Certainly you can; it is hardly the cost of a box of cigars.

The publicity campaign is conceded to be the best thing ever promoted in the interests of florists. Support it and you support your own enterprise.

The Market.

A greater abundance of stock was seen on the market last week than at any other time this year. The demand has been good and the heavy cuts of sweet peas and spring flowers have kept the market filled up, affecting prices in all lines.

The large supply of plants and bulbous stock in boxes and pans has cut in on the flower sales to a considerable extent. Prices are maintained fairly well in proportion to the stock on the market and are above the low levels of former years. The public is being advised through publicity of the increased supply and the regular customers are seen more often in the stores. The window displays are unusually attractive in all the establishments and cannot but tempt prospective buyers.

Club Meeting.

The club meeting was held Thursday evening, March 4. There was a good attendance and ten new members were admitted. It was flower show night and fine lots of roses, carnations, sweet peas and calendulas were shown by the members. The entertainment committee is arranging a bowling party for all the members at an early date.

Various Notes.

H. Locker & Sons are sending in some fine sweet peas in a large variety of colors.

E. Haasch has an exceptionally good lot of fine cinerarias ready for the market now.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. and the C. C. Pollworth Co. are supplying most of the bulbous stock in pots and boxes to the trade. Both of these firms have a good supply of lilies, hydrangeas and rose plants in good shape for Easter.

C. C. Pollworth has gone to New York to attend the international flower show and, incidentally, a meeting of the national publicity committee.

Walter Zimmermann's car is in the shop and he is now walking.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

For the week commencing March 1, the market was in better condition than it has been all winter. Stock of all kinds was to be had in any quantity desired. There were several reasons responsible for this; the supply has increased, the death rate in the city has dropped back to about normal and the Lenten season would seem to be more strictly observed than in former years. There is not the same amount of flowers being used for entertainment purposes as in former years. The demand has slackened up considerably and this, with the increased supply, makes it possible to get what is wanted and get it when it is wanted.

One point about the market that is worthy of note is the improved quality of stock. Roses are especially fine; some of the extras that are to be seen look as though they were grown for show purposes. Carnations are the finest ever seen in this market and the recent bright weather has brought a large supply. Sweet peas are in big supply and many of the orchid-flowering varieties are much like their namesake. Violets were so plentiful last week that some found their way into the hands of the street men. What has been the largest factor in relieving the market, however, has been the influx of bulbous stock. This is now arriving in fine quality and good supply. Easter lilies are to be had in fair quantities. If conditions remain as at present, there should be a fair supply of cut stock for Easter.

Various Notes.

Herman Cook, of John Cook's, last week stated that they were as busy this year as they had ever been during Lent, but their work had been different from that of previous years, being principally funeral work and benches and boxes for hospitals. He said that all work for entertainments had dropped off noticeably. Mr. Cook was laid up for two weeks with the flu. His father has missed his usual trip to Florida this year and he also was laid up, but in spite of his advanced years he is as well as ever again and will soon be sitting on that porch some of us associate him with, looking at the trees about his lawn, which he planted in his young manhood and today considers a part of his family. Mrs. Cook, who has been ill for a long time, does not improve as rapidly as her family wish, but a man with the patience to hybridize such roses as Mrs. John Cook, My Maryland, and others, is quick to note the slightest improvement and everyone hopes she may be able to accompany our old friend to Florida again next winter.

hospitals, etc. There has not been the usual amount of work that might be charged to entertainments. Mr. Feast, who is one of the closest observers of conditions, is of the opinion that this is due to the new classes that are now buying flowers.

Isaac H. Moss left Wednesday, March 3, for a two weeks' trip to Florida. He took this means to have a good rest and will return about the middle of March to meet any emergency that may arise at Easter.

John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., returned to his position last week and, while he is a little weak yet, he is able to supervise. He is like the heads of all floral establishments; no matter how good a staff they may have under them, they feel that if they are not there on the job things will not go right. Mrs. Perry, who was extremely ill, is now able to sit up some each day.

The Baltimore florists who were sick are fast recovering and everyone is looking forward to a record-breaking Easter. Tate.

TORONTO, ONTARIO.

The Market.

The florists of Toronto are still doing a big business, but after the rush and heavy demands for the last three months, the present trade seems like a lull after a storm and before another one, Easter.

Flowers are becoming more plentiful. The reduction in the demand, due to the stamping out of the flu epidemic, and the larger supplies of the growers, due to the fine weather of the last week, have made it easier for the florists to secure stocks of flowers.

Although stocks are more plentiful, there are no changes in prices and it looks as if there would be stiff prices for Easter. Lilies for Easter will cost the retailer from 20 to 25 cents a bloom, so that there will be no cheap sales of lilies this Easter. Roses and other flowers usually plentiful as spring comes, such as daffodils, violets and tulips, are shown in profusion in the florists' windows.

Proposed Botanical Garden.

The most important recent happening of interest to florists was the meeting in connection with the establishment of a botanical garden in Toronto. The various florists' horticultural and garden associations of Ontario were represented at a meeting in Toronto, February 28. Over 150 were present, showing a great interest in the starting of a garden.

In the speeches it was pointed out that with the advent of the horticultural branch of the university, Canada will commence to train her own gardeners, horticulturists, etc., and open up a new profession to Canadian girls and boys. From the scientific standpoint the scheme would be invaluable. Plant breeding, disease growth and the study of the structure of flowers, plants and shrubs could be carried on.

A letter from Hon. Manning Doherty, minister of agriculture, stated that his department would consider some form of assistance towards the proposed scheme.

The meeting showed its interest in the proposed scheme by promising to support it in the following resolution:

That this convention put itself on record as in full accord with the university committee's project for the establishment of a botanical garden and, further, stand ready to coöperate with this committee in such ways as it suggests.

Various Notes.

During the week there has been a fine exhibition of flowers at the greenhouses

The Market.

The market is quiet and practically all varieties of cut flowers and plants have dropped back to normal prices. Roses and carnations are more plentiful, while the wholesale stores are glutted with all kinds of bulbous stock, which, under normal conditions, should have arrived earlier in the season.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilkinson Elliott have gone to Atlantic City for a several weeks' sojourn at the Hotel Lelande. Mr. Elliott is taking advantage of this occasion to make up his new bulb catalogue. The catalogue will be ready for distribution about April 15. The trip was delayed for a short time by the illness of the two daughters, who are now well again.

Mrs. E. A. Williams is having a series of most attractive window displays, arranged to harmonize with the Lenten season. Thursday, March 4, the place of honor was occupied with large bowls of assorted early spring flowers, the ensemble being distinctive for graceful grouping and exquisite color blending. An effective background was formed by tall vases and jars of imported and Fulper pottery filled with cat-tails, to Ralph F. Pinner, director of the landscape department of the A. W. Smith Co.

Roderick Campbell, of the A. W. Smith Co., has recently been engaged in looking after prospective work in and around Oil City, Titusville, Bradford and Kane, Pa. This firm has just closed a contract with the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. for planting five town sites in Washington county, as well as several pruning contracts for large farms and fruit orchards. The early spring work will also include Akron and Canton, O., and Charleston and Huntington, W. Va. Miss E. H. Brookhart has been added to the sales staff.

Harry P. Langhans, who has been confined to his home on Milroy street for the last two weeks with an attack of grip, is convalescing.

C. Colyn, of Voorhout, Holland, has entered suit in the Allegheny county court against Theodore Verscharen, of 711 Carbon street, for the alleged rejection of a consignment of bulbs amounting to $1,500 or $1,600, in 1918.

George Simpkins, of Punxsutawney, Pa., who had an operation for appendicitis some time ago, is again on the job as traveling salesman for Scobie & Parker Co. John Fugh, another outside man for the same organization, has returned to the store for the busy season.

March 1, Freeland & Jones opened their new store on the triangle corner of Liberty, Diamond and Ferry streets, with a full line of nursery stock of ex-

You need Bailey's books

Get the knowledge you need, hints and practical suggestions that will help in your work, by buying Bailey's new "Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture"—the florists' 6-volume library. 4,000 engravings, 96 full-page cuts, fine color work.

Take advantage of the present easy payment plan of $3.00 per month, or send $36.00 for the complete set of six volumes. This is the best book buy any florist could make—an investment that will pay a life-time of dividends.

THE WILLIAM MURPHY COMPANY
WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORISTS

Largest Shippers of Home-Grown Cut Flowers in the Cincinnati Market

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Stock is plentiful to the point of a surplus and prices are much lower. Demand is stronger and more steady. As usual in Lent, there are no big entertainments that call for decorations, but there are a few small dinners and luncheons each week and the regular buying of flowers has strengthened business to a great extent.

Various Notes.

L. R. Bohannon, of Chicago, was in the city last week.

All the growers report the Easter lily crop in fine condition and a good supply of blooms. Prices will be higher than in former years.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had an attractive window of spring plants and baskets, Thursday and Friday, March 4 and 5, with price cards prominently displayed. Other days they had cut flowers and different stock with prices displayed. Mr. Carter said it was in the nature of an educational campaign to make the public understand that flowers were cheaper than they had been and to encourage buying. Prospective buyers would have an idea of what they could obtain for a certain amount before they entered the store.

Among the recent visitors in the city were Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, Mo., and Roy Hall, of the Kirkwood Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia.

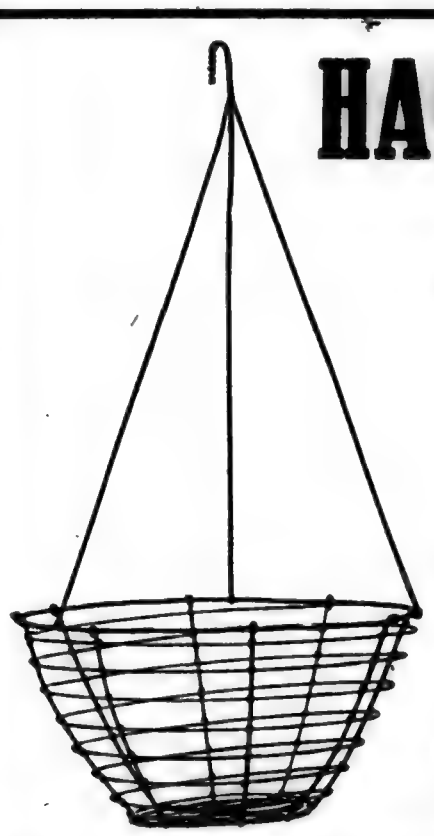
Two of the department stores had sales of carnations, Saturday, March 6. The George B. Peck Dry Goods Co. sold them for 69 cents per dozen and the Jones store for 50 cents per dozen. They were all home-grown stock.

E. A. Humfeld is recovering from the flu and has been at the store a part of two days after a week at home. Like the man who said that falling a long distance wasn't anything, but hitting the ground was what hurt, Mr. Humfeld says having the flu is nothing, but getting strong after it is what counts.

Instead of objecting to department store flower sales, E. A. Humfeld believes they are a good thing for florists, because they direct attention to the buying of flowers and to the fact that prices are such that almost everyone can afford to buy. Those who buy a dozen carnations or a bunch of violets at these sales will be more apt to patronize a florist often in the future if they find flowers within their means. The sale may be the means of forming a habit and they will tell their friends and thus be unconscious advertisers themselves, Mr. Humfeld thinks.

The Muehlebach Flower Shop had some fancy Premier roses last week and some lilac plants that attracted attention. The trade in novelties and art material is increasing steadily.

The furious wind Wednesday night, March 3, caused J. G. Eggleston to stay up all night and watch his houses, as his range is located on a high point in Rosedale. One of his carnation houses bent slightly at one end, but he braced it with iron pipes so that it held.



Samuel Murray's store is closed tight on Sunday, no one being on duty at any time through the day. There is a late delivery Saturday night, when all orders are taken care of for Sunday, and Mr. Murray says he has not had a single complaint since putting the new plan in operation. He has bought another truck, giving him two large delivery cars of his own. He rents some smaller cars for delivery purposes the year around. Mr. Murray says February was the best month in the more than thirty years he has been in business. March thus far has been good, too.

Mrs. E. H. Hedges had a brisk business all week and, like the other florists, enjoyed turning out orders when there was enough stock to work with.

W. E. Tredup has returned from a trip through Kansas. He found the trade preparing for a heavy spring business and everybody feeling satisfied with the winter's returns.

After a five weeks' siege of influenza, A. Newell is well again and is attending to business almost the entire time every day.

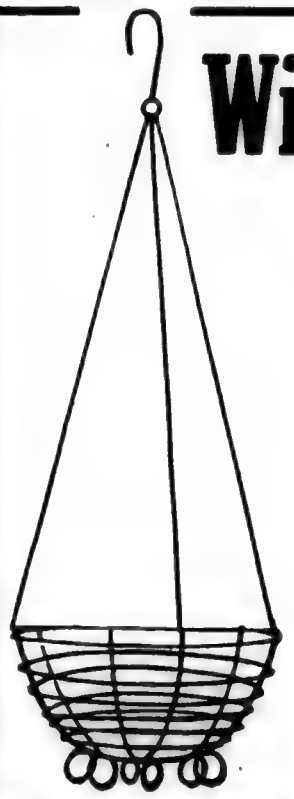
house on Longview Farm is well under way and part of the material for building is on hand. This house will be used for roses and most of the stock has been shipped.

The daily cut of sweet peas at the S. Bryson Ayres greenhouses is about 15,000. He is letting the finest varieties go to seed. His reputation for sweet peas has become so firmly established that he is having large demands for seeds from all parts of the country.

Since the neighborhood around Thirty-first street and Troost avenue has become such a good business center, the merchants there have formed a south side improvement association. The Humfeld-Orear Floral Co. and J. Austin are members of the association.



Sunday closing is no new feature for the Humfeld-Orear Floral Co. The store has never been open on Sunday. Mr. Orear says that instead of losing business, he has always gained by this rule.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has been sending in some good red roses the last few days and will soon have a good crop of these. The company is also sending in some choice calla lilies.

Business continues good with A. F. Barbe, funeral work predominating. Spring work is taking much of his attention and he has enough Easter lilies to take care of his trade.

Nelson Jarrett finds a shortage of geraniums and a few other plants. He is busy with bedding stock and plants for Easter. He says that he believes this will be one of the best seasons the florists have ever had.

No one enjoys Sunday closing more than Miss L. E. Boggess, who has worked seven days a week for eight years. She says she hopes the florists will never open on Sunday again, except for the big holidays, and it is safe to say they never will.

William Foith is wholesaling a large stock of potted cinerarias and also selling some at retail. He considers himself especially fortunate in disposing of one of the heaviest crops of carnations he ever had before prices dropped. He has more coming on, but not half the supply that he had. He also has a large number of snapdragons and sweet peas.

J. E. K.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

Bad weather last week held the cut stock back, but the flu has almost entirely disappeared and the demand for funeral flowers has been light. The supply of roses is still short of the demand and prices still hold up. Carnations and sweet peas are more plentiful and are moving well, carnations selling from $5 to $8 per hundred and sweet peas at $2 per hundred. Daffodils and tulips are at their best, the stock being extra good. Freesias are still arriving in large amounts, but the stock is not so good as it has been.

Various Notes.

Charles Edgar and wife, who have been traveling for the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., were in the city three or four days last week. Mr. Edgar has visited most of the growers in the intermountain country and says that Easter stock everywhere is looking fine.

David Brown, manager of the Quality Floral Shop, Inc., at Provo, Utah, visited the trade last week. G. J. B.

CONTINUOUSLY, for over ten years, we have specialized in the manufacture of high grade Florists' Boxes which have been most satisfactory in quality and price.

LARGE or small shipments from stock sizes in Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Patent Coated or Favorite Manila grades receive prompt attention.

IN addition we have ample facilities to print in plain inks or bronzes, to stripe, or emboss just what you require, at a reasonable extra charge.

MOST of the leading florists, those who desire a box in keeping with the high quality of their flowers, are numbered among our satisfied customers.

ALL conditions considered, we believe we have, fortunately, had reasonably good deliveries from our mills to take care of your requirements.

XTRA! Have you placed your order for Easter requirements? We are prepared to serve you, in large or small quantities, to make shipment when desired.

The Market.

Prices have dropped back to normal and even below that mark in this vicinity. There is plenty of stock on hand and indications are that there will be plenty for the rest of the season to meet the demands. Some good calla lilies are arriving on the market, as are also sweet peas, roses and bulbous stock.

The Lenten season has placed a damper on business to a considerable extent, as is nearly always the case.

Nursery stock appears to be short and not nearly enough to meet the demand. Indications point to a severe shortage in the spring, especially in ornamentals.

—why Florists prefer BULIS boxes

BECAUSE of their sturdy construction, Bulis corrugated Fiberboard Boxes invariably deliver flowers in perfect condition.

The patent metal corners eliminate the necessity of glue or tools. Easily put together; they snap in place like a glove and never let go.

Bulis Boxes in all sizes comply with the respective rulings and requirements of Parcel Post and Express and are the safest way to send flowers by either method.

Shipped flat, knocked down, in bundles of 25, which is the minimum order.

House cafe. The members and visitors numbered about thirty-five and all enjoyed the fine dinner served. The program consisted of a paper on landscape gardening by C. N. Ruedlinger, a paper on the history of the tulip by Le Roy Cady, and some humorous impersonations by a reader.

A few matters of business were taken up and it was decided to invite the ladies to the next meeting. This meeting was an open one and a large number of employees were present. It is the desire of the officers of this association that everyone in the trade become affiliated with it and that, as a consequence, better meetings will be held.

ORCHIDS BY AUTOMOBILE.

"Orchids are a rarity, and would be so in San Francisco were they not brought into the city every morning by motor trucks," was the opening of a lengthy illustrated article in the San Francisco Examiner, Sunday, February 29, telling of the orchid houses of Ferrari Bros., near Potrero. It went on to say: "Amil, Peter and Victor Ferrari, of San Francisco, are, and have been for over thirty years, the growers, propagators and fanciers of species discovered by horticulturists who have gone to lands less known than any essayed before. They are the breeders of orchids in wide, glass-hidden corrals near Potrero.

"Acres are concealed by whitewashed panes, and under them, at a temperature of 90 degrees, a myriad of exotic plants are languishing in special comfort.

"'One thousand of these, of my choicest orchids, were ordered for the funeral of Charles Penoyer, in Burlingame last week,' said Victor Ferrari. 'Those two White trucks standing against the greenhouse were never so busy before. From morning to night on the day before delivery we kept them burning the roads between here and the city shop of Podesta & Baldocchi, where they were relayed in floral pieces to the bier of the dead lumber king.'

"'But,' I interrupted, 'orchids are worth $1.50 apiece, are they not?'

"'Some are worth $40 apiece,' this bland florist answered. 'But then, lumber kings are rich, and they have rich friends,' he added quietly. 'Besides, there is no bloom that grows better fitted to the purpose of funerals than the orchid.'

"Coming out of the crystal crypts wherein these queens abided, we passed another White 3½-ton truck, from which several Italians were unloading large boxes of Nico-fume liquid, a nicotine solution for florists and as yet unlimited in supply by the anti-tobacconists.

"'We call it Black-forty,' explained Victor Ferrari, 'which means a forty per cent strength of pure nicotine. It is used to kill aphis bugs; it is a powerful insecticide, and where it goes is no place for jitneys. You see,' he added, caressing the hood of his White, 'we need speed in our deliveries, and bulk and power. Five trucks are used in this business; three for hauling manure and two for hauling flowers. The two flower trucks are Whites.'"

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While the retailers report that business is keeping up well, there has been a distinct falling off in the shipping. One reason for this is, doubtless, the wet weather of last week, which made it almost impossible to get good shipping stock of carnations, and these are piling up around the wholesale houses. There was no shortage in roses last week, the supply being just about enough to go around. Prospects for Easter are for a good crop and the quality should be excellent.

Dutch and Spanish irises make a fine show and bring good prices. Daffodils are more plentiful and have dropped a little, but Dutch hyacinths keep up in price. All kinds of small spring flowers continue scarce. Orchids are a little more plentiful and some fine blooms of Cattleya Schroederæ have appeared. Valley is arriving in small lots of good quality. Cecile Brunner is scarce and sweet peas are more or less damaged by the rains.

At the end of last week the weather had greatly improved and the supply of stock is expected to increase greatly.

My ad in The Review (it was 2-inches single column and ran 4 weeks – Ed.) has brought all the business I can attend to for some time, but you may be sure you will hear from me again.— H. W. Gooch, Bay City, Oregon, March 1, 1920.

the removal to a larger store on Hill street. He was recently manager of the floral department of Howard & Smith.

A $150 pall for a funeral at 8:30 a. m., March 2, made A. F. Borden and F. Reymond, of the Redondo Floral Co., join the ranks of the real early risers.

A new delivery car is being put in service by Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson. Albert Goldenson says business is keeping up well.

Frank Lichtenberg, just returned from a trip to San Francisco, speaks highly of the class of roses and other stock being handled by the northern men.

The Alexandria Florist reports fine business. George Eischen and Andrew Bruce are both on Mr. Baron's force now.

O. C. Saake is turning out some fine funeral work.

E. Vogel, of Chicago, with his wife and small son, arrived in the city last week. Mr. Vogel says that he intends to go into business in this city. This is his second visit.

A scarcity of daffodils and hyacinths at the store of George J. Hall & Co. one day last week brought out the information that Charles Brazee, of Wilmington, and some of his growers were sick with daffodil poisoning. Mr. Brazee suffered severely from this trouble last year during the daffodil season.

The Market.

Flowers of all varieties are becoming more plentiful and last week found the market in good condition. Roses are cheaper, although the demand is keeping the price up in good shape. Most of the nurseries on the peninsula and across the bay are cutting the new rose crop and some fine blooms are arriving in the market. Russell, Ophelia and Columbia are in the majority, although a few white roses are also being cut, the first in any quantity this year.

Sweet peas are abundant for this season of the year and retailers report a good sale of them. No outdoor-grown peas are in yet, except in small quantities where one or two small growers send in a limited quantity.

The supply of daffodils is still a little short, but the new crop is expected soon. Growers who have reported on the second crop say that they are well pleased with the looks of it, in spite of the lack of rains. Violets, too, are keeping up well, but it has been necessary to irrigate the violet fields practically during the entire season. A rainfall of consequence came the early part of the week and was of great assistance to nurserymen and seed growers. Outdoor flowers, marigolds, cornflowers and hardy spring blooms will get a better start now, although the season for outdoor stock is late.

Fruit blossoms are in fine condition and many of them are being used this year. Not only have quantities been sold to local florists' establishments, but a number of long-distance shipments have been made of the green buds and reports as to their condition upon arrival at their destination have been satisfactory.

Orchids continue plentiful and gardenias are improving, both in quality and quantity.

Various Notes.

H. E. Hallawell, of the Hallawell Seed Co., states that in spite of the dry weather, business has been unusually good in all branches. Seeds are in strong demand and seedlings are being purchased in hopes of wet weather. The rain of last week will encourage heavier buying of this stock. Mr. Hallawell said that his nursery stock, rose bushes, fruit trees and ornamental shrubs have been about cleaned up.

The retail store of C. C. Morse & Co. reports an excellent volume of business. In addition to a large sale of nursery stock and seedlings, T. C. Holmes, manager of the Market street store, states that garden equipment is selling readily now. The Holmes powder blower, a dry insecticide distributor invented by Mr. Holmes, is receiving much favorable attention from growers. It is particularly adaptable for the use of the greenhouse worker or gardener in small acreage work, where the large power-driven sprays are impracticable.

Shippers state that business is holding up well. J. A. Axell states that he is happy to see the rose market in better condition, thereby enabling him to fill his orders in better shape. Mr. Axell states that he has handled exceptionally large quantities of freesias this season and has been fortunate in securing a number of practically exclusive varieties and has been shipping them with successful results.

A. J. Gooch reports his shipping business all that could be desired, taking into consideration the condition of stock. Mr. Gooch has extensive orders for greens and spring foliage and has shipped large quantities of acacia to the north. Greens have been scarce in this section during the entire season and all orders have been filled with more or less difficulty.

Mr. Enomoto, of Enomoto & Co., is now able to ship a generous supply of roses. The Enomoto nurseries are cutting some fine Russell and Ophelia. The spring flower demand is holding up well and he expects to close an exceptionally fine season with this stock.

Domoto Bros. are getting ready for Easter with a large stock of potted lilies, rhododendrons, etc. Mr. Domoto says he expects a big demand for stock of this kind for the Easter season and is planning to supply his trade from a varied selection of potted stock.

The rose crop of the E. W. McLellan Co. is in excellent condition. Henry Avansino says that his entire force is busy with shipments of roses. Other stock, too, is in good demand and the Burlingame nurseries have promised a big cut of the second-crop daffodils in the near future.

Retail establishments report considerable funeral work. The recent funeral of Chauncey Penoyer, in San Mateo, Cal., called for the use of many hundreds of dollars' worth of orchids, most of which were supplied from the Ferrari stock.

Joseph's Shop, on Grant avenue, reports much table decoration along with the regular run of work. The windows of this shop are always attractive, but for the last few weeks have been particularly beautiful with spring flowers and cut pansies.

Podesta & Baldocchi's baskets have attracted much attention recently. The arrangement of spring flowers has been unusually artistic, while their orchid display has been noticeable for its variety of blooms. M. M.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

The cut flower supply is larger than it has been for some time. Among the spring flowers are daffodils, tulips, freesias, Paper Whites and pansies. There are now enough roses to fill all orders and the carnation supply has also increased. Fine snapdragons are to be had. Sweet peas, callas and Easter lilies are all in abundant supply. Among the other flowers that are being displayed are mignonette, violets, calendulas, Roman hyacinths and forsythias. Not only is there an increased supply, but, because social activities have been fewer in number in Lent, there have been fewer demands for flowers for decorations, etc., and the prices have fallen to some extent. They are now lower than they have been since before Christmas. Some of the local florists are only asking $2 per dozen for carnations and from $5 to $7 per dozen for roses.

Some of the florists believe that the people who refused to pay the high rates for cut flowers and took plants in preference, because they believed the plants would make a better showing for the amount they wished to spend, will now buy more cut flowers.

There is a pleasing variety of potted plants to be had. Among them are cinerarias, daffodils, tulips, begonias, hyacinths and cyclamens.

With the exception of funeral work, for which there has been a big demand, owing to the large number of deaths which occurred during the influenza epidemic, business has been quiet during the last few weeks. We had a severe snow storm March 6, which completely blocked traffic. All business was halted, as no customers were out on such a stormy day. It was unfortunate that the storm should have occurred on Saturday, as it is one of the biggest days in the week.

Various Notes.

The Arcade Flower Shop furnished the flowers for a wedding recently. It reports that there has been a big demand for funeral designs and also for cut flowers for the sick.

Robert Hawkins has been rushed with funeral work. He says that flowers are cheaper than they have been for some time and much more plentiful.

James Horan & Son had a number of large pieces for the funeral of William B. Wheeler. As Mr. Wheeler was a prominent man, the floral tributes were large and numerous. Stephen Horan is spending a two weeks' vacation with a party of friends in the south. He is at present in Pinehurst, N. C.

John Reck & Son report that they will have an abundant supply of Easter lilies for their Easter trade. Their bulbous stock is coming along nicely. They made a pall of violets for the Wheeler funeral which covered the entire casket. I. L. B.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

LEONARD VAUGHAN was 40 March 8.

THE acreage for peas and beans in 1920 has cost more than ever before.

WHAT became of all the castor beans from those 100,000 government acres?

LOW prices for seeds unquestionably mean a reduction in acreage and then a small crop year means aviating values.

HEAVY rains have fallen in southern California. In the vicinity of Los Angeles damage was done to many crops.

NEWS of the death of F. W. Brugger-hof, head of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, appears in this week's obituary column.

J. KEUR, of C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, is making his twenty-first business tour to the United States, but it is his first trip here since 1914.

THE J. W. Jung Seed Co., at Randolph, Wis., has purchased a 3-story building, 50x100 feet, with basement, and will completely remodel it, installing all the latest labor-saving devices. It is expected to be ready for occupancy about May 1.

IT is proving no small task to fill the mail orders this season. The class of help ordinarily employed for this work, in the cities at least, is more scarce than at any previous time and neither punctuality nor industry is so general as the demand for high wages.

THE wave of wintry weather which passed across the country from west to east in the first week of March cut down the flow of mail orders, which was beginning to assume flood proportions. It gave everyone a generally needed chance to catch up.

FRANCE has available for export 881,840 pounds of sugar beet seed, according to a French Chambre Syndicale, composed of sugar beet seed growers and formed for the purpose of increasing the production of selected seed. The seal of the association is placed on every bag of seed regarded as selected.

MEREDITH DOWNS FREE SEEDS.

The new secretary of agriculture has won the approval of the seed trade by opposing the congressional distribution of free seeds. On Secretary Meredith's recommendation, the Senate agricultural committee voted March 2 to eliminate from the annual agricultural appropriation the $240,000 voted by the House to continue the time-hallowed custom of distributing free seeds to congressmen's constituents.

LABOR AFFECTS SEED SALES.

Replies that have been received from inquiries sent by the Bureau of Markets of the Department of Agriculture to a number of representative retail vegetable seed dealers indicate that the quantity of vegetable seed sold to market gardeners so far this season is equal to or greater than last year. Exceptions are shown in the case of reports from a few industrial centers, principally in the east, where the quantity sold to market gardeners is estimated to be ten to thirty per cent less than last year because of the shortage of labor on truck farms. Sales last year, however, were not equal to those of a normal pre-war year and sales this year are reported to be ten to forty-five per cent less than for a pre-war year, with the exception of a few districts in some of the northwestern, western and southwestern states.

On the whole, the sales to home gardeners this year seem to be larger than those of last year and of a normal pre-war year, ranging from a five per cent increase in some sections to fifty per cent in others.

In some of the northern states little vegetable seed has been sold to date, either to market or home gardeners. This is not to be taken as an indication of a falling off in sales, because normally the majority of sales are made by seedsmen in those states later in the season.

There is no uniform increase or decrease in sales reported for any special kind or kinds of vegetable seed. The decrease in sales to market gardeners, however, is restricted principally to seed of those crops which require the most hand labor in harvesting and preparing for market.

SALES CONTRACTS.

A Lesson in Commercial Law.

Every person whose daily business affairs involve the formation of contracts in the sale or purchase of goods should have a clear idea of the fundamental rules of law governing such agreements. Stumbling through business negotiations without knowledge of one's legal rights and the legal effect of what is being done and never thinking of the legal phases involved until it is time to hire a lawyer to get out of difficulty, is like avoiding precautions against the flu, supposing that the doctor will be able to keep us from slipping into the grave.

A practical lesson in commercial law under this head is afforded in a decision lately handed down by the Texas Court of Civil Appeals in the case of Knowlan Machine & Supply Co. vs. Dittman & Harrison Co., 216 Southwestern Reporter, 678.

In this case, plaintiff was permitted to recover damages for breach of a contract to sell a car of seed grain; defendant failing in an attempt to show that no binding agreement resulted because the contract, which was made by defendant's representative, was not confirmed.

Dreer's Famous American Asters

As usual, our Asters are American-grown, were carefully inspected when in bloom, and we feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality. For complete list, see our Wholesale Catalogue for 1920.

Astermums

This strain of Giant Comet Asters was first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and Chrysanthemum-like appearance created quite a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors.

White, Pink and Lavender, each 40 cents per trade packet; $2.00 per ounce.

Crego's Giant Comet Asters

Magnificent fluffy flowers, averaging over 5 inches across, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors of the highest quality.

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0.40	$2.00
Pink. Delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Purple. Bright purple	.40	2.00
Rose. Rich deep rose	.40	2.00
Lavender. A rich deep shade	.40	2.00
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

King Asters

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0.50	$2.50
Lavender King. Pale lavender	.50	2.50
Pink King. An attractive shade of delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose variety	.40	2.00
Violet King. This is the original of this type, and is a pleasing soft shade of violet	.40	2.00
White King. Pure glistening white	.50	2.50
King Mixed. All colors	.40	2.00

Astermum Aster

Dreer's Late Branching Aster

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming. The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	.30	1.50
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	.30	1.50
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	.30	1.50
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson. Very rich	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All the colors	.25	1.00

Dreer's "Peerless Pink" Aster

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink or Mary Semple. It has the same strong, sturdy habit of growth; comes into bloom a little earlier, bears freely almost globular flowers rarely under 4 inches across and frequently over 5 inches. The color is rich shell-pink, similar in shade but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

New Red Aster, "Sensation"

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit, about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

HENRY A. DREER, 714-716 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

to have several model features which may interest readers of The Review and particularly those engaged in the seed business, we quote it fully. Following the date and address to the buyer, it reads:

"We book your order for the goods named below to be shipped February 10, 1918, to Victoria, Tex., via H. & T. C. and Southern Pacific R. R. Terms: Draft B/L attached. Price basis being C. A. F. [cost and freight] your station: [Here follow quantities of goods ordered and prices.]

"We give no warranty, either expressed or implied, as to the purity, productiveness, or any other matter of any of the seeds we sell, nor will we be in any way responsible for crops. If the goods are not accepted on these conditions, we are to have immediate notice.

"Our responsibility ceases when we deliver goods to carrier in proper shipping condition. [This is an important provision, especially where goods are shipped under an order bill of lading, since it precludes any reasonable ground for controversy as to whether the shipping seller is liable, as to the buyer, for any loss or damage to the goods in transit.] Complaints of any kind must be made immediately for shortage or damage, and must be accompanied by railroad expense bill bearing proper notations.

"On car lot sales, immediate shipment means three days; quick, five days; prompt, ten days—exclusive of Sundays and legal holidays.

"No agreement recognized which is not plainly stipulated herein."

Signature by each party appears at the end of the instrument.

Agent Has Authority.

In this case the contract was signed on the part of the defendant seed house by C. F. Gribble and the position taken by defendant is indicated in the following excerpt from the opinion of the Texas Court of Civil Appeals:

"The first assignment is to the effect that the court erred in holding that C. F. Gribble had authority as agent to enter into a binding contract for the sale of the grain at the prices named to be delivered in February, 1918; and the second was that the date of delivery was so remote as to put plaintiff on notice that it had to be subject to confirmation and approval; and fifth, that the contract was so unusual and out of the ordinary as to put plaintiff upon notice and charge it with such information as a person of ordinary prudence and care would have gained by making inquiry as to authority of the agent; eighth, in holding there was no custom of the trade requiring sales of grain and seed by traveling salesmen or brokers to be accepted and confirmed before becoming a binding contract."

The court proceeds to review the evidence in the case, from which an inference is drawn that defendant company had authorized its agent to make contracts of this kind, despite the fact that on receipt of the order at the defendant's office a letter was sent to plaintiff stating that defendant could not confirm.

Another point attempted to be made by the attorneys for the defendant was that, even if a binding contract had been made through defendant's agent, it was superseded by subsequent negotiations. But the court says on this point:

No New Contract Was Made.

"It is clear that there was no new contract made or any merger of the original by one of any later date. Defendant refused to confirm the contract of December 3, 1917, in all particulars, but attempted to make a change therein by substituting a new price for oats and in the subsequent correspondence change the price of other articles. Plaintiff never accepted or agreed to the change of price of any article in the original order except upon condition. So it is clear that the minds of the parties never met on a new contract and the result of the case must depend upon the validity of the original order of December 3. It is shown that the order was received in the due course of business dealings. The act of C. F. Gribble, who signed its name to the order, was not repudiated; it did not then deny his agency or contend that he was not authorized to make binding contracts, or claim that such had to be submitted to it for confirmation. It placed their refusal to confirm upon the ground that it might not get hold of Surecropper corn and would have to charge 98 cents per bushel for the oats, made no mention of the Red Top or Amber Cane and desired to know 'if you will want us to book on that basis.'

"The defendant contends that there was never any valid contract at all, because Gribble was not empowered or authorized to make such contracts, as he was making sales under limited authority, which required him to report all offers for confirmation, and his acts were never confirmed and ratified. The court has found from the evidence, in connection with the letters, there was a contract and that Gribble was acting within the scope of his authority in the capacity of a sales agent in negotiating and making valid sales as described. * * * If Gribble was not its agent, defendant should have promptly repudiated his agency at the time it received the order and not have continued negotiations on it. In fact, it was never repudiated." S.

WEEBER & DON 114 Chambers Street, New York City

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Wayside Gardens Co., Mentor, O.—A neat 12-page trade list of hardy plants and bulbs. A few of the most popular varieties of shrubs also are listed.

H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo.—Two attractive catalogues, which supplement each other. The larger one, entitled "Weber's Guide," consists of thirty-two good-sized pages; it contains descriptions and illustrations, but no prices. The smaller book is a condensed price list. The intention is to issue the price lists semiannually, but the appearance of the next edition of the "Guide" may be delayed indefinitely, "unless conditions become more normal than at present." Patrons are advised by the company, therefore, to "retain the 'Guide' for future reference." Greenhouse plants as well as nursery stock are offered.

F. K. Prouse Co., Brampton, Ont.—"Easter Florists' Specials," an illustrated folder which serves as the company's "first and introductory catalogue." It offers baskets, artificial flowers, cycas, ruscus, magnolia leaves and other supplies. "Our next catalogue," says Mr. Prouse, "will be a far more ambitious and detailed list."

C. Keur & Sons, New York, N. Y., and Hillegom, Holland.—A 20-page wholesale catalogue of bulbs. Besides the Holland-grown bulbs, the stock listed comprises assortments from France and Guernsey, for early forcing. At the end are crocus and lily bulbs and lily of the valley pips.

Isaac F. Tillinghast, Santa Rosa, Cal.—"New Creations in Fruits, Vegetables, Grains and Flowers," an illustrated, 32-page catalogue, well arranged and unusually readable. Mr. Tillinghast, apparently, does not handle general, all-inclusive stocks of seeds and plants, but rather is a dealer in specialties, those he considers the best available from all sources. One of the most prominent of these specialties is "Cory's Thornless Mammoth Blackberry, an entirely new variety, of mammoth size and delicious flavor, the canes of which are as free from thorns as a grapevine."

William H. Moon Co., Morrisville, Pa.—"On Beautifying the Home Grounds." This is not really a catalogue, as it neither quotes prices nor enumerates varieties. It is a well designed 16-page landscape book, printed on enameled paper and bound in a strong and tasteful blue-gray cover. It is intended to stimulate the demand for nurserymen's products. It contains persuasive arguments and equally persuasive pictures—some of them the before-and-after sort of pictures, showing first the treeless and shrubless grounds and then the same grounds after the transformation achieved by the nurserymen.

Schultz's Seed Store, Washington, D. C.—"Schultz's Seed Annual," illustrated, fifty-six pages, in a handsome, colored cover of the offset type. The back cover bears a picture of a part of the White House grounds, with the inscription, "One of the many public grounds about Washington where Schultz's White House lawn grass seeds have been sown." Besides the seeds, the book offers bulbs, roots, plants and general supplies, including wire fences and large assortments of implements, from plows and harrows down to the smallest hand-tools.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

SMALL fruits are not so scarce as fruit trees, but the supply is none too large.

LEE MCDONOUGH has sold his interest in the old Douglas Nursery, at Waukegan, Ill., to David Becher, of Chicago.

EBERT H. GOLD has started a nursery at Holland, Mich., devoting his efforts chiefly to the propagation of fruit trees.

THE government's propaganda for home planting of fruit trees is welcome to nurserymen, though not so much needed this season as in some others.

CHARLES C. NASH, the Three Rivers nurseryman, is devoting the first part of March to putting up cuttings in the famous grape belt surrounding Lawton, Mich.

INSPECTION IN RHODE ISLAND.

In view of the stringent regulations in connection with interstate commerce of certain trees, shrubs and other nursery stock, together with the fact that the Rhode Island Nurserymen's Association at its recent annual meeting, at Providence, voted to call upon the general assembly of that state for financial assistance, the annual report of the state board of agriculture presented to the legislature a few days ago is of more than ordinary interest and importance.

Forty-six nurseries were examined during the year and thirty-nine were found to be free from injurious insects or plant diseases of any kind and were given certificates permitting the sale of nursery stock. The entomological department also gave demonstrations for combating insects and sprayed 10,000 trees for scale insects and for the codling moth, in addition to scouting the state line for the corn borer.

NURSERY STOCKS IN FRANCE.

In the columns of a British trade publication a French grower gives the following summary of nursery stocks in France for this season:

"The nursery trade has been particularly brisk this season. The lifting of trees and stocks began in October with quite dry weather, which was unfavorable and the cause of considerable delay. Afterwards we had a severe frost at the beginning of November, which still further complicated matters. But since this date the nurserymen enjoyed mild weather and have had no stop until now.

"The fruit stocks are nearly all sold out. Apple, pear, plum seedlings and cherry were exhausted at the beginning of the season and numerous orders have been refused. The quantities which have been delivered do not exceed five per cent of the demand.

"It may be possible actually to find small quantities of Paradise, because they are propagated from mother plants, and the growers were not sufficiently sure of their rooting at the beginning of the season. This is the reason why they did not at that time make engagements for their whole lot. Hence the reason that small lots are still being supplied now.

"Rose stocks have been considerably short, principally Rosa canina and laxa; not ten per cent of the demand has been supplied. If some small lots are still on offer it is for the reason indicated for the English Paradise; also multiflora polyantha seedlings, which were a little more abundant than anticipated, but they will be planted in France, where it has been recognized to be the best stock for dwarf polyanthas, climbing Wichuraianas, also for working the H. T.'s, H. P.'s, teas, etc., for forcing and for pot work. Its root system is good, and when planted or potted it breaks rapidly. In the United States they employ it to replace Manetti in many cases.

"The young stocks of shrubs, seedlings, grafts and rooted cuttings sell quickly. Many sorts are missing, owing to the lack of propagation during the war. They will continue to be scarce for several years. Many varieties have disappeared entirely.

"Young forest trees have been in great demand. All the principal sorts are exhausted.

"Fruit trees have been in great de-

PRODUCTION AND PRICES.

In his address at Boston, C. R. Burr, retiring president of the New England Nurserymen's Association, emphasized the necessity of maintaining the present prosperity of the trade by attention to the matters of production and prices. He stated:

''Production is a matter that we, as nurserymen, ought not to lose sight of. Right now we are in a prosperous way, more so than we have been in the last five years. We ought now to be where we can pay our bills promptly when they are due. In spite of the high cost of labor, we are doing a good business and we are getting a fair price for our stock—perhaps not as much as items in other lines, for the reason we haven't had nerve enough to ask it, but I believe that now is the time we ought to get out our pencil and go to figuring. Figure on a basis of profit. Figure on a basis where we can pay our employees decent wages. Figure that you are going to continue to work on a business basis, and do not go into the wholesale business of overplanting in the next two or three years.

''Berberis Thunbergii is in good demand today. It probably will bring $120 to $150 per thousand for 18-inch to 24-inch at wholesale and on that price there is a little margin. Now, if we, in the next year or two, bring it back to 5 or 6 cents, who under the heavens can get a living on it at that price? There are many other items that are bringing a fair price today and we should not go ahead and overplant. Let's make this business a mercantile business. Give the customer a fair deal, grow good stock, grade it right and work along on mercantile principles.

''At the ornamental growers' meeting in New York the standardization of prices came up, and they are going to do something in order to have a basic price. There is no reason why Tom Jones, in Manchester, N. H., can't get as much for his stock as Tom Smith, in Providence, R. I. We all handle more or less the same stock. The agency man, as a rule, sells throughout the country, with few exceptions, at the same prices, and the agent has no competition. Then why can't the catalogue men, landscape men and dealers in nursery stock get together and have a like price? We shall then have a better standing with the buyers and shall work more harmoniously with one another.''

The Market.

Flowers are plentiful and prices have dropped some, but it is hoped that they will never again be slashed as they once were.

Bulbous stock continues to be the most in evidence. Freesias are abundant and sell at $3 to $5 per hundred, colored ones bringing $5. Daffodils, jonquils, tulips and hyacinths are in good supply at $6, $7 and $8 per hundred. Roses are more plentiful now. These, however, are far from being in abnormal supply. Carnations are available in larger quantities and calla lilies sell at $2.50 and $3 per dozen.

Sweet peas are in good supply. Calendulas have sold well this winter, having been of good quality. Orchids, violets, pussy willows, etc., have added variety to the offerings in the various windows.

Cinerarias are attractive. Other plants include cyclamens, primroses, begonias, ferns and a few azaleas. Potted bulbous stock is in popular favor, jonquils, tulips, daffodils and hyacinths being the leaders.

Business has not been quite so active for the last two weeks.

Indiana State Association.

The March meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held at the Smith & Young Co. commission house, Tuesday, March 2. The meeting was unusually well attended and several out-of-town members were present.

President Anders Rasmussen presided. After the routine business the following were elected to membership: Thomas Affleck, of Indianapolis; Frank D. McConnell, of Boonville, Ind., and Fred and Norman Hukriede, of Indianapolis.

President Rasmussen made a report of the meeting of the S. A. F. board of auditors. Mr. Rasmussen was appointed to look after subscriptions in the publicity campaign in this state and said that the drive should be started immediately, as the committee was desirous of having twice as much money as it had had previously. A. F. J. Baur gave an interesting account of the American Carnation Society meeting, in Chicago.

The next meeting of the F. T. D., to be held in Indianapolis, was the chief discussion of the evening. Irwin Bertermann read the minutes of the previous meeting, to give the association an idea of what to expect. Various committees were appointed to look after

This photograph was taken November 23, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Plants ready early in March and all orders will be filled in rotation.

CHRYSANTHEMUM PROGRESS

NEW MUMS

It's time to think of what you will need in new Mums to recruit your collection, so as to cover the whole season in the various colors. These four new pink varieties will enable you to begin cutting pink as early as the other colors, and to cut continuously, which is important. Get a few of each variety early enough to take a cutting or two from each plant and reduce the first cost. We begin delivery early in March.

$4.00 per doz., $25.00 per 100

HARBINGER—An early pink that should supersede Unaka on account of being a full flower and better color. Grows 5 feet from June planting.

PANDORA—Follows Harbinger in date of blooming. Bright deep pink. Grows 5 feet from June planting.

TOKIO—Follows Pandora. Grows 5 feet in height and produces blooms of exceptional quality for the season. Bright lavender pink.

PROGRESS—Follows Tokio and finishes as Chieftain comes on. Incurved form and large in size. Bright deep pink. Grows 4 feet and very stiff.

The Market.

Stock continues to be more plentiful and prices are still on the decline. The streets are full of all kinds of stock. Carnations and sweet peas are most plentiful.

Funeral work is still piling up and in several instances a slight scarcity of greens was noticed during the last week.

Despite the spell of severe weather last week, business was quite satisfactory and little stock was lost by freezing. The storm came on with little notice, but the growers had kept close watch on the weather reports and most of them were ready to cope with sudden change.

Florists' Club Elects.

J. Harper Hetherington was elected president of the Florists' Club of Washington at the meeting which was held March 2. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, A. Gude; secretary, George V. Schultz; financial secretary, Z. D. Blackistone, and treasurer, William F. Gude. The new executive committee is composed of George Shaffer and David Grillbortzer for the 3-year term, Otto Bauer and Charles P. Groce for the 2-year term and Adolph Gude and Theodore Diedrich for the 1-year term.

Prof. A. S. Thurston, of Maryland State Agricultural College, lectured on floriculture. Plans for the annual banquet given in honor of the new officers were made. G. S.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Price reductions are of common occurrence these days and the strenuous times of the last two months are a matter of history until another year rolls around. Publicity is rapidly being given to the fact that prices are lower now and the general flower-buying public will soon acquire the old habit of buying flowers for the home.

Roses have dropped fifty per cent on the best grades, but the short-stemmed stock is still quoted at high prices. Carnations are now quoted at $6 per hundred, with inferior grades selling according to quality. Calendulas are better, having longer stems and larger flowers. Princess of Wales violets are fine and are quoted at $1 per hundred. Sweet peas, like everything else, have come down to a level where reasonable prices will sell the vast quantities that are now available. Freesias and Paper Whites are quoted around $6 per hundred and maintain their standard of excellence. Single daffodils are arriving in sufficient quantities to meet all requirements. Tulips of all colors are now available and single Dutch hyacinths are proving good sellers.

Leucothoe foliage was a scarce article last week and the reports from the pickers show that the flu has made such inroads on the helpers that the shippers are unable to get enough hands to fill orders that are piled up. The stock that is arriving is short and of inferior quality. Other greens are arriving in sufficient quantities to meet all needs. In pot plants, cinerarias and Primula obconica are good sellers.

With the slowing up of the flu, the falling off of funeral work is perceptible. Taken as a whole, the business is rapidly adjusting itself and normal conditions will shortly prevail.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is back on the job again after a siege of sickness.

T. H. Coffman, of McClure & Coffman, Huntington, W. Va., was a recent visitor. Mr. Coffman called on the local growers for some Easter stock.

Other visitors were Floyd Anderson, of Xenia, O., and Harold Lion, of Lion & Co., New York.

The death of Mrs. Albert Hornung is recorded in this week's obituary column.

J. A. Peterson, Earl Mann, Joseph H. Hill and C. E. Critchell are among those leaving for the flower show in New York next week. Messrs. Hill and Critchell have been asked to act as judges. H. E. K.

Greenhouse Heating

THIRTY-YEAR-OLD BOILER.

Could you tell me how large an establishment could be heated with a horizontal tubular boiler, about 30 years old, but in good condition? It has stood a pressure of 125 pounds and is sixteen feet long and fifty-eight inches in diameter; has forty-eight 4-inch flues and grates 4½x5 feet. It is about 75-horsepower. I want to build the houses separate, with four feet of glass in the north and south walls, and full glass gables, each house to be 35x100 feet. I should like to have heat of 55 degrees when it is 20 degrees below zero. How many houses of this size could this boiler take care of? L. B. W.—Wyo.

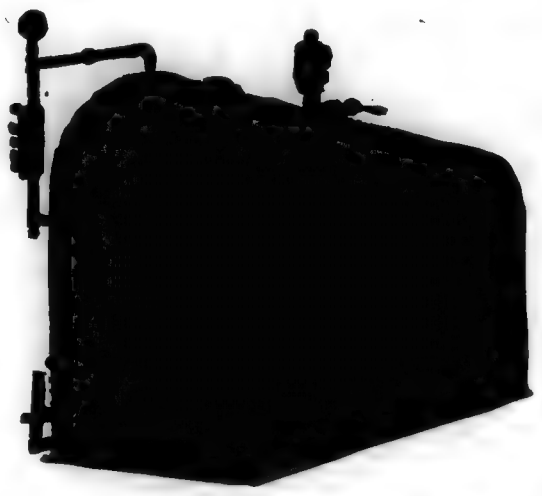
As nearly as can be estimated from the data furnished, a house similar to those described will contain about 5,200 square feet of glass or its equivalent and a 75-horsepower boiler will supply radiation for 28,000 square feet of glass to be heated to 55 degrees, when it is 20 degrees below zero, in addition to the usual proportion of mains.

From this it will be seen that about five houses can be heated with a 75-horsepower boiler under the conditions mentioned.

While a boiler that is 30 years old should be looked upon with suspicion, if it is in good condition it may give service for a number of years and can be used with safety for low-pressure heating.

TOO FEW FLOW PIPES.

I am sending you a blue print of my greenhouses, which shows three houses 20x50 feet, with concrete walls three feet high and thirty-two inches of glass. Each house has a 2½-inch overhead flow pipe and eight 1½-inch returns upon each side wall, the return coils starting on either side of the door at the end of the house, thus making them nearly sixty feet long. There is about 480 square feet of radiation in each of the houses, in addition to some fifty square feet of radiation supplied by the mains.



The heat is hot water and is poor. I should like a heat of 60 degrees in zero weather, but cannot get more than 30 degrees at night. The plumber put a "booster" on, which he said would end all the trouble, but I believe it is worse. The pipes have a good fall, as the boiler is three feet down in a pit. The only discrepancy in the blue print is that instead of two No. 6 boilers shown in the print, I have a new Burnham boiler, No. 36-5, with a firebox 36x36. The expansion tank is just above the highest point and I am thinking of building a cupola above the roof to raise the tank. Of the eight pipes on the side walls, the bottom two are always cold, but the top two get hot and the 2½-inch flow is always hot. P. C. L.—Can.

It appears that there are two factors which prevent the securing of satisfactory results from the heating system. The first is that there is altogether too much radiation attached to each of the 2½-inch flow pipes, since each flow not only supplies over 530 square feet of radiation within each of the houses, but there is also thirty or more feet of radiation in the mains outside of the green-

Erie, Pa., Dec. 16, 1919.
"Please send us another of those thermometer clocks, just like the one you sent us about two weeks ago. We would never be without one again."
Trost & Steinfurth.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

houses, which must also be supplied by each of the flow pipes. Under the most favorable conditions, with returns 100 to 150 feet in length, so that only about three or four returns will be supplied by one flow, and when the top of the boiler is below the lowest part of the returns, we do not care to use more than 400 square feet of radiation upon a 2½-inch flow pipe. In the present case there are sixteen returns attached to each of the flows. It is not strange that the circulation is confined to a few of the returns near the top of the coil. These are able to return all of the water supplied by the main, and the circulation is confined to these pipes, since the higher the location of the returns above the boiler the better will be the circulation.

To correct this defect, I should run another 2½-inch overhead flow pipe, using one for each coil.

It is stated that the boiler is three feet down in a pit. If this means that the floor of the pit is three feet below the floor of the greenhouse, it would appear that some of the returns are below the top of the boiler. If it is not possible to lower the boiler, I should raise the returns so that they will all be above the top of the boiler.

Of course the main returns should be of the same size as the main flows, and instead of a 2-inch return from each coil, uniting with the return from the other coil in the same house and running to the boiler as a 2½-inch main return, I should run a 2½-inch return from each coil and either carry this back to the boiler or unite the two returns from each house and run to the boiler with a 3-inch return.

The use of a "booster" on the system should help the circulation, but the results will not be marked, both on account of the number of returns to be supplied and because some of them are below the top of the boiler. As with an open-tank system, when the combined area of the returns is so much more than that of the flow pipes, the circulation is confined to the upper pipes in the coils.

CALKING HOT WATER PIPES.

Please tell us the best calking method for 4-inch hot water pipes. Should sal ammoniac and iron filings be used, and in what proportion, or red lead and oakum? Is there any advantage in using litharge or japan?

T. M. C.—Wis.

The use of sal ammoniac for the calking of 4-inch pipes is not advisable, since, although it is excellent for making a tight rust joint, it is likely to crack the pipe.

It is better to use oakum and either iron turnings or an iron cement for the purpose. A ring of oakum should first be used. After being well twisted, it should be firmly driven into place. The iron turnings should be used to fill all of the remaining space, the layers as driven in filling one-half to three-fourths of an inch.

When iron cement is used, it should be driven in between alternate rings of oakum.

There is also danger of cracking the pipes with red lead, or litharge, but a small amount may be used with the oakum before the iron turnings are added. It is not needed when iron cement is used.

RAPID PROGRESS.

The trade has watched with interest the rapid strides in the progress of the McCallum Co., which in the course of but a few weeks has established branch houses in Cincinnati, Detroit and Cleveland. The Cincinnati-McCallum Co. is represented by Frank Smith, the Detroit-McCallum Co. by Henry Blend and the Cleveland-McCallum Co. by James McLaughlin. Now comes the announcement of the addition to the company's personnel of Sam Seligman, probably the supply man best known to the trade, with display rooms at 239 Fourth avenue, New York. Display rooms have also been opened in San Juan, P. R., in charge of John de Chouden. The new branches are now doing business, after the preliminary work of installing fixtures and stocking up from the Pittsburgh headquarters.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Richard Gardiner has given up his greenhouses and they are being dismantled so that the land may be used for general building purposes.

Andrew K. McMahon observed his seventy-eighth birthday March 1 by having his entire family about him at dinner. He is hale and hearty.

The death of Mrs. Mary A. Phelan, mother of John H. Phelan, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

W. H. M.

Altoona, Pa.—H. S. Wertzberger and his brother have eighty-seven acres of land and are putting up two greenhouses.

Lawrenceburg, Ky.—Floyd Ward has bought and is now operating the greenhouses and retail business of Herbert Crowfield.

The Market.

The market is well supplied and prices are holding up, with a fair demand for stock. Carnations are available in quantity and are priced from $6 to $8 per hundred. Roses have shown the least decline and clean up well in all grades. Bulbous stock is moving slowly, daffodils and jonquils suffering the most. Violets move fairly well and sweet peas have a good demand, with the specials realizing $4 per hundred. Narcissi and freesias move slowly. Snapdragon cleans up on sight. Calendulas, daisies and other novelties are picked up readily. There is a good supply of valley, but little demand for it. Calla lilies clean up well. Large quantities of southern greens are arriving now and will relieve a tight situation in the green market.

Various Notes.

F. R. Williams has returned to his store after suffering from a slight attack of the flu and a severe cold.

The Daisy Hill Farm is consigning some fine sweet peas to this market. A large quantity is expected to be cut in a short time.

Albert Barber is spending most of his time at his new store, where he is having a few alterations made.

J. Fiorillo has started in business at 1321 West Sixty-fifth street.

EVERTITE GLAZING CEMENT remains elastic at all times—forming a waterproof and air-tight joint over the sashbar. Evertite Glazing Cement will stand the extreme expansion and contraction that a greenhouse is subject to and will not check or crack—nor will it harden.

"Oh Boy" Glazing Gun

Evertite Glazing Cement applied with a new "Oh Boy" Gun (see cut above) makes an ideal combination. This gun, which is the last word in glazing guns, allows Evertite Glazing Cement to flow in a uniform consistency all the time. Note the ease with which this gun can be handled. DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

The market has been well stocked with seasonable flowers at normal prices. Roses were fine in every grade last week, the leading varieties being Russell, Columbia, Hoosier Beauty, Premier, Ophelia and Killarney. There were some good long-stemmed American Beauties, which sold well. Sweet peas were extra fine in pink and white, with large flowers and long stems; they were a good selling line. In spring flowers there was a large variety, including Von Sion, with good flowers; Golden Spur and Bicolor Victoria, Paper Whites and freesias, both Purity and Rainbow varieties. Tulips are selling well, the chief varieties being Keizerskroon, Prince of Austria and La Reine. Single and double violets are in plentiful supply. Mignonette and calendulas are good stock.

Hydrangeas in the new French varieties are selling especially well and there is a good assortment of bulbous plants. A few cinerarias and primulas complete the line of potted plants. Counter trade was brisk last week and funeral work about normal.

The seed business is starting out well and many orders are being shipped to farmers out in the country districts; a record business is expected in this line during the coming season.

Various Notes.

The employees of the Duluth Floral Co. entered a 5-man team in the northwestern bowling tournament, which was held in Duluth last week. They made a score of 1,937 and would have done better if they had not treated the pins too much like flowers, being afraid that hard hitting would bruise them.

Max Schilz was a visitor in Duluth last week and reported business exceedingly good all through the northwest.

J. E. S.

Chandler, Ariz.—Henry Kunst, for the last three years landscape artist for the San Marcos Nursery, resigned to take charge of the scenic development of the land projects of the Southwest Cotton Co., at Litchfield, Goodyear, Yuma, the Imperial valley and later at Los Angeles.

DUMSER'S DATA.

D. L. Vincent, of Ionia, Mich., is enthusiastic over his bench of Laddie carnations. He is cutting as many blooms per plant as from Enchantress, but of superior size and quality. Mr. Vincent is especially enthusiastic over one plant of Laddie, which is sporting three clear red flowers; he will work hard to get up stock for a bench of red Laddie. He wishes to know if others find that Laddie sports in other shades than its own.

J. Koning, the new proprietor of the Butterworth Floral Co., Muskegon, Mich., is well pleased with his new undertaking, as he finds the call for flowers greater than his output. He will sell chiefly at wholesale and is already figuring on expansion.

Mrs. G. E. Marsh, the new proprietor of the Lakeside Greenhouses, Muskegon, Mich., is having a fine trade. She has a good lot of pot plants for her local trade and her new crop of sweet peas will be in for Easter. Her two sons, who have returned from service overseas, are actively engaged with their mother and are planning for expansion.

L. Wasserman, of Muskegon, Mich., is busy at the greenhouses getting ready for a big Easter trade and has turned the downtown store over to his son. Mrs. Wasserman is spending the winter in California.

The Queen City Floral Co., Traverse City, Mich., is featuring bulbous stock, of which they have a fine display. William Anderson, the manager, stated the bulbous stock was a life-saver this winter, as roses and carnations were so scarce.

Mark W. Doty, of Grand Ledge, Mich., is having great success with carnations this season. The blooms are of big size; Thenanthos especially is a sight worth seeing. This variety is grown on the most prominent bench, to attract people's attention.

E. G. Mulick, proprietor of the Greenville Floral Co., Greenville, Mich., having disposed of his vegetable range, is devoting his entire attention to his old establishment, producing flowers. Mr. Mulick stated, "It was the most logical thing to do, as I could not be at both places, and the labor situation is such that a man has to have his work arranged so that he himself can be there with his men to supervise the work."

Byron L. Smith, of Ionia, Mich., was handicapped for garden room at his city location; so he moved his greenhouses a mile out of town and opened a store on the main street of Ionia. Mr. Smith is just recovering from an attack of the flu, which has kept him from his daily routine for five weeks.

H. L. Weaver, of Traverse City, Mich., is well pleased with his venture in the florists' business. So far he has been getting along without greenhouses, but is anxious to build. If the prices of material and labor permit, he will build a small range next summer for growing potted plants.

Joseph Gansbiller, of Charlotte, Mich., having taken over the Ferndale Greenhouses in his own name, is catering to the local trade. He is quite busy taking care of the growing and keeping the benches as well as the shelves filled with salable stock while his wife is waiting on the trade.

Both members of the firm of Chase & Wilcox, Hastings, Mich., have been laid up with the flu, and as they try to get along without extra help, it has set their work back to such an extent that it will take some time to catch up again.

H. Thiemann, Owosso, Mich., is planning to spend two months' vacation in Europe.

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL GREENHOUSE HARDWARE

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The few days of sunshine last week, following the long period of dark weather, awakened the hopes of everyone that spring was about to put in an appearance. It had an encouraging effect on flowers, bringing out the tulips, daffodils and other spring flowers, as well as carnations and roses in sufficient quantities to cause a material drop in prices. As a result of the increased supply, some of the downtown stores announced special price sales for Saturday, March 6, but the weather was not propitious and Saturday brought with it the worst blizzard of the whole winter. Fortunately, it was not long-lived and in a few hours it spent its force, although leaving the temperature several degrees colder.

From almost top-notch prices, the market took a decided drop and the week closed with prices about normal, with an increasing supply, especially of bulbous stock. The reports indicate that there will be an unusually big cut of all kinds of flowers for Easter this year and that probably prices will not be so high as in several years past.

Various Notes.

John Lindblom is temporarily associated with A. J. Johnson, at Pawtucket, R. I.

James C. Potter has been elected park commissioner of Pawtucket, R. I., for a term of three years.

Swanson Bros. are getting ready to erect another small house in addition to their range at 14 Stenton avenue.

Alexander Allan has been elected superintendent of parks at Pawtucket, R. I.

John Kelly, of Valley Falls, R. I., reports an unusually busy month, having been rushed day and night.

Miss Florence Willard, of the Hope Greenhouses, Massachusetts avenue, who has been on the sick list for some time, is reported as improving.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was a business visitor in Boston and vicinity last week.

Alexander H. Johnson, of George Johnson & Son, the city forester of Providence, has been placed on the retired list of officers of the Rhode Island state militia with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

W. A. Bowers, on Washington street, reports that business is more than double that of the corresponding time last year.

Edward B. Hough has been elected a member of the Providence park commission.

Macnair has faithfully carried out the motto of his store, "The Sunshine Shop," by keeping his windows filled with bright spring flowers every day. During the blizzard Saturday, March 6, the corner window was bright and cheerful with its display of daffodils.

A. P. Kupfer, on Potter avenue, is considering a number of alterations and additions to his establishment this spring. W. H. M.

Newburg, Ind.—William Vonderscher, who now has two small greenhouses, expects soon to erect an additional one.

Permanite

(Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Modern Methods for Modern Business

Years ago greenhouse men were satisfied in using their own putty and spent a couple of weeks every year getting their houses in shape.

Today, the modern greenhouse man does not want to use home-made putty and bother about putting it on himself—he knows he can get a better product—at less expense and with better results.

The man who knows glazing compounds, and recognizes their merits, always insists on Permanite, because it is the ONE and ONLY original Asbestos Glazing Cement—all others are imitations.

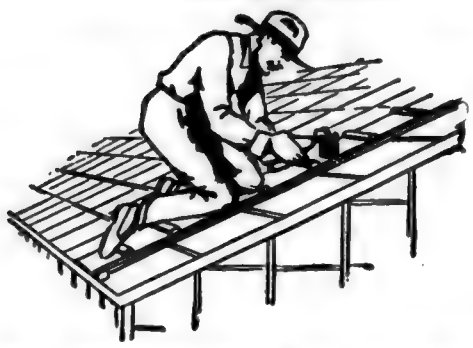
Asbestfalt



An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

$1.25 per gallon. Why pay more?

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

HERE'S A GOOD ONE
Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL
It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 3½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100, delivery May and later. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

NONE BETTER.
We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

A Tonic For Sick Ones

YESTERDAY a grower blew into our office and sat down for what he called "a real-honest-to-goodness-talk." Having said which, he said the following:

"I am sick of that last house I bought. Why in thunder did you let me buy it? Why didn't you hit me between the eyes, when I said your house cost too much?

"Doggone it all, do you know what my repair bills are costing me these days? Well, sir, it just makes me sick every time I write out a check.

"With the present price of materials of all kinds up in G, blamed if I don't think it would pay me to burn that cheap John house down and build one of yours, no matter what it costs. Now let's get down to facts and figures on a house 68x400 feet."

To which let us add that the big point to our mind that this man made, was HOW MUCH REPAIRS COST these days, regardless of how little the house cost.

When you buy a cheap house, just as sure as preaching you are at the same time buying expensive repairs.

We go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

A JOURNAL for FLORISTS, SEEDSMEN and NURSERYMEN

EASTER NUMBER

Greenhouse Builders

This is our standard section, which is the one that both the Western and Eastern growers are building most.

Continuation of that Wide House Talk

True to our promise, here we are back to back up what we said about wide houses being the biggest money makers.

You'll recall how some of the Kansas growers at a Kansas City Meeting said they sort of felt the wide house was kind of an eastern fad that might not last.

To which let me hasten to reply that the only thing that will stop the building of wide houses is the building of some kind of a house that will prove as much more economical as the present wide one is over the narrow.

But, to get back to facts, not claims, let's agree together that any house below 40 feet is a narrow one.

In the last 5 years we have built one house 40 feet wide to every 10 that are wider.

The reasons for which are mainly as follows:

Saves Labor

Wide houses save labor because they cut down running from one small house to another.
Instead of a dozen or more Vent wheels to turn you have half as many and all of them located along the same path.

Think what that means in time-saving.
Men work better when more of them work together—one spurs the other.

It's lonesome work, one lone man to a small house. Figures show that he does less work.

Saves Coal

It takes more heat to heat a big house up.

But once heated it stays heated with less heat. That big volume of air made possible by the high roofs acts as an insulation against sudden changes just as an overcoat does for you.

You may think that because there is so much more roof exposure it's bound to burn just that much more coal. Facts and figures, however, prove it to the contrary.

Better Crops

Crops are more uniformly better in wide houses. They are more dependable. They are not chilled by the roof vents, as the air has a chance to get warmed before reaching them.

The air stays fresh and buoyant all night at just the time when your plants do their growing.
Don't lose sight of the fact that plants grow during the night and harden their growth during the day.

The better the night conditions the better the growth.

That's just plain everyday common sense.

Construction

Of course wide houses do require more careful construction, involving a real engineering knowledge.

Guesswork won't do.
That's why we have up to the present refused to build houses wider than our standard sections.

Refused because our engineers have not yet been able to satisfy themselves that the greatly increased cost of the increased width could be a proportionate advantage to growers.

That we have always been on the safe side is abundantly proven by the fact that none of our wide frame houses have ever gone down with snows or blows.

The Handy Hand Book discusses comparative widths, showing sections and interior photographs of each.

It likewise goes thoroughly into every point of construction, giving step by step the why and wherefore.

If you have a Handy Hand Book, take time to look into these things.

If you haven't one send for one.

We Offer
Fine Roses, Lilies, Carnations and Peas

For quality and price it will be hard for you to find a better place to do your buying for Easter. We say this because we know the conditions on the local market and do not hesitate to assert that our stock is the very highest grade and, in connection with the same, our prices are reasonable. Service to our customers is our first consideration, and we are constantly striving to improve on the usual methods—no order is packed without personal inspection. Our Easter stock is complete and the supply large, but give us your order as early as is convenient; wire additions as needed.

BOSTON FLORAL SUPPLY & SNYDER CO.

Wholesale Florists

15 Otis Street and 96 Arch Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Telephones: Main 2574, Fort Hill 1083, 1084, 1085

The B. A. Snyder Co. has joined hands with the Boston Floral Supply Co. and we are now working together under the same roof. The object of this coming together is not for a Consolidation in the sense that the word Consolidation is usually understood. The central idea embodied in this union is a very simple one, namely, Co-operation. The B. A. Snyder Co., one of the largest wholesale florists in the east, was composed of Julius and B. A. Snyder, two brothers, who have worked up a tremendous flower business merely through constant personal attention to their business and through fair dealings to the trade in general.

Mr. Albert Strumph is the manager of the Boston Floral Supply Co. Through his keen intelligence, and particularly through his understanding of the various needs of the florist, he has been a material aid in the constant and rapid growth of the Boston Floral Supply Co.

It is very evident, then, that with no change in the original policy and management of the B. A. Snyder Co. and the Boston Floral Supply Co., that this union of the two companies will, no doubt, result in many benefits both to us and to our esteemed customers.

Our new name is Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Co. With such men as Messrs. Albert Strumph, Julius Snyder and B. A. Snyder in charge of its affairs it ought to result in a great deal of good. The important elements of this union are as follows:

1st. A material reduction in the cost of operation.

2nd. Lower prices.

3rd. More prompt and improved service.

4th. An increased volume of business.

Don't you think, Mr. Florist, that in these trying days where economy and carefulness in buying oftentimes are the foundation of any business, that you should try us out in one way or another? Our success, now as in the past, depends entirely on a large volume of business accompanied only by a very modest profit. Our motto has been:

"DO EVERYTHING For Our Customer"

The more you help us increase this volume of business, the greater the benefits to you. The Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Co. wishes you to know that no matter how small your wants may be, whether it is in Cut Flowers or Supplies, we are very anxious to hear from you. A mere inquiry about any little thing you may want to know, we shall be pleased to give our very prompt attention.

Pass Us Your Easter Business and Have No Regrets

LILIES
For Your Easter Use

Draw your Lilies from what undoubtedly is the LARGEST AND FINEST SUPPLY IN AMERICA

In figuring on the lilies you can use this Easter, consider several factors—remember the flower business is booming, that a tremendous demand is assured, at the best prices ever paid by the public, giving a chance for unusual profits for retailers who provide the stock and facilities to meet the demand. Remember, also, that Lilies will be of much better quality than last year. In 1919 all the Lilies for Easter were from bulbs that had been in cold storage a year and a half—this season fresh bulbs were again available, with the result that Amling's Lilies, forced from large size, selected bulbs, will be of old-time quality. They will sell easily and give unqualified satisfaction to your customers. We offer you any part of

100,000 CUT LILIES for EASTER

Packed in wood boxes, 100 or 200 to the box.

SELECTED GRADE Best and Longest		AVERAGE GRADE Medium Stems		SHORT GRADE Good Flowers, Short Stem
Per 100	$ 35.00	Per 100	$ 30.00	Per 100	$ 25.00
Per 1000	300.00	Per 1000	250.00	Per 1000	200.00

Bear in mind that the total number of Lily bulbs imported last fall was not over one-half, perhaps only one-third, what America received before the war. Consider how greatly demand has increased. A shortage of Lilies is certain—but you can assure your supply by ordering today.

4-inch pots, $6 per doz., $40 per 100.
6-inch pots, $12 per doz., $90 per 100.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases	$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases	1.00 each
Small size cases	.50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

TERMS: Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

Get These Twin Winners Started Ringing Your Cash Register

Snow Queen

We call them "Twin Winners" because they came along about the same time and one sells as fast as the other.

Each is the result of a quarter century of Canna breeding by our Mr. Wintzer, who has developed more varieties of Cannas in commerce today than probably all other hybridizers together.

Mr. Wintzer says these two, each in its class, are the best he has achieved. One is a burning scarlet, the other a crystal white. Grown separately or near each other in contrast, they attract the most enthusiastic admiration of all the Cannas in our collection of over a hundred varieties.

To enable every florist to work up his own stock of these Twin winners we are making a special offer, as below. Order early; it will cause us both pain if we have to send back our regrets and your money.

The President

This immense new flaming scarlet has come into wider use more quickly than any other Canna we ever introduced. It is an offspring of the famous Firebird. The President leads the red varieties in the quality and also the quantity of its bloom. The flowers are 7 inches across; the individual petals are firm and long standing, and do not burn, and the trusses stand up stiff on strong stems. The foliage is rich green and burnproof in the hottest weather. Height, 4 feet.

One, 50c; 10, $3; 25, $6; 100 for $20, net, f. o. b. West Grove.

Snow Queen

Unquestionably the queen of all white Cannas. Mr. Wintzer has been striving especially for a perfect white Canna for many years. He says Snow Queen far excels anything he has succeeded in getting heretofore. The individual flowers are 6 inches across, the petals 2½ inches broad. There is an occasional hint of pink, in faint dots, in the petals, but from a few feet away the effect is a crystal, dazzling white. The large bloom clusters are borne in the greatest abundance, held well above the luxuriant foliage. Height, 4 feet.

Price: 1, $1; 10, $6; 25, $12; $40.00 per 100.

Also, There's The Super-Six Set

While you're sending for the Snow Queen and President, include also a Super-Six set, 6 bulbs each of these six Super Lily-Cannas.

Dreer's Cannas

This season we harvested the finest and largest crop of Cannas that we have ever grown

KING HUMBERT

And all the other good varieties you should have are included in our list and the roots are heavy and firm.

PRICES. The prices quoted are for dormant roots, which can usually be supplied until about the first of April, after which pot plants will be sent out and in which the advance in price will be as follows: All varieties listed at $7.00 or less per 100 will be supplied in pot plants at $8.00 per 100 or $70.00 per 1000, and on varieties listed above $7.00 per 100 there will be no change in price between dormant roots and pot plants.

All have green foliage unless otherwise specified.

ELEVEN SPECIAL VARIETIES

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety. 3½ ft. 10 cts. each; 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

City of Portland. A wonderful bright rosy-pink, much deeper in color than Mrs. Alfred Conard or Hungaria; a free-flowering, vigorous grower. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Fairy Queen. The dwarf, compact plants of this distinct novelty are covered with flowers from spring until fall. The plant rarely exceeds 3 feet in height. The flowers, of a clear rose-pink, are of medium size, good substance and borne upright on stout stems in great abundance. Each flower has a distinct cream-colored border.

We believe Fairy Queen will become one of the very popular Cannas. 60 cts. each; $6.00 per doz.; $50.00 per 100.

Flag of Truce. A large-flowered, creamy white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka, but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 85 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Golden Eagle. A wonderful clear golden-yellow of free, upright growth. The flowers are produced in large clusters well above the foliage. 4 ft. 85 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.

Pocahontas (Bronze-leaved Olympic). Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze. 4 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Remarkable. This effective bronze-leaved variety stands out boldly among other sorts, not only on account of its height (6 ft.), but because of the beautiful scarlet-carmine trusses of bloom surmounting the rich green-bronze foliage. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Surprise. The brightest red Canna we have. It surpasses in brilliancy such popular varieties as Meteor and Lafayette and produces its great trusses with equal freedom. 4 to 5 ft. 85 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

DREER'S SELECT CANNAS

Italia (Orchid Flowered). Bright orange-scarlet, with broad golden-yellow border; 6 ft.	50	3 50	30 00
King Humbert (Orchid Flowered). The most popular Canna. Great orange-scarlet flowers surmount the vigorous dark bronze foliage throughout the season; 5 ft.	75	5 00	45 00
Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stands more erect and the plant grows taller; 5 ft.	1 00	7 00	60 00
La France. Deep carmine-pink; 4½ ft.	1 25	8 00	70 00
Lahneck. A free grower. The color is rose with lines and shadings of scarlet carmine hues, a narrow golden border adds to its beauty; 4 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Louis Reverchon. A splendid bedder, large cochineal-red flowers; 4½ ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Maid of Orleans. Rich cream ground, mottled and shaded soft pink; 4 ft.	60	4 00	30 00
Mrs. Karl Kelsey. (Orchid Flowered). Orange-scarlet, suffused and striped with yellow; 5 ft.	50	3 50	30 00
Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. A rich but soft crimson-pink, with very large flowers, a robust grower and free bloomer; 4 ft.	2 00	15 00
Olympic. Rich Oriental-red, shading lighter to the centre and dappled carmine. The individual florets and trusses are very large and of excellent form. 5 feet.	$0 85	$ 6 00	$50 00
Panama. The color and markings of this splendid Canna are unusual; the rich orange-red face of the petals is bordered with a broad edge of golden-yellow; 5 ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Philadelphia. Rich deep red; 4 ft.	60	4 00	35 00
Queen Charlotte. Rich pomegranate-red bordered with golden-yellow; 3 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Rosea Gigantea. Large flowers, borne in such abundance that the mass of color is amazing. A deep rich rose, almost a coral-carmine; 4 ft.	1 25	8 00	70 00
Salmon Queen. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy carmine towards the center, a very effective bedder; 5 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Scharfenstein. The beautifully formed, large round florets are produced in compact but graceful trusses. The color is a unique light red salmon with orange and carmine suffusions that forms a most attractive addition to the range of colors found in Cannas; 5 ft.	85	6 00	50 00
Schopenhauer. A rich brilliant red with yellow throat, very free; 3 ft.	75	5 00	40 00
Souv. de F. Langle. Very distinct orange-red color, edged with gold; 4½ ft.	75	5 00	40 00
Superb. Deep salmon with bronze foliage; 4½ ft.	60	4 00	35 00
The Gem. An entirely distinct spotted variety. The immense trusses of flowers are borne on upright branching stems well above the foliage, and are of deep cream or straw-yellow, spotted with deep carmine; 4½ ft.	1 50	10 00	90 00

The BEST of Them All

From a photograph made by a staff photographer for The Review, at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, January 22, during the Convention of the American Carnation Society

Holly Berry

The New Christmas Cherry

A cross of Cleveland and Melvini

A truly wonderful dwarf-spreading growth. Dark color, red berry—not so large as Cleveland, smaller foliage, very heavily set with berries on top of plants, well above the foliage, and comes about ninety per cent true from seed. Will hold berries for six months.

CHOICE COMMERCIAL VARIETIES.

Rooted Cuttings of List Below, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000.

C. H. Totty. Chestnut scarlet; flower large and growth strong.

Chadwick Supreme. Color similar to Pacific Supreme; reflexed bloom. A sport of W. H. Chadwick. In bloom from November 20 to December 1.

Golden Mistletoe. Sport of Mistletoe. The parent is our latest flowering variety, coming well into December. It is ball-shaped. An excellent companion for the parent.

Indian Summer. The groundwork is yellow, but into this are blended terra-cotta and salmon shades, with a tinge of bronze. The color of autumn foliage during Indian summer is a measure describes the coloring. It is a sport of Golden Chadwick.

Wells' Late Pink. Clear, bright pink in color.

William Turner. Pure white bloom, incurved and very large. One of the finest of the large-flowered chrysanthemums and a general favorite. This variety is grown commercially and we have a large stock prepared for the cut flower grower.

Yellow Turner. The yellow sport sent out by Smith is the variety we offer. It is excellent and will rank as one of the finest for exhibition use.

STANDARD COMMERCIAL VARIETIES.

Rooted Cuttings of All in the Following List, $3.50 per 100, $30.00 per 1000.

WHITE.

Early: Early Frost, Oconto, Smith's Advance, Polly Rose, Crystal Gem.

Midseason: Charles Rager, Smith's Imperial, White Chieftain.

Late: Lynnwood Hall, Timothy Eaton, December Gem, Hamburg Late White, Mistletoe, White Seidewitz, White Bonnaffon.

YELLOW.

Early: Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Golden Queen, Marigold, Tints of Gold, Yellow Polly Rose, Robert Halliday.

Midseason: Colonel Appleton, Golden Gleam, Mrs. C. C. Pollworth, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, Richmond (watch this variety, called an early Bonnaffon, perfect form and color and every commercial man should try it), Tiger, Yellow Rager.

Late: Major Bonnaffon, Yellow Eaton, Golden Eagle, W. H. Lincoln.

PINK.

Early: Early Rose, Glory of Pacific, Mrs. W. T. McNiece, Pacific Supreme, Unaka.

Midseason: Chieftain.

Late: Dr. Enguehard, Edwin Seidewitz, Maud Dean, Wells' Late Pink.

BRONZE.

Midseason and Late: Greystone, Miss Elizabeth Smith, October Herald.

RED.

Harvard: Best commercial red.

SEVEN NEW POMPONS.

We Offer from Pots Only, at $4.00 per Dozen, $30.00 per 100.

Not less than one dozen of a variety offered at these prices.

Each one is worthy of a trial, as they have all been shown as leaders not only in color, form and finish, but as growers with sure commercial value.

Anna L. Moran. The color is splendid, a brilliant flame-scarlet, so vivid as to be easily the most striking flower in the entire collection. The flowers are nicely divided on the stem without disbudding, and the growth, foliage and stem are all that can be desired. The individual flowers on this pompon are large, on the order of the Doty type, and it is worthy of note by the commercial growers that this variety in a glutted market brought 50 cents per spray, wholesale price, which with us is a record for pompon mums.

Nelma Putnam. The outer petals of this variety are rose pink and shade to pinkish bronze in the center, and the very center of the flower is creamy yellow. A very pleasing color effect. Has been grown with marked success as an outdoor variety.

Mrs. H. Harrison. One of the first of the pompons to come in flower, being in excellent condition to cut outdoors and also from the greenhouse bench the middle of October. The color when grown indoors is a dainty blush. Outdoor blooms come several shades deeper. Commercial growers who have seen this variety have picked it to be included in their collection.

Frances Huckvale. Gardenia white, with a creamy shaded center. Far in advance of Queen of the Whites, or any other pompon. An exquisite variety to use for cut flowers, being particularly valuable for florists' made-up work.

Mrs. Chester Robinson. This variety is a very tall, strong grower, running 4½ to 5 feet tall in the benches. Flowers are very large, as large or larger than Doty, which it somewhat resembles, though it is deeper in color, being a lovely old rose shade of pink. Exceptionally robust in growth, with the stalk rigid and every flower well divided on the stem, so that no disbudding is necessary.

Mrs. Henry F. Vincent. An exquisite shade of fawn and bronze with a salmon-pink shading, a color that was one of the most popular shades in New York during the season just past. This variety also is very strong in growth and the foliage is perfect in every way. We predict this will be one of the most popular novelty colored chrysanthemums when generally introduced.

Julia De Witt. Bright bronzy-amber with deeper shadings. A dainty and exquisite variety. Quite large in size of individual flowers and gracefully arranged on the stem or spray. Foliage and growth very clean and strong. To anyone wishing a novel colored mum that will give them plenty of cut flowers, we strongly recommend Julia De Witt.

NEW POMPONS.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.00 per Dozen, $8.00 per 100.

Becky McLane. In full crop just ready for Thanksgiving. Could easily have been held to December this year. This gives you an idea of this valuable late flowering pompon. It is a small bronze, but richly colored and very popular, a strong upright grower and makes good single plants. The stems are stiff and straight.

Cometa. Dark, rose-shaded magenta, a very attractive color which does not fade. Growth upright and strong. Excellent variety for disbudding. A seedling from Lillian Doty.

THE 1920

Mrs. J. Leslie Davis

Clear lavender-pink sport of that most satisfactory white variety, William Turner. Identical with the parent in every way except color, and completes the set, giving us White, Yellow and Pink Turner, which are so satisfactory for exhibition purposes, as well as for fancy commercial blooms. If you can grow William Turner or Yellow Turner, you will want Mrs. J. Leslie Davis.

2¼-inch pot plants, $2.00 each, $20.00 per doz.

Hamburg Late Pink

An improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and if grown late will hardly ever show an open center. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December.

Rooted Cuttings, $16.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000
2-inch pot plants, $18.00 per 100, $160.00 per 1000

November Pearl. A seedling from Western Beauty. In color very beautiful soft shade of daybreak pink. It grows easily and cuts good sprays on strong stems. It is a fine flower of medium size and is a valuable acquisition to the list of November flowering varieties.

Ouray. The best early dark bronze. In bloom October 20th. The color is a dark, mahogany brown and does not fade. The flowers are medium size and stems are wiry.

Uvalda. Very early white, maturing October 10. A large flower and when fully opened is a pure, glistening white.

Vasco. This variety is exceptionally good for sprays. Should be classed as a decorative Chrysanthemum. Bright, glowing yellow, maturing October 17th.

White Gem. Pure white button type. Ready November 15th. A free-growing, free-branching type that cuts quantity per square foot.

POMPONS AND SINGLES.

The Following List We Offer from 2¼-inch Pots Only at $5.00 per 100, $45.00 per 1000.

POMPONS.

Kenneth. Pure white, large flowers.

White Doty. Pure white sport of Lillian Doty. Excellent spray variety, heavy grower and very hardy out of doors.

Queen of the Whites. Pure white, button type.

Lillian Doty. This variety needs but little description. It is doubtful if there is a pompon that is more satisfactory both for cut flowers and its easy growing qualities.

Little Gem. Clear lavender pink button, medium height. Very good for pot plants, also a good producer for sprays for cut flower purposes.

SINGLES.

Vivian Cook. Brilliant canary yellow. Larger and earlier than Golden Mensa. A valuable variety.

Mrs. J. A. Stewart. Beautiful bronze with yellow zone. Very attractive.

Mrs. W. E. Buckingham. The best midseason pink, maturing from October 20 to November 1. A profitable commercial variety.

Mrs. Albert Phillips. A deep lavender that is welcome, particularly as it is fully developed by October 5. A very pretty sort.

Bronze Buckingham. A bronze sport of Mrs. W. E. Buckingham with all its good qualities.

Fermidge. Bright scarlet shading to clear terra-cotta with bright gold zone around center. A very attractive variety and a good grower.

Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. Clear light pink, strong growing and a valuable commercial variety for late cutting.

POMPONS—STANDARD VARIETIES.

Rooted Cuttings, $3.50 per 100, $30.00 per 1000.

WHITE.

BABY MARGARET. White button sport of Baby. November 15 to 20.

DIANA. Large pure white. Fine Thanksgiving sort.

LULA. Medium size. November 10 to 15.

MAID OF KENT. Early button type. Very fine. October 15 to 20.

"Sprinkleproof" Chiffon

Unlike ordinary chiffon, which wilts and becomes sticky when exposed to moisture, our "Sprinkleproof" Chiffon, being treated with an exclusive chemical process, repels moisture.

Remember, you must sprinkle flowers to retain their fresh appearance. No matter how carefully ordinary chiffon is tied, it is bound to be affected by the moisture. Florists who have consistently and continually used our "Sprinkleproof" Chiffon find that satisfied customers compliment them upon the fresh appearance of their flowers, when in reality it is the fresh appearance of the chiffon, combined with good flowers, which provokes satisfactory comment.

Beware of imitations and substitutions, of which there are a number on the market. Remember, we are the originators and sole distributors of "Sprinkleproof" Chiffons.

Made in the following widths: 2-inch, 4-inch, 6-inch, 8-inch, 10-inch.

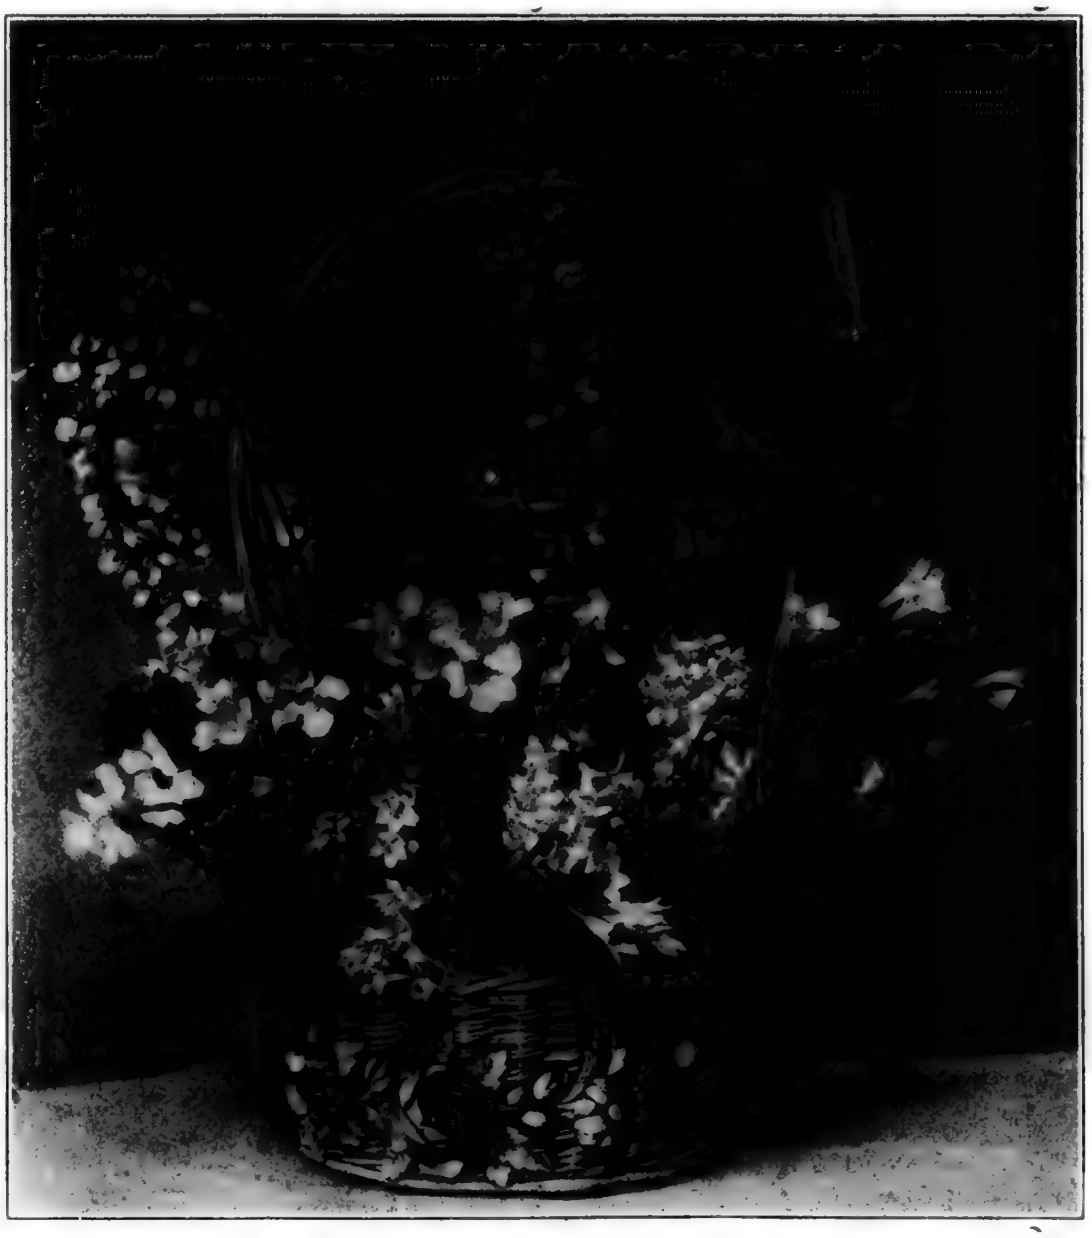
Office and Salesroom, 17-25 East 24th Street, NEW YORK

Country-wide prosperity and a season profitable without parallel encourage florists to prepare for an Easter that will surpass all we have known.



MORE favorable conditions for the big spring holiday than those florists enjoy this year have never been experienced in the trade's history. The country as a whole has money and is spending. Among other things, it will spend it at Easter — and has been spending it—for flowers. All classes are prosperous and the high prices do not deter any from paying them. Indeed, the public is now so inured to the high cost of living that the newspapers no longer carry column upon column each day with attempts and schemes to bring it down. There are, indeed, statements made that prices have reached their peak and from now on will more likely recede than advance. But the influences which cause these assertions are felt only by those who are in close contact with production and wholesale interests and are not as yet felt by the consumer. So the latter, accustomed to soaring prices for all commodities, have become less sensitive to them and buys with less hesitation and complaint than he did a few months ago.

Many Buyers.

In the case of flowers, it is likely that prices for Easter will not hit the mark reached at Christmas time. There is little probability that they will be so high as they have been since that holiday. So the old flower buyers who thought twice about paying the stiff figures asked a short time ago will have been brought back into the fold by Eastertide by the low prices now prevailing and will buy as they have at this holiday in former years. The florist will look to see among his customers at Easter the newly prosperous individuals who have become contributors to his till of late and also the old patrons who were absent for a time.

The conditions that make flower buyers numerous prevail all over the country, in the rural districts as well as in the cities, in manufacturing localities as well as in the commercial centers. Unemployment is unknown; everybody has a job who wants to work. The industrial unrest of today is not caused by lack of adequate remuneration and steady employment, but by the generosity of remuneration and abundance of employment. Everybody is being paid so well each one wonders if he cannot demand and obtain more. The result may not be viewed with altogether perfect satisfaction by the Society for the Promotion of Thrift, but it brings much money into florists' and other shops.

Everybody celebrates Easter and flowers seem the proper thing at that time. Christmas has, it is claimed, gone ahead of the spring holiday, in dollars if not in number of sales. But there are many florists whose customers have not generally adopted the custom of sending such unutilitarian things as flowers for Christmas gifts, but who can, nevertheless, be counted on to grace their front window with an Easter lily for Easter morning. This Easter we can certainly reckon on a larger number of sales than at Christmas and the sold out sign is sure to be called into use.

Mixed Cut Flowers of Spring Make an Attractive Easter Basket.

Get Ready.

Whether the total figures in money will rise to the equal of last Christmas may be questioned, but there is no doubt that florists will all make money.

From the present outlook, the amount of Easter sales will be limited by stock obtainable and by the ability to handle the rush in the store the two or three days before April 4. Both these factors in the day's business require the foresight and preparation of the florist. In accordance with his ability to make proper provision in regard to them will be his profits at that time. Despite the efforts of retailers to induce the public to do its shopping early, the bulk of the sales for Easter come in the last two days. This fact requires preparation on the part of the store proprietor to arrange facilities for taking orders and filling them in the most expeditious manner. The value of such forehandedness cannot be overemphasized. The loss that results from the waste made by haste and by inexperienced help without proper guidance and instructions ahead of time eats up the profits on many sales. This loss is the more to be deplored because it is avoidable; such things as marking the price of all stock plainly, placing supplies so that they are easily available and not hopelessly scattered and mixed, dividing the force into salesmen and order fillers so that each individual can exert his efforts to most advantage, routing deliveries and handling them properly, and a number of other helps that can be provided according to each store's situation and facilities—all these will make the profits at Easter larger.

Watch Weather.

The early date of Easter this year and the severity of the season make uncertain as yet what weather can be expected for the holiday. It may be necessary, in case of a cold spell, to take more than usual care at Easter in wrapping plants. The florist should not be caught unprepared by the weather, or the day will prove far from satisfactory to him and his customers. He must watch his delivery trucks, if he has additional ones put on for the day, to see that the bodies are sufficiently tight to protect the plants against inclement weather.

The matter of delivery is one that requires attention and thought. Proper routing of orders will save time. The cars should be kept going, too, for the waits between trips eat up much valuable time unless care is taken.

Be Prepared.

Many other phases of Easter's business can be expedited and made much easier by careful study and planning beforehand. Some have already been touched upon; others are suggested elsewhere in this issue and perhaps the individual florist will think of others which can be improved in his own case, according to his own particular situation and needs. Start early and make thorough preparation and your nervous system as well as your pocketbook will greatly profit thereby.

HOLIDAY SYSTEM.

More Business, Less Rush.

"The idea of system as it runs through your head is beautiful," somebody says, "but when it comes to the rush your most finely spun system loses out." Yes, it does if you let go of it. It is impossible to handle a rush without it. You may escape with your life, going at it haphazard, but your nervous system and your loss and gain account will pay the penalty.

In the first place, separate the order and sales departments. Let the salesmen sell; don't hamper them with filling orders between times. Have a separate room or portion of a room screened off for order work and let this group of workers be undisturbed by requests from customers who wish to be waited upon. To take care of trade already gained is just as important as gaining more.

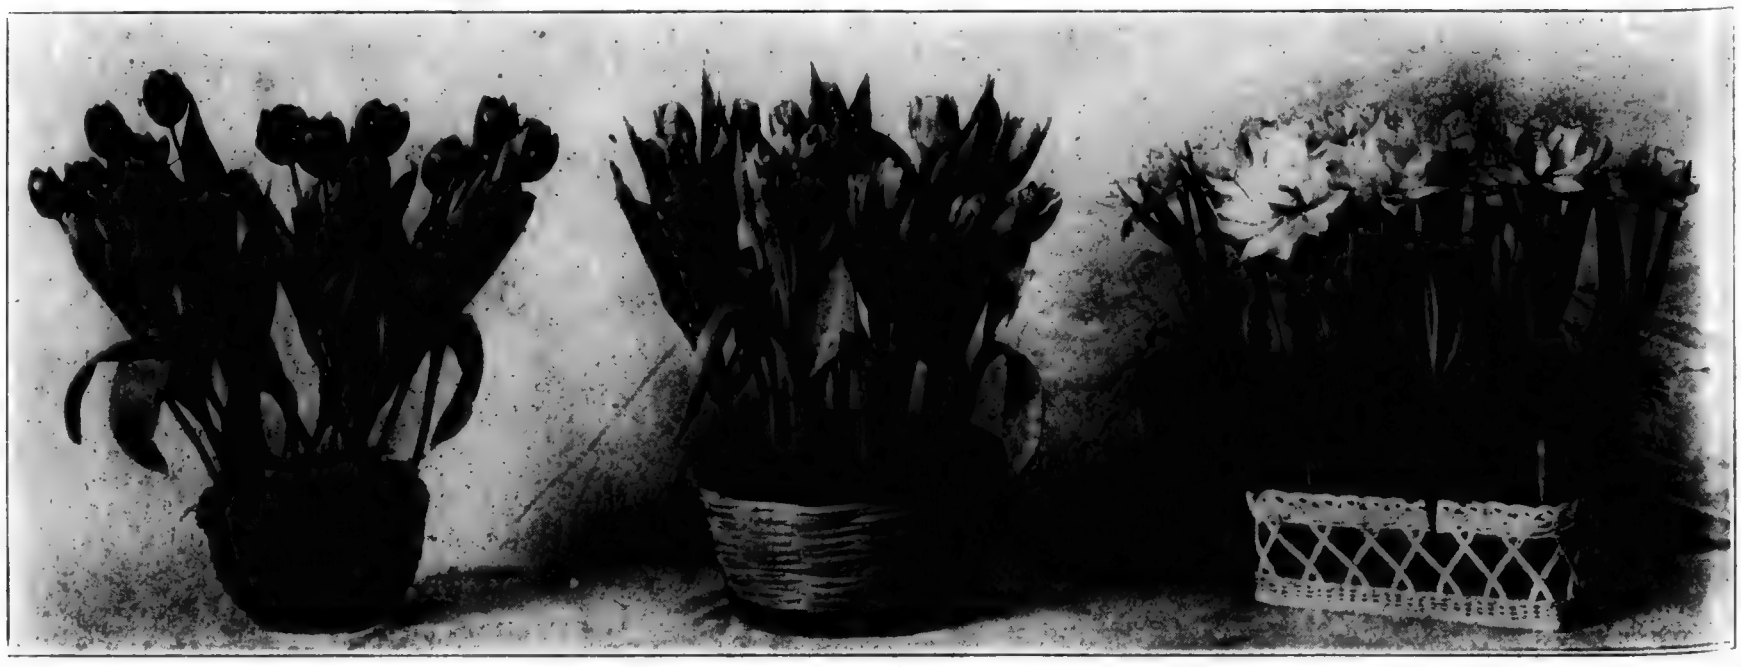
In the Order Room.

According to the number of competent people whom you can muster for the order room, arrange your order slips. If there are at least two experienced people, let one take charge of the shipping and the other take charge of the city deliveries. Each of these files should first be arranged according to time of delivery, with the first order out on top. Then, as each order is filled and the order sheet checked off, bunch the packages for different express offices and districts of the city. Have a separate place for rush orders and special deliveries. Don't burden a delivery man with too long a trip; better make two shorter trips of it. You can get orders out and delivery made before late bedtime. What do sleepy people want of flowers and plants?

Before starting to fill orders, have all the necessary articles right at hand—express books, boxes of all sizes, string, ribbon, paper, extra pencils, train schedules, city directory and map, timepiece, order blanks, tags, scissors, knife, hammer and nails, all the bench room and floor space possible, a stool for a moment's rest now and then, a clean, dry space to write on, etc.

Sorting City Orders.

If city and shipping orders are separated and deliveries for set times may be reduced to specials, sort your bunch of orders for the city by districts, getting out all the orders for one district first. New orders, which are continually pouring in from the order room, should be placed upon a separate file, to wait until advance orders are filled.



According to the accumulation of deliveries when it is getting late in the day, stop taking delivery orders. There is no limit to what people will ask. They will ask you to deliver immediately at 11 o'clock at night. Possibly for a slight difference in price they will carry their own packages or postpone delivery till the next day.

Taking Charge of Stock.

Stock keeping, if carefully watched, does much to preserve the peace of mind of both customer and shopkeeper. Of course there are extra helpers for the holiday rush and usually the greenhouse force is drafted into service. These men are accustomed to handling stock. Place one of them, or more if necessary, in charge of storing and keeping tab on the reserve stock. The man or men appointed for this purpose will hand the stock out as wanted and will prevent pulling and hauling and destroying by inexperienced help. How many times it is sickening to see the way in which good stock is destroyed by nervous help! It is better policy to keep only a fair amount of stock on display, and let it sell out quickly and be frequently renewed, than to have it all in view and continually mauled over, and a large proportion spoiled by overhandling, bad air and drafts.

Keeping Tab on Greens.

Keep tab on the green goods. An enormous amount may be used in a short time. Let the stock man give warning as it gets low. It is a serious inconvenience to have to wait for green. Watch how much goes in with flowers over the counter. Little except own foliage should be dealt out, unless with extra fine orders.

In the arrangement of blooming plants in the salesroom, be sure to separate varieties and colors. It will be much easier then to make a selection than to roam all over the room picking the choicest plant of a favorite variety. Don't fill up small gaps too promptly; let people see that you are selling and what you are selling, and a choice will be more quickly made. Let there be more business with less work for this rush.

MAKING EASTER PROFITABLE.

Watching the Extra Expenses.

If the volume of business done by a retailer during Easter week could be extended over a long enough period to be handled without the cost of additional store help, drivers, errand boys, horses or automobiles, the profits would naturally be more than under the present circumstances. Still, by carefully watching every detail the extra expenses can be greatly reduced, and every dollar saved at this time is a dollar added to the profits.

First of all, refer to your notes on last Easter and see how violets, sweet peas, roses, etc., sold, and in placing your orders for this year's supply order accordingly, allowing a liberal amount for increased business, but do not buy recklessly. It is more profitable to lose a few sales than to have several thousand violets left the day after.

Baskets sell well at Easter, but should not be made up too long before or too many at one time. It is more advisable to make them up as the demand requires, for immediately after Easter the market for them will be gone and then the stock in them will be practically useless.

The Extra Help.

Plants and baskets should all be marked with the selling price by some competent person and this price should not be cut without first consulting the person in charge. It is also wise not to allow the extra salespeople to sell cut flowers, especially roses, unless they have had previous experience in handling flowers, as many an expensive rose or carnation is broken through being carelessly handled. Let none but your regular help sell cut flowers or take orders for design work.

By using some judgment in engaging your extra help, many a dollar can be saved. Hire enough help, but do not give every friend or relative a job just to make yourself a good fellow. Friends are all very well, but treat them as you would strangers if you wish them to earn their pay in Easter week.

Unnecessary Wastefulness.

In putting up the numerous boxes of loose flowers for delivery, an extra flower of a kind of which you have a surplus in stock will do no harm, but often, in their enthusiasm or forgetfulness, employees will fail to keep track of their count and, if this is not guarded against, many dollars will be given away, for which not you but the sender will receive thanks. If you want to give flowers away, enclose your card and send them where they will bring returns.

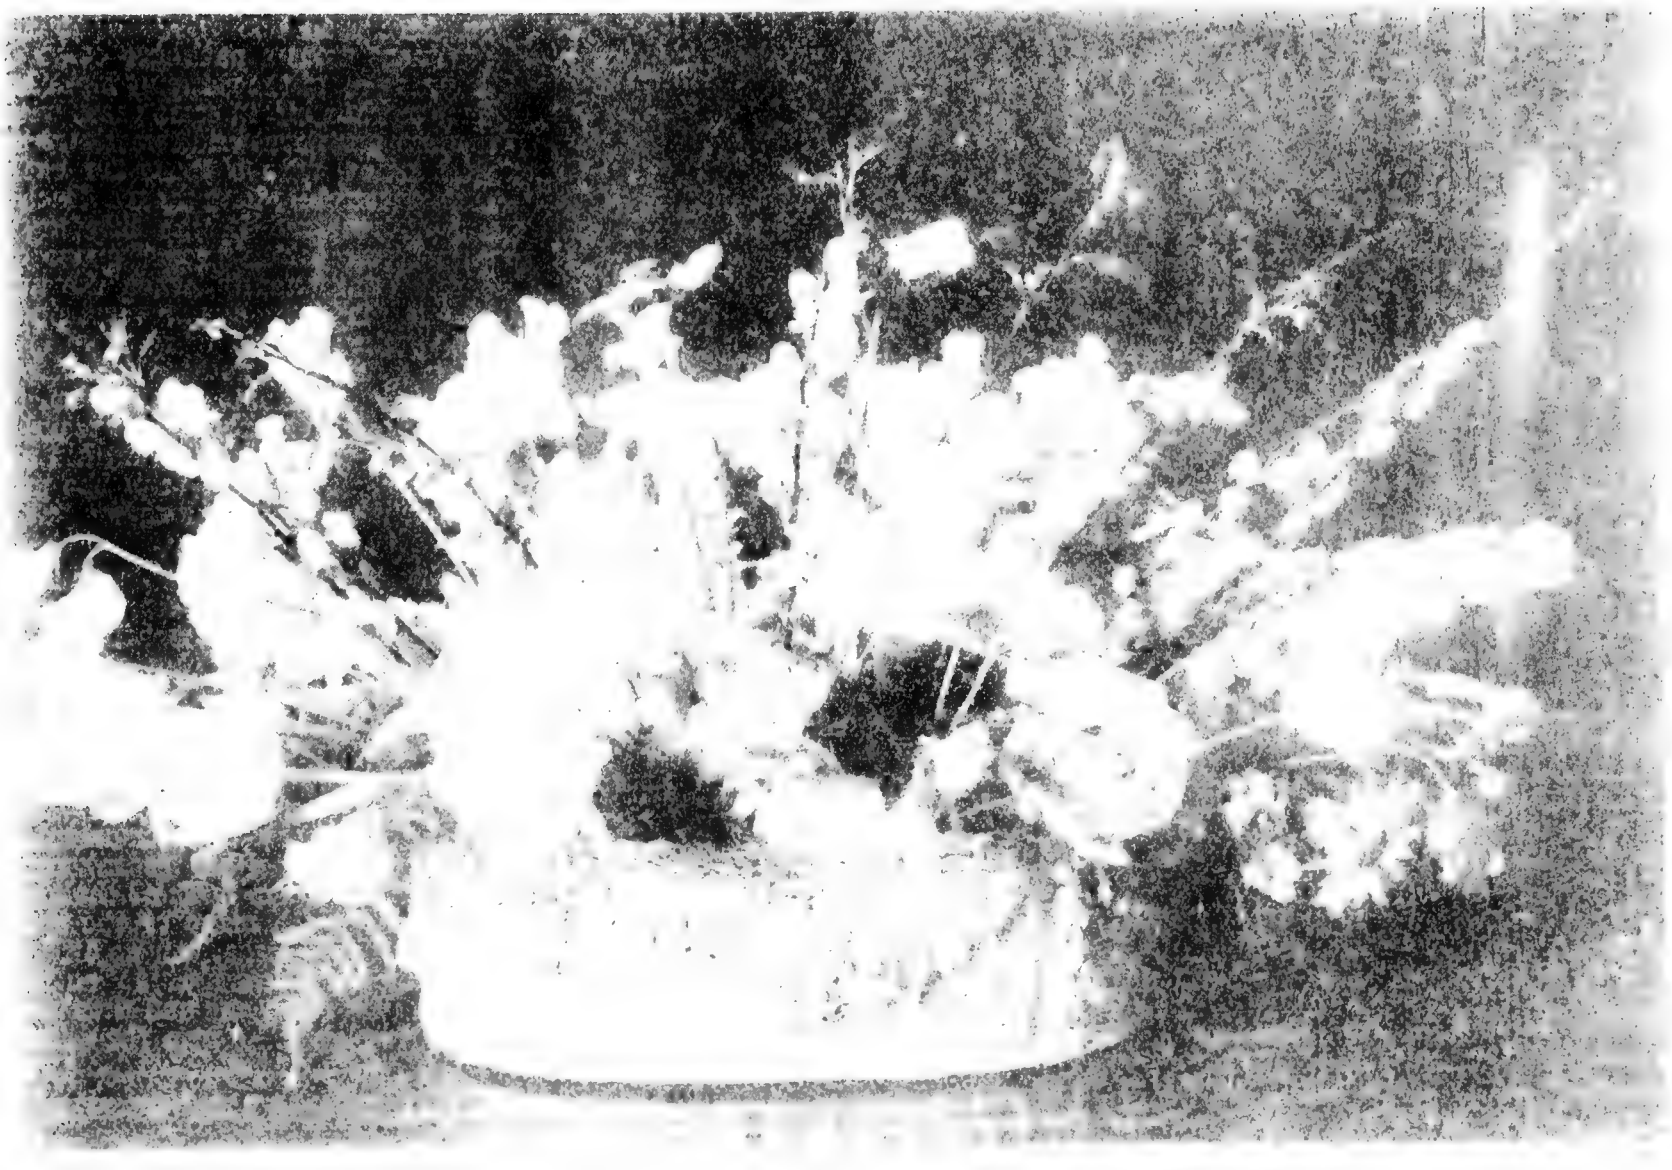
Plants should all be carefully wrapped to guard against cold and breakage, but much unnecessary waste of paper and twine is often caused during the rush by allowing these materials to be trampled underfoot. This, of course, is a small item; still, if the small leaks are closely watched there will probably be no large leaks.

Troubles That May Be Avoided.

Instruct your salespeople not to ask too many questions as to when an article shall be delivered; this will give you more leeway. Also see that the full, correct address of the customer is obtained; this will save many an extra trip, or perhaps a pull from east to west or north to south.

There is no reason why profits on such occasions as Easter or Christmas should not be in proportion to our regular profits. It is natural for a person to get careless when business is rushing and this carelessness costs money. By keeping an eye on all that is going on, you can stop many a small leak and thereby earn many an extra dollar during an Easter rush.

THE FACULTY OF BEING READY.



A Useful Faculty at Easter.

There are some men who never seem to be ready for anything, no matter how much time they have had to prepare, while there are others whom an emergency seldom finds off their guard. The differences in the two are readily seen in a retail store at a holiday like Easter. To which of the foregoing classes do you belong?

The retailer who grows his own stock can easily have at least two-thirds of the plants wrapped, with the number of flowers penciled on the wrapper, the day before. Orders can be rapidly filled from these in most cases, though occasionally a customer wants a certain plant and will take no other. The only course then is to let him or her have it and wrap it specially. In many instances the grower from whom the retailer purchases his stock is so well known for straight dealing that he can be relied on to pack and number the plants as has just been indicated, and this will also be a time-saver.

HOLIDAY SYSTEM

Never label plants or wrapped baskets on their side, but always on the top, with a tied-on label. When the adhesion label is used on the side and several plants are placed together on the floor of the store or in the wagon, it is impossible to get at the label without pushing the hand and arm down between the plants, and often to their detriment, to say nothing of the loss of time involved. The label on top can be seen at once and handled without pulling the plant or basket about.

About Early Orders.

It is useless to request customers to give their orders early unless you are prepared to fill them early and fill them right. The customer who is kept waiting after being asked to order early is not likely to give an early order next time.

The help problem is another that has to be considered early. It is folly to wait until everything is behindhand before getting proper help. Where everything is rushed by tired and half-hearted employees, mistakes and oversights are sure to occur, but with the right kind of help, started early, the proprietor or manager of the store can always be in front of his work, not behind. In short, the "faculty of being ready" is a mighty useful thing around Easter time.

EASTER DELIVERY.

The extra delivery facilities demanded at a holiday deserve as careful consideration as any of the problems connected with doing a month's business in three days. The average florist has as many deliveries to make Saturday afternoon and Easter morning as are made in all the rest of the month, and unless the delivery system is carefully planned the work is likely to become what is technically described as "all balled up." The man who has some greenhouses back of the store has a tremendous advantage at Easter. No better system has ever been devised than the one modeled on that used in the big express office or department store. It will pay any retailer who has trouble with the shipping department to visit and study the systems used where large numbers of packages go out daily.

The department store has the city divided into sections, with a delivery car for each. The florist who has a large number of deliveries for Easter morning will do the same thing. He may not have a different car for each route, but will send the same machine on more than one trip. When the department store's packages come to the shipping room the shipping clerk has the floor marked off, in some cases with permanent partitions and sometimes merely with paint, with a space for each trip each automobile is to make. Each package as received in the shipping room goes direct to the proper space on the floor. Consequently, when the automobile is ready to start everything that has reached the shipping room is ready to go in the car; nothing is left behind. If the florist adopts this system, it will obviate the exasperating special trips to deliver the one plant that did not get on the right delivery trip; the problem then will be to get the orders put up in time.

With greenhouses at his back, the florist's preparations for delivery are greatly simplified. A bench can be set apart for the plants that can be delivered Saturday, and others for Sunday morning's deliveries, and space in the greenhouse probably can be provided, as the plants move out, so that the sales for each section of the city for each day can be set away by themselves. The man who has neither greenhouses nor unused floor space back of the store, as is the case with many of the stores in city business blocks, can do little more than tag his plants "Sold" as his customers pick them out and then work up his deliveries as he gets the chance.

THE DATE OF EASTER.

Easter Sunday falls on dates as widely separated as thirty-two days during the present century, the earliest being March 24, 1940, and the latest April 25, 1943. Next year it will be even earlier than it is this year, falling on March 27. The following year it will be late, not coming till the middle of April. Here are the dates of Easter for the next five years:

1921	March 27
1922	April 16
1923	April 1
1924	April 20
1925	April 12

BACK IN THE OLD DAYS.

This Easter the florist thinks high prices every time he looks at lilies. The years are short since the time they could be had at one-third the price charged this year and only five years ago they were even lower. Abnormal conditions are responsible for the high figures, however, and it is expected and hoped that another year will bring lower ones. The wholesale quotations at Easter in recent years may prove interesting comparisons; they are as follows:

	Per 100
1912	$ 8.00 @ $15.00
1913	8.00 @ 15.00
1914	10.00 @ 15.00
1915	6.00 @ 12.00
1916	8.00 @ 12.00
1917	8.00 @ 12.00
1918	8.00 @ 15.00
1919	25.00 @ 30.00
1920	25.00 @ 35.00

PLANTS FOR THE EASTER PARADE

SPLENDID VARIETY IN SUPPLY.

Weather Causes Uncertainty.

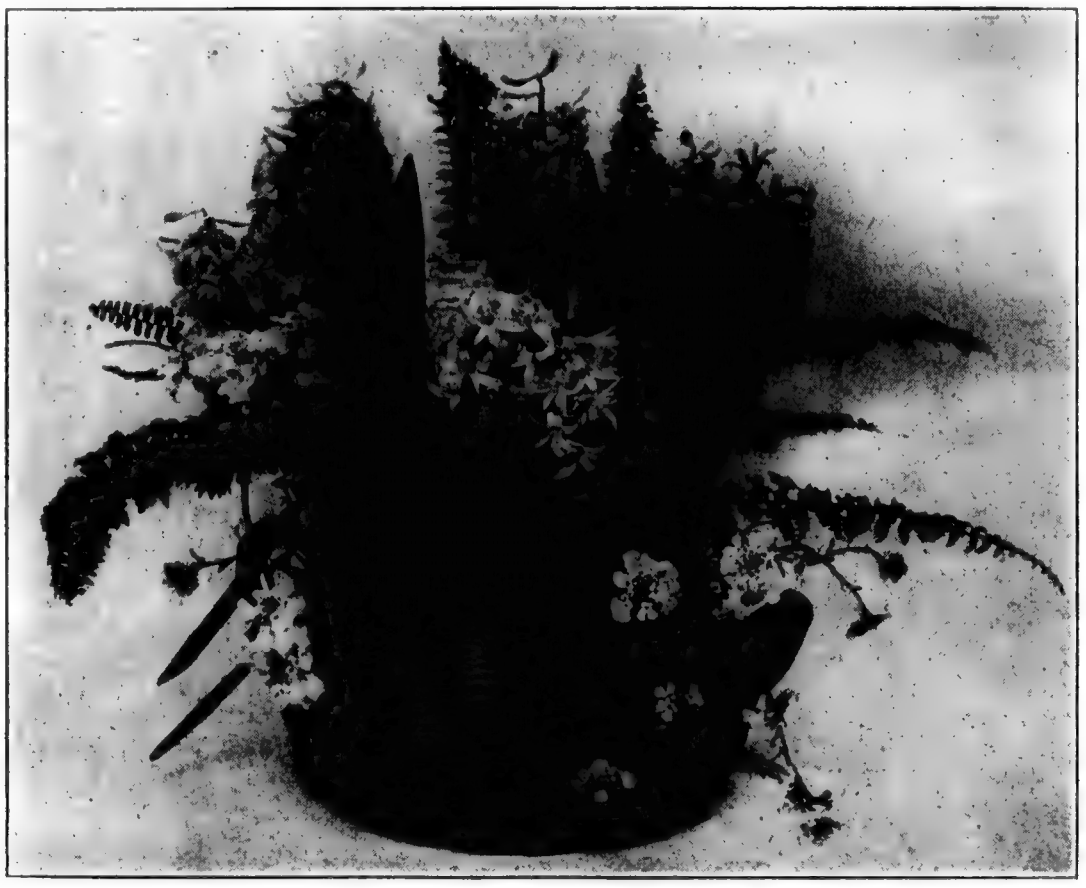
It would naturally be thought that, after a severe winter, we might expect a balmy Easter, but pleasant weather for the great flower holiday, devoutly though it may be wished, is a quite uncertain quantity. Of that we have had a bitter experience on more than one occasion in late years. We have special cause to remember the Easter of 1915, when the most furious snow storm of the winter struck the eastern states April 3, and in large measure paralyzed business. The date of Easter, April 4, was the same as in 1920, but let us hope the weather man will be much more merciful. But since we have climatic vagaries to contend with, let us be prepared for them and lay in an ample stock of wrapping material for plants. Heated delivery cars are of great value when the weather is cold. It is true that horses have been much more valuable than automobiles in the great eastern cities for a large part of the present winter and those who have dispensed with all horses have been hard put to it in making deliveries.

It would appear that Easter, 1920, will see as fine an assortment of flowering plants as we have ever had. It is true that we shall miss azaleas, but lilies are with us once more in good numbers and hydrangeas are proving fine substitutes for azaleas. I do not think there will be any surplus of plants and weeks before Easter the leading plant factories are pretty well cleaned out. Cut flowers at Easter are of but secondary importance; pot plants are what people want and their popularity will be greater than that enjoyed by cut flowers. For, while the latter for months are abnormally scarce and dear, pot plants have been offered at reasonable prices right along.

Lilies Good at High Prices.

Although one cargo of giganteum lilies went to the bottom of the ocean, there seems to be a fairly good supply available. The quality is extra good, with a smaller proportion than usual of diseased bulbs. The plants also are a little later with me, which is an advantage. At wholesale these lilies will probably command 35 cents per bud, which is not excessive when everything is considered. The much inferior cold-storage specimens offered in 1919 easily realized these prices. With so much dark, cold weather and something of a coal famine to boot, some batches I have seen are late and need a few weeks of clear, sunny weather. The rate of growth in March is much accelerated as compared with that in February and, with the laggards, advantage should be taken of every clear day to bottle up plenty of sun heat and to keep the atmosphere of the lily house saturated with moisture.

Get all pots washed before the flowers open; keep pollen masses removed and if a cool cellar or storage shed is at command, place plants there as soon as the first flowers open. Perhaps you are also growing some formosums. They are splendid to cut, as they carry such long stems. They are variable in type and not so much in request as giganteums for pot plants. There are but few candidums this year; a small crop came from France and the bulbs did not average in size at all like those received in pre-war times. Still a few plants, which are showing from five to eleven buds to the stalk, look well and promise to be in on time. These are mainly in 8-inch to 9-inch pots and carry five to eight stalks each. What could be more beautiful for church decoration? In majesty, purity and grace, they are vastly superior to the large-flowered, but stiffer and coarser Easter lilies.



Rambler Roses Sell Well.

There is some change each year in the roses grown for Easter, but one variety still stands out preëminent, viz., Tausendschoen. This forces easily and comes in well ahead of Dorothy Perkins, Excelsa, Lady Gay, American Pillar and other ramblers. It is of a beautiful pink color and sells on sight. The other ramblers have devotees, but none has as large a following as Tausendschoen. The baby form of this rose is also in good demand, while the other polyantha or baby ramblers are filling a large space in many of the plant houses for Easter this year.

I have seen some plants of Silver Moon and Dr. Van Fleet, the beautiful, comparatively new varieties. These should sell remarkably well. I have also seen nice batches of both hybrid teas and hybrid perpetuals. Among the latter, good old Magna Charta makes a better plant than any other. The immaculate Frau Karl Druschki is also a winner. Would it were possible to get a bush rose for Easter with flowers of as beautiful a golden yellow as Marechal Niel and as sweet-scented! What an acquisition such a rose would be!

It is time we had some good yellow hybrid tea roses, but none of them approaches the old Marechal Niel in color and fragrance.

French Hydrangeas.

A decade ago there were few hydrangeas offered at Easter and these were of the old Hortensia or otaksa type. But the advent of the new French varieties, which come in pure white, deep pink, salmon, pale pink, rose, blue and other shades, has caused a revolution in hydrangea culture. They are unlikely to displace the old otaksa for Memorial day sales, or for use as specimens on lawns or on verandas in summer, but for early flowering they are a wonderful acquisition. The smallest plants bloom with remarkable freedom and their ease of propagation and culture, fine range of colors and lasting properties should commend them to any country florist. Such beautiful sorts as Mme. Chautard, Mme. E. Mouillere, Radiant, Mont Rose, General de Vibraye, Mme. Auguste Nonin and Eclaireur can hardly fail to sell at Easter.

Speaking of these lovely plants, now is the time to get in a good-sized batch of cuttings, which when rooted can be potted off and planted outdoors about the end of May, preferably where they can be given some water if the weather is hot and dry, and potted in September, for use another Easter. These hydrangeas flower with wonderful freedom and specimens 10 years old in tubs, carrying fifty or more heads, are seen at some of the plant establishments. These are among the finest offerings for the coming Easter and, Mr. Retailer, be sure to instruct your man who does the watering to give hydrangeas an ample supply, as they are thirsty subjects.

Dutch Bulbous Stock.

A popular class of Easter plants is Dutch bulbous stock. Probably many country florists depend more on these than on almost anything else. They are moderate in price, of easy culture, not susceptible to chills and make an excellent show for the money they cost. Most of these are grown in pans, several bulbs in each. But in the case of hyacinths, single bulbs are sometimes grown. The severe winter has made it difficult for those who are in the habit of keeping their bulbs outdoors to dig them out and the advantages of storing in a cellar or in frames must be quite apparent. In my own case, I kept most of my stock in coldframes, and covered the pans or flats with about an inch of sand. Then, as the weather became colder, I spread eight to nine inches of dry sawdust over them and put sashes on top. I have been able to get at these bulbs without any difficulty and not a trace of frost has reached any of the receptacles, although temperatures of 20 degrees below zero have been recorded. In former years coal ashes or loam has been spread over the pans. This, in spite of outside protection from mats and board shutters, would freeze solid and frequently pans were burst. The sawdust makes a warmer covering and is removed in cakes easily without damaging the tops in the least.

All of these bulbs make rapid headway when placed in heat and, as they sell best when not too far expanded, it would be best to grow them in a cool and shaded house, especially in the case of tulips. A few days of heat will send along any laggards rapidly, but keep everything on the bench well up to the light and not below the benches, where they would become drawn and spindly.

Hard-Wooded Plants.

Indian azaleas will be few in number and each succeeding year will find them rarer, unless, perchance, the F. H. B. lets down the bars so that we can get in some Belgian stock. But at present the board is arrogant and self-satisfied; so we must worry along without them.

Genistas there are in abundance. They are not the best of Easter plants, for, no matter how cool they have been grown, they do not last long in a warm dwelling. While fresh they are fine, but once they begin to droop, it is all up with them. Give them an abundance of water, for one good drying out will mean practical ruin to any plant of this woody nature. Ericas, especially melanthera, are still available. Few plants can be kept in good condition over so long a season as these heaths. Some were in full bloom for Thanksgiving. Christmas saw them in greater numbers, and now many are in perfect condition for Easter. Of course, heaths need cold culture. Anything just above freezing suits them. Yet I know of no flowering plant which will keep better in the average American home than ericas, provided they are kept moist at the root.

Another woody subject not so common as I should like to see it is Chorizema ilicifolia; the brilliant red and yellow leguminous flowers make a striking effect. Still another plant not much Calendulas and Valley in an Ivory-finished Basket.

Tausendschoen is Without a Superior as an Easter Rose, Veritably a "Thousand Beauties."

seen is the rich orange red Streptosolen Jamesonii, which as a standard is decidedly pleasing. A few boronias are seen and their delicious fragrance makes them quite popular. Then there are still some acacias, principally armata, or paradoxa, as it is sometimes called. One more hard-wooded plant is the metrosideros, better known as the bottle-brush plant. While not seen in large numbers, this is a striking plant when well flowered and at once excites comment.

Shrubs Suggest Spring.

While not in such big demand as other plants, deciduous flowering shrubs find much appreciation and there is certainly something attractive and suggestive of spring in these plants. Here, again, hard forcing is inadvisable and it is always best to have, if possible, but a few flowers open; some ship badly if fully expanded. Among shrubs which are easily flowered for Easter are deciduous azaleas, laburnums, deutzias, ornamental malus, Prunus triloba, lilacs, wisterias, forsythias, Staphylea colchica and some of the spiræas.

For Small Pocketbooks.

There are a number of plants, small in size, but of an appealing nature, which, in pots, pans or baskets, sell well at Easter, particularly to those whose pocketbooks are not deep. Pansies everyone likes; forget-me-nots are equally popular and both of these can be planted outdoors if one desires. Then there are English primroses and polyanthus, both suggestive of spring. Geraniums nicely flowered are not to be despised; scarlets sell the best, even at Easter. Other plants still in good condition for Easter are primulas, such as malacoides and obconica, but both must be grown cold to hold them in good condition. The same applies to cinerarias, which have sold well this season, and some will be offered for Easter. Do not expose cinerarias to the sun or they will wilt badly.

Other Offerings.

Some other plants noted which are being offered for the coming Easter include heliotropes in standard form and schizanthus, a beautiful plant, popularly called the poor man's orchid. The flowers resemble small orchids and have excellent keeping qualities, both on the plants and cut. This plant is worthy of much more consideration by commercial growers. Marguerites are fine Easter plants, particularly the white-flowered sorts. The yellows are good to cut, but do not make shapely plants. These need abundant water supply, as do the astilbes, better known in the trade as spiræas. These latter plants cannot be overwatered. The yellow Jasminum primulinum, when grown cool, makes a lovely Easter plant and is still much of a novelty. Callas are here in abundance, but people do not want them when lilies are procurable. They sell better cut than in plant form. Then there are always some of the bright bougainvilleas, with flowers paper-like and somewhat artificial in appearance, but keeping extremely well under adverse conditions.

While this is not a complete list of the flowering plants available, it would appear that a good assortment is offered and the quality seems to grow better each succeeding year.

EXPRESS COMPANY ASKS RAISE.

Needs $25,000,000 More.

The likelihood of higher express rates became an early certainty last week when increased express charges, ranging from ten to seventy-five per cent and estimated to yield $25,000,000 additional revenue annually, were asked by the American Railway Express Co. in a petition filed March 13 with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Increased cost of conducting its business, as well as the urgent need for more complete facilities and equipment, were given as grounds for the request.

The company estimated its deficit for 1919 at $22,036,000 and for the last six months of 1918 at $15,723,000. A deficit

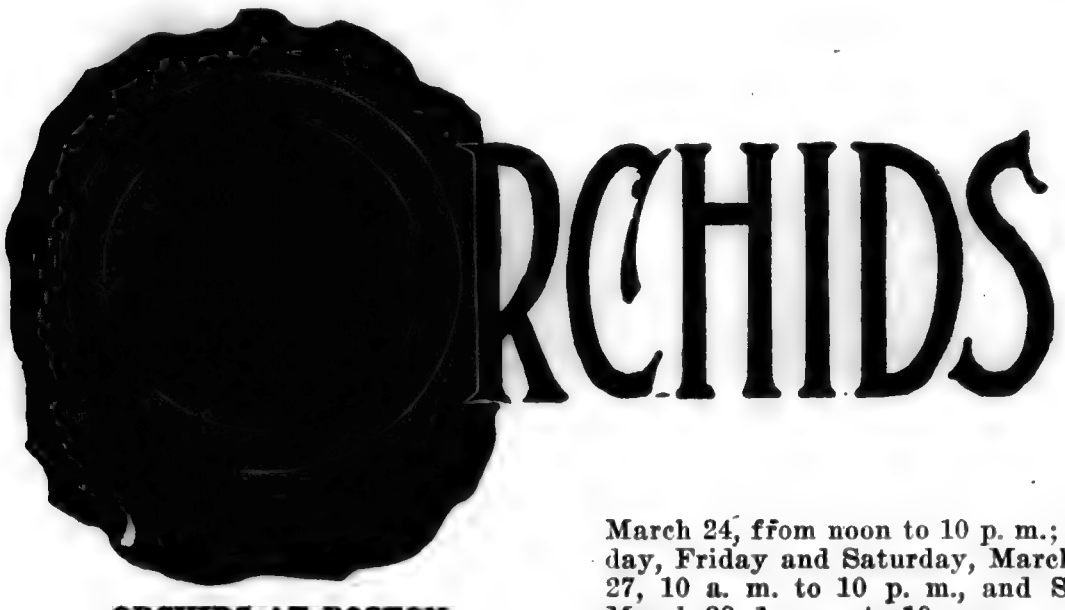
"even greater than for the corresponding period of 1919" was declared probable for January and February of this year.

Up One-Quarter in East.

The company asked for a flat twenty-five per cent increase east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio rivers. Between points in that district and other sections of the country, the increase would be ten per cent.

The largest increase sought was for actual hauling, for which the company asked seventy-five per cent additional in the eastern district and fifty per cent elsewhere.

An increase of thirty-three and one-third per cent was asked for terminal handling of shipments, more than half of which would be turned over to the railroad companies.



How much the actual increase will be in rates governing florists' shipments cannot yet be determined, but from statements made it is judged that it will be generally about twenty-five per cent.

TO FILL CARNATION SPACE.

Growers having carnation beds which have ceased to be profitable or are otherwise unsatisfactory would do well to throw the carnations out and fill in the space with snapdragons. Nelrose is an excellent variety. The tall and dwarf-growing varieties of stocks are also well worth trying; strong plants out of 2½-inch pots, if planted at once, will be in fine crop for Mothers' day and Memorial day.

Salpiglossis is a good flower for vases. These, planted in the early part of winter, would now be in full bloom. They are beautiful and last well in water when cut. They would be ornamental for display in a store window and desirable to those wishing something different. Salpiglossis may be sown now; if planted when large enough in benches about 9x10 inches apart, it will bloom by the end of May and will be profitable, as it requires little care beyond water and a stake for each plant.

ORCHIDS AT BOSTON.

Program of the Conference.

The program for the orchid conference which is to be held in Horticultural hall at Boston, Mass., in connection with the orchid show March 25 to 28 has been announced and promises a broad as well as thorough covering of the main subjects. The conference, the show, the plans for which were described in The Review March 11, and the meeting to be held at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, March 25, at Horticultural hall to organize a national orchid society, will combine to make those four days a period of great interest and significance for American orchidists.

The program of the conference is as follows:

THURSDAY, MARCH 25.

"The Basis of Orchid Classification," by Oakes Ames, North Easton, Mass.

"The Geographical Distribution of Orchids," by E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

FRIDAY, MARCH 26.

"The History of Orchid Culture in the United States," by W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.

"Collecting Orchids," by John E. Lager, of Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.

SATURDAY, MARCH 27.

"The History of Orchids in England," by George I'Anson, of the A. C. Burrage estate, Beverly Farms, Mass.

"Hybridization of Orchids," by Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J.

Hours and Judges for Show.

The orchid show in Horticultural hall will be open as follows: Wednesday, March 24, from noon to 10 p. m.; Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 25 to 27, 10 a. m. to 10 p. m., and Sunday, March 28, 1 p. m. to 10 p. m.

The following judges for the exhibition have been appointed: Samuel J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Donald McKenzie, Brookline, Mass.; Frank J. Dolansky, Lynn, Mass.; Edwin Jenkins, Lenox, Mass.; Joseph Manda, West Orange, N. J.; John E. Lager, Summit, N. J.; A. J. Loveless, Lenox, Mass., and Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J.

The publicity of the exhibition is in the hands of George H. Sargent, who is connected with the Boston Transcript.

AT BEVERLY FARMS.

Albert C. Burrage, of Orchidvale, Beverly Farms, Boston, Mass., is building twelve new houses to be devoted to the culture of orchids. Work on four more houses is to be started immediately. When this range is stocked up, it will contain the largest collection of orchid plants in the United States.

Douglas Eccleston is the superintendent of the estate and Fred W. Pocock, formerly with G. B. Wilson, of Philadelphia, and before that with Alphonse Pericat, Collingdale, Pa., is the orchid grower. Mr. Pocock has spent the whole of his life as a grower and is regarded as one of the best. He learned his business in England and came to this country twelve years ago.

George I'Anson, also from some of the famous places in England, has a section of phalænopsis under his special care, which he grows remarkably well. He has been with Charlesworth & Co., Heaton Bradford, Yorkshire, and Hugh Low & Co., London, and other famous establishments.

Mr. Eccleston is an expert on orchids, in addition to other branches of horticulture, and intends to fill one of the lecture rooms in Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24.

Mr. Burrage is writing a short pamphlet on orchids and intends to distribute many thousand copies to visitors at the exhibition in Boston. The collection of many beautiful varieties of orchids will be well worth a long trip to see them alone. The varieties grown are cattleyas, cymbidiums, cypripediums, odontoglossums, zygopetalums, phalænopsis and oncidiums, all of which are well grown. Nothing is sold from this establishment. The flowers are either used for the family or for hospitals and other charitable purposes.

BOSTON GROWERS TO MEET.

To Form Local of National Body.

A call has been issued to all growers in the vicinity of Boston, Mass., to meet for the purpose of organizing a local of the National Flower Growers' Association, which had its preliminary organization at Chicago at the time of the convention of the American Carnation Society last January. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, March 23, at the American House, Hanover street, Boston. It will be addressed by J. Fred Ammann, the original inspirer and present secretary of the new organization; W. R. Pierson, a member of its organization committee, and others.

The first local of the national association was formed in Chicago soon after the tentative plans were made; another local is in process of formation among the growers of southern Illinois, and the organization of yet other branches is sure to follow in quick succession.

Local Committee.

The letter announcing the Boston meeting is signed by the following local committee: E. Allan Peirce, Thomas Roland, W. H. Elliott, William Sim, W. C. Stickel, A. Christensen and S. J. Goddard. The letter is as follows:

You are earnestly requested to be present at a meeting to be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, March 23, at the American House, Hanover street, Boston, Mass.

At this time J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill.; W. R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and others will address the meeting relative to forming a branch of the National Flower Growers' Association.

At a meeting last January, held in Chicago, a preliminary organization was formed to report at the S. A. F. convention next August, at Cleveland. This organization is to be composed of growers of cut flowers and plants only, for their mutual benefit in the large way that only a national organization can accomplish.

Whether interested or not, you should be present and listen to what these men of national repute have to say, who at their own expense have come to talk to us about what may be accomplished by organization, such as: To stabilize prices by mutual coöperation in national and local advertising; to protect its members against unjust and unlawful exactions; to correct abuses; to protest against the enactment of damaging laws which may be proposed by those unfamiliar with the requirements of the trade, and to collect and disseminate this information.

This meeting will be interesting and of personal benefit to each and every one, whether a large or small grower.

Do not forget the date—Tuesday, March 23, 7:30 p. m., American House, Boston, Mass.

SEVENTH INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW

BIG NEW YORK SHOW OPENS.

Exhibits Crowd Hall.

The seventh international flower show opened at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Monday, March 15, to continue until the night of Sunday, March 21. The show was formally opened by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of President Wilson, through the operation of an electric button in the White House, Washington, D. C. A large crowd awaited the opening of the gates, and it was not long before the main floor of the big hall was thronged with interested visitors. The general admission price was $1 this year, instead of 50 cents as in former years, but in the opening hours of the show the higher price of tickets was no deterrent.

The flower show committee throughout the period of preparation for the big event evinced more than ordinary anxiety over the prospect for a sufficient number of exhibits to fill the two floors engaged, and when unusually stormy weather, with low temperatures, set in just prior to the opening date, this anxiety was intense. But all worry ceased when, Saturday, March 13, there was a grand collection of flowers and plants of all kinds, which were to make up the competitive exhibits for the first day, assembled on the exhibition floor, and many of the commercial exhibits were already staged. Throughout Sunday the work of staging continued, so that at opening time the show was practically complete.

The Rose Gardens.

The plan of the show was materially different from that followed in previous shows. The main aisle and side aisles, which formerly divided the sections, were abandoned. This year a visitor reaching the head of the grand stairway finds himself confronted with some of the beautiful groups of flowering plants, each covering 400 square feet of floor space. Aisles on each side open up vistas leading to the large rose gardens. Each side of these aisles is bordered by handsome groups.

Two large rose gardens look upon a center aisle at the points where the side aisles cross it. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., won first prize in the class for these gardens. The plan of the garden was delightfully simple. It was enclosed within a fence of heavy construction, designed to represent an open stone wall, over which climbing roses in full bloom appeared to roam at will. The beds were narrow and laid out in plats of real grass turf and contained roses in miniature varieties, fully flowered and densely foliaged. A gravel path led to a summer house at the rear, in temple form, with pergola extensions at each side. The garden of F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., won second prize. This was practically the same form of garden used at a previous show, an imitation brown stone open fence wall enclosing a garden laid out in grass beds among gravel walks, with a sundial in a circular bed, back of which was a garden bench, with an extensive pergola at the rear. The roses in the beds were mostly hybrid teas, well flowered, and every plant was named. Another interesting rose garden was one laid out by John Canning, superintendent to Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., really an extension of class 80, which called for a collection of roses in variety covering 100 square feet, arranged for effect. At the rear of this garden were some splendid standard specimens of Tausendschoen and other roses and in front were many varieties of hybrid teas, fully bloomed. It well merited the award of first prize, which it received.

Striking Central Exhibit.

A large space in the center of the main floor was given up to a fountain, furnished through the courtesy of the J. L. Mott Iron Works, New York, which played into a 20-foot basin. Water lilies and other aquatic plants were appropriately disposed at the base and a number of large goldfish disported themselves in the basin. Around the fountain was arranged a splendid collection of nephrolepis ferns exhibited by the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.

Roses Are Always Popular at Easter.

There was only one entry in the rock garden class. Detmer Nurseries, of Tarrytown, N. Y., staged the finest garden ever seen at any exhibition. It rose to a good height and was exceedingly well planted. The assembling of it required many days and the result was well worthy of the first prize, $400.

John Canning, superintendent for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., was the largest exhibitor in the show, making nearly seventy entries, and, in spite of transportation difficulties, filling them almost completely. His group in the class of flowering plants and bulbs covering 400 square feet, arranged for effect, was marvelous, both in point of variety of plants and excellence of stock. Prominent in the foreground of the exhibit was a block of Begonia Melior. A rich piece of statuary with fountain effect added materially to the charm of this group. Several other groups staged by this exhibitor were also highly interesting, particularly a block of nemesia, with flowers in an extended range of colors, the whole wonderfully well finished. This is the first time such an exhibit has been staged at any show.

Good Plant Groups.

A most handsome group, in garden form, of flowering and foliage plants, in which a number of unusually well flowered plants of bougainvillea were most conspicuous, was staged by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and was awarded first prize.

A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., showed a number of potted Easter lilies, the quality of which was said to be the best ever seen in or around New York. The flowers were even in size, quite large and well formed, with no unproductive buds, and dark green foliage from the base of the pots up to the flower base. Mr. Miller says that these points are characteristic of the strain he forces.

Thomas Proctor, superintendent for W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y., staged a collection of camellia flowers embracing a large number of varieties. This exhibit attracted large numbers of visitors at all times, especially ladies mature in years, who remembered the camellia in the days when it was a most popular flower and used when orchids were a rarity.

Bulb Garden.

The prize for the 500-foot bulb garden was won by J. Scheepers, Inc., New York, the only entrant in the class. The garden was artistically laid out in rectangular shape, with a central display of tulips around a stone bird bath on a pedestal. A border on the inside of the picket fence was planted generously with tulips, hyacinths and daffodils, with peach trees and forsythia bushes in full bloom. A handsome summer house at the rear formed an entrance to the garden.

Special Awards.

The following special awards were made to meritorious exhibits not provided for in the schedule:

James Stuart, Mamaroneck, N. Y., gold medal and $100 for group of acacias and clivia plants covering 100 square feet.

J. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., gold medal for exhibit of orchids.

A. Chandler, New York, silver medal for collection of alpine and rock plants.

Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., silver medal for Anthurium Reidii.

J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O., silver medal for Begonia Peerless.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., certificate of merit for collection of crotons; honorable mention for the new double daisy, Craigii; silver medal for Dracæna Longii and honorable mention for collection of dracænas.

Kretschmar Bros., West Nyack, N. Y., certificate of merit for hybrid cypripedium.

August Ihm, Springdale, Conn., silver medal for pansies.

W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., silver medal for specimen heliconia.

Charles T. Beasley, East Milton, Mass., silver medal for pansies and polyanthus.

W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, N. Y., gold medal for callection of camellias.

H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., silver medal for collection of Malmaison carnations.

Rose Day.

The principal event of rose day, March 16, was the staging of the exhibits in the class for a display of cut roses covering 300 square feet and containing not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms, decorative green of any kind, including plants, to be permitted, and general effect to be considered in making award. There were two entries, one by the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., and the other by Traendly & Schenck, Rowayton, Conn., and New York. The groups were closely judged, decision only being arrived at after the deepest consideration. Both displays were most artistic, and both exhibitors had gone the limit as to quantity. The judges awarded first prize to Traendly & Schenck and second to the F. R. Pierson Co.

Awards made in the classes of cut roses were as follows:

One hundred American Beauty—Noe & Ruzicka, Madison, N. J., first; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., second.

One hundred Russell—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

One hundred Ophelia—Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., first; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., second.

One hundred Premier—F. R. Pierson Co., first; Duckham-Pierson Co., second.

One hundred Key—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

One hundred Columbia—F. R. Pierson Co., first; L. B. Coddington, second.

One hundred White Killarney—Duckham-Pierson Co., first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., second.

One hundred Hadley—L. B. Coddington, first; Duckham-Pierson Co., second.

One hundred Hoosier Beauty—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

One hundred Ward—Traendly & Schenck, first.

Fifty any other white—Traendly & Schenck, first.

Fifty any other pink—Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., first; L. B. Coddington, second.

Fifty any other red—Gude Bros. Co., first.

Fifty any other yellow—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

Twenty-five undisseminated—John H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., with F. W. Dunlop.

In the competition for the best hotel table decoration, the Hotel Vanderbilt took first prize with a table of white camellias.

Orchid Section Not Strong.

The orchid section was poor at this show, evidently not having the support of commercial growers it formerly enjoyed. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson had consented to name a new orchid, and sent a card, which was attached to a fine brasso-cattleya originated by the Joseph A. Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., which is now to become known as Mavehona, which in the Cheyenne language is The Princess. The same concern also named a hybrid orchid for General Pershing, in honor of his visit to the show on the opening day.

The awards made on orchids were as follows:

Group of plants in variety, covering 300 square feet, decorative plants permitted, arranged for effect—Joseph Manda Co., West Orange, N. J., first.

Group of twenty-five plants in variety, arranged for effect—Joseph Manda Co., first; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., second.

Group of twelve plants in variety, arranged for effect—A. I. Miles, gardener for J. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., first; Joseph Manda Co., second.

Six hybrid orchids, to be: cattleya, brasso-cattleya, læliocattleya, brasso-lælia, and lælia—Joseph Manda Co., first.

Collection of cut orchids, covering 100 square feet—Joseph Manda Co., first.

Plants in Flower.

The awards made to commercial growers in the classes calling for group or garden of plants in flower were as follows:

Marguerite, six plants—F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., first; Madsen & Christensen, Woodridge, N. J., second.

Marguerite, specimen—Madsen & Christensen, first.

Spiræa, or astilbe, six plants, one or more varieties—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

Flowering and foliage, stove and greenhouse plants, covering 300 square feet, arranged for effect—A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., first.

Border planting of nursery stock, herbaceous plants, bulbs or any other hardy stock—John Scheepers, New York, first.

Rock garden, covering space 15x30 feet—Detmer Nurseries, Tarrytown, N. Y., first.

Palms and Foliage Plants.

There were not many entries in the classes for palms and foliage plants nor in those for ferns. Some classes brought forth no competition at all. The prizes awarded to commercial growers in these classes were as follows:

Areca lutescens, specimen, single or bushy—Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, first.

Bay trees, pyramidal, two plants—Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., first.

Bay trees, standard, two plants—Bobbink & Atkins, first.

Bay trees, columnar, two plants—Bobbink & Atkins, first.

Box trees, pyramidal, two plants—Max Schling, New York, first.

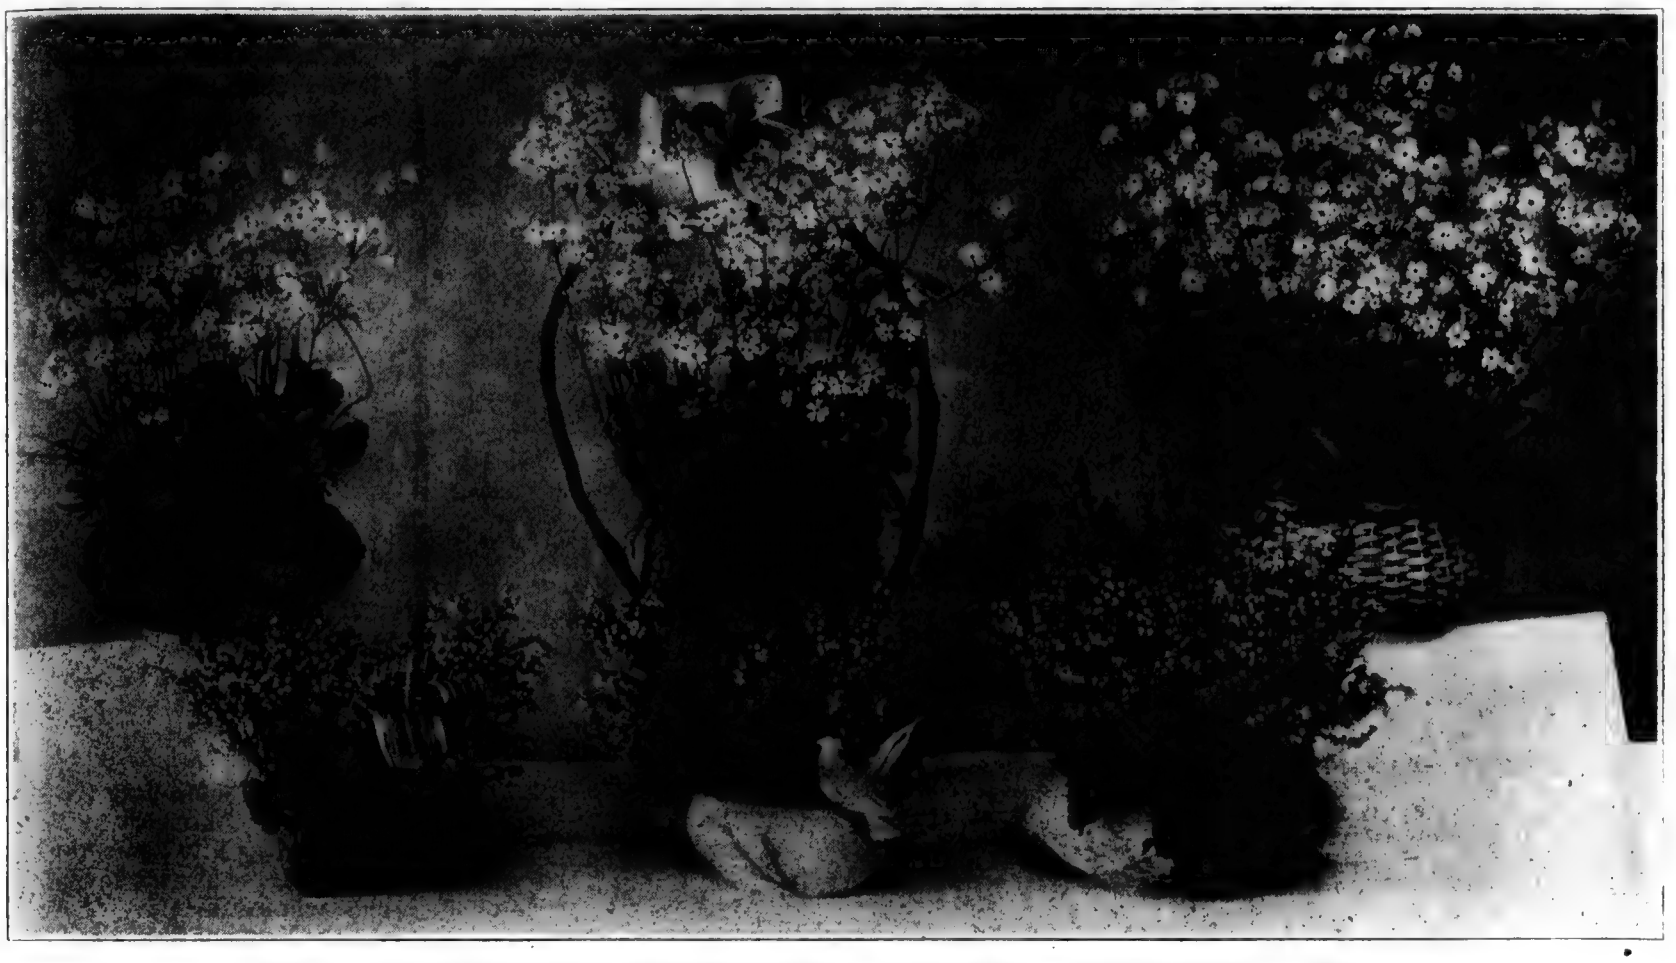
Adiantum Farleyense or its types, six plants, not less than 8-inch, pots or pans—A. N. Pierson, Inc., first.

Nephrolepis, specimen, any variety—Robert Craig Co., first; F. R. Pierson Co., second.

Cibotium Schiedei, specimen, not less than 12-inch, pot or tub—F. R. Pierson Co., first.

Ferns, collection, not less than fifty plants—F. R. Pierson Co., first; Robert Craig Co., second.

Fern, specimen, any other variety—Robert Craig Co., first; F. R. Pierson Co., second.



The park department of Brooklyn staged a handsome group of flowering and foliage plants, not for competition, and received a special award.

Winners Among Private Growers.

Private gardeners who took prizes included the following: James Stuart, gardener for Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; R. Hughes, gardener for James A. MacDonald, Flushing, N. Y.; W. B. Thompson, gardener for Mrs. W. D. Guthrie, Locust Valley, N. Y.; John Canning, gardener for A. Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y.; Charles Thomas, gardener for Mrs. J. H. Wright, New York; J. A. Winsock, gardener for Mrs. W. D. Guthrie, Locust Valley, N. Y.; W. Turner, gardener for B. H. Borden, Rumson, N. J.; D. McGregor, gardener for G. G. Mason, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; William Morrow, gardener for Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Stamford, Conn.; W. B. Duke, Somerville, N. J.; F. O. Johnson, gardener for H. I. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y.; John I. Burns, gardener for Miss S. D. Bliss, New Canaan, Conn.; Oliver Lines, gardener for A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass.; Max Schneider, gardener for

THE TRADE EXHIBITS.

More Numerous Than Previously.

The trade exhibits, always a most important feature of this show, were more numerous this year than at any previous show.

Max Schling, New York, the only retail florist to make an exhibit, had a booth representing a flower shop, with an enormous plate glass front. Inside the booth were floral arrangements of all kinds and an electric contrivance which presented illuminated views of table decorations and floral arrangements. The back of the booth carried a pictorial representation of F. T. D. service.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., had an extensive exhibit of plant stock covering the firm's general lines. The same pergola structure was used to house their exhibits which was a feature of the show in 1918.

Chas. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., had liberal space on the main floor, showing a line of rose and herbaceous plant stock and fine vases of cut flowers of rose specialties.

Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., occupied their accustomed site on the main floor, where they attracted attention to their extensive line of nursery and plant stock.

Arthur T. Boddington, New York, was to be found at his usual corner on the main floor. An arch of sweet peas framed the entrance to his booth, and a feature of his exhibit was a line of pansy seeds in packets, with a real flower of each variety packaged.

Roman J. Irwin, New York, had an extensive exhibit of plant stock, seeds and horticultural requisites.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., showed samples of plant stock, both foliage and flowering.

All Sorts of Supplies.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., showed a beautiful line of art pottery, including several large vases, as well as cut roses, ferns and plants. The exhibit was most artistic.

Schloss Bros., Ribbons, Inc., New York, exhibited a line of florists' ribbons and ribbons for decorative work.

The Matthews Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O., displayed a number of pieces of garden furniture of various kinds.

The Coldwell Lawn Mower Co., Newburgh, N. Y., exhibited the latest and best offerings in lawn mowers, including the company's new motor lawn mower and roller.

C. H. Allender, New York, showed a line of forcing appliances for use in intensive gardening.

The Campbell Irrigation Co., Woodbury, N. J., demonstrated the Cico oscillating irrigator, for lawns, gardens, etc.

The Climax Mfg. Co., Castorland, N. Y., exhibited samples of boxes for florists' use.

The Cook & Swan Co. exhibited Sulco-V. B. insecticide and other requisites for horticulturists.

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Troy, O., had quarters where were exhibited photographs pertaining to tree surgery and where information on the subject was at all times available.

Wm. C. Duckham, Madison, N. J., exhibited samples of dormant rose stock.

The Fulper Pottery Co., Flemington, N. J., displayed a sample line of pottery for use in flower arrangement.

Maurice Fuld, New York, showed herbaceous plants, and a sample line of his seeds and other requisites.

Many Greenhouse Exhibitors.

Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J., showed a small greenhouse all complete, a most interesting exhibit.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, had a booth fitted up as an office, where photographs and other material covering the concern's greenhouse construction were on view.

Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y., displayed a line of his well-known paints and insecticides.

The Hartmann-Sanders Co., Chicago, exhibited a splendid line of garden furniture, pergolas, summer houses, etc.

Wm. M. Hunt Co., New York, exhibited seeds, bulbs and garden requisites.

The Ideal Power Lawn Mower Co., Lansing, Mich., demonstrated the qualities of its mower.

J. C. Kraus, New York, exhibited a collection of garden statuary and furniture made from "cast" stone.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., had a booth where its greenhouse construction was featured.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, had office quarters, where Fred Lautenschlager expounded the merits of Kroeschell boilers.

The W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., displayed S. A. Kost's soil grinding machine, which was of interest to a good many.

Lord & Burnham Co., New York, showed greenhouse construction of the usual L. & B. style, erecting a house of liberal proportions, greatly attractive to suburbanites.

Wm. H. Lutton Co., New York, also exhibited a complete greenhouse, at which the Lutton construction was explained.

Wm. F. Leary, New Rochelle, N. Y., could not get his spraying machine through to the show, but was to be found in his accustomed quarters with a supply of printed matter.

The Muller-Sealey Co., Inc., New York, interested visitors in its line of garden plant stock and other requisites.

Interesting Attractions.

H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., had an artistic booth, where he exhibited flowers of his race of Malmaison carnations. This exhibit was one of the most interesting in the show.

The McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., showed an extensive line of baskets and other florists' supplies.

The New Britain Machine Co., New Britain, Conn., exhibited its small tractor suited to florists' work.

The Niagara Sprayer Co., Middleport, N. Y., showed a line of spraying appliances.

The Oldsmobile Co., New York, showed a handsome delivery car, evidently, judging from the name on it, sold to President A. L. Miller of the S. A. F. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," was painted across the body.

The Pontiac Lawn Mower Co., Detroit, Mich., showed its new motomower.

The Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, O., exhibited Vitaplastic glazing compound and greenhouse paint.

L. J. Reuter Co., Watertown, Mass., showed samples of plant stock for florists.

George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., occupied his usual space with a sample line of dahlia bulbs.

The Shawnee Mower Co., Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa., showed the Shawnee triple motor and Worthington tractor.

Seedsmen Present.

The Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, had a most interesting exhibit of bulbs, etc., with potted plants of tulips and daffodils to demonstrate the quality of the stock exhibited.

S. S. Skidelsky & Co., New York, exhibited samples of seeds, bulbs and plants.

S. P. Townsend Co., Orange, N. J., exhibited a line of lawn mowers.

B. Hammond Tracy, Inc., Wenham, Mass., showed gladiolus bulbs and dahlia roots.

Vaughan's Seed Store, New York, had a fine exhibit of bulbs and other requisites, most artistically staged.

Nicholas Wapler, New York, showed pottery for florists' use.

Societies' Booths.

The Horticultural Society of New York, the American Rose Society, the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association and the S. A. F. all had booths.

A large electric sign, "Say It with Flowers," was located facing the stairway, which was greatly appreciated by the florists. The official song, "Say It with Flowers," by Harry Von Tilzer, was on the musical program for rendition twice daily during the show.

DINNER TO JURORS.

The jurors were invited guests at a dinner given by the show management at the Hotel Commodore, Monday evening, March 15, at which there were seventy-five present. Among them were a number of out-of-town florists, including the following: George Asmus, Chicago; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Fred Meinhardt, St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, O.; C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O., and Fred C. W. Brown, Cleveland.

The dinner was entirely informal, and there was no speechmaking. C. H. Totty welcomed the guests in behalf of the flower show committee, and A. M. Henshaw in behalf of the New York Florists' Club. The dinner was served in the west ballroom of the hotel.

ROSE SOCIETY ELECTS.

Annual Meeting at New York.

The American Rose Society held its annual meeting Tuesday afternoon, March 16, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, with seventy-five members in attendance. The old officers were reelected to their positions, as follows:

President—Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.

Vice-president—F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

Secretary—E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.

Treasurer—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

The members of the executive committee elected are: J. A. Curry, of Portland, Ore.; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa., and Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.

The Genista with Yellow Accessories.

The presentation of the Hubbard medal to E. Gurney Hill, of Richmond, Ind., which was to have taken place at the meeting, was deferred until there is an opportunity to present it to him personally, which will be next June.

John Cook, of Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Van Fleet, of Washington, D. C., were elected honorary members in acknowledgment of their services as hybridizers.

Some minor changes in the constitution and by-laws were made.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Market prices here continue to decline slowly. They are not yet as low as those in some other parts of the country. Carnations are selling at $2.50 per dozen, as against $3 a few weeks ago. Sweet peas have dropped from 75 cents and $1 for common stock to 50 cents a bunch; orchid peas from $1.50 and $2 to $1 a bunch. Other flowers are dropping in proportion and are expected to be much lower within the next week. Green carnations were plentiful for St. Patrick's day. They sold at $3 per dozen. There is plenty of stock here and the demand is fair.

The lily crop is coming along well and other bulbous stock will be plentiful for Easter.

Various Notes.

The Munk Floral Co. is doing some extensive remodeling and redecorating. The salesroom has been made larger. This is now one of the most beautiful stores in town for its size. J. W. T.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Stock has been plentiful during the week, but not overplentiful. Prices held firm throughout the list, with only a few sacrifices left over. The principal flower to be offered at a bargain was the daffodil. The drop in the wholesale price of these has been more radical than in anything else.

The week's supply made it possible for flower buyers in some neighborhoods to purchase at real bargains. Carnations were offered as low as 50 cents per dozen and sweet peas at 25 cents per bunch. The wholesale price for good stock was not low enough to warrant this. However, there was a supply selling low enough to make these bargains possible.

These bargains are not favored by some, but others believe that they are exceedingly profitable to the trade by bringing back the customers whose incomes did not warrant paying the prices of the last few months.

St. Patrick's day trade brought record receipts. The local supply of shamrocks was not large, but, with the exception of one size of plants, the prices were the same as those of last year, the exception being in the price for 3-inch stock. For these 25 cents each was asked at the wholesale house. Some growers report that they have been disappointed so many years in the number of shamrocks sold that they have decided to drop them from their list, as it is difficult to grow a small batch. This has practically left the shamrock field to one firm.

Various Notes.

William R. Poore, of West Delavan avenue, was obliged to wear a bandage around his neck during the week, on account of a cold.

William G. Gangnagle's shop and greenhouse, on Bailey avenue, are being put in shape for a big Easter. Hyacinths of the best quality have been arriving for some time. These, arranged with pussy willows and chiffon, are moving at a profit which is an inspiration for branching out. To put it in Miss Gangnagle's words, "They sell so well that I know we shall not have half enough for Easter." Two years ago Miss Gangnagle had no practical experience in the trade, but now she says that she is sure that the florists' business is wonderfully interesting.

Edward Paufler, of Ericson avenue, was on the sick list Saturday, March 13. A severe attack of neuralgia was the cause.

James Pickleman has a new Ford delivery car. F. P. A.

Anderson, Ind.—Charles Williams will grow vegetable plants and carnations for the wholesale market.

IMPROVED PUBLICITY

ADVANCE IN ADVERTISING.

Florists Make Marked Progress.

Should you ask any thoughtful man, not a florist, what to him has been the principal manifestation of progress in the florists' trade in the last few years, he would probably tell you that it has been in florists' use of printers' ink. While there has been consistent improvement in the varieties grown, in the quality of stock produced and in the methods of marketing plants and cut flowers, still the improvement has been so gradual that it has escaped the attention of most of those outside the business, but the man in the street can see the improvement in florists' advertising.

The advertising of flowers has improved in two particulars: First, there is more of it than there used to be; it is a truism that "any advertising is better than no advertising." In the second place, there has been marked improvement in the character of copy used.

The day may not have passed, but it is passing, when a florist will feel that he has advertised merely because he gave a solicitor an order for space. It gradually is coming to be understood that a page of one publication may be like a page of another, so far as dimensions are concerned, but that there is a vast difference when it comes to circulation and a still greater difference of influence with and upon the readers.

Florists are buying space more intelligently every year, with less regard for the fact that the publisher may need the business and more regard for the pulling powers of the publication itself. And, having bought space in a live publication, they are filling it with better copy.

During the last few years the more extensive and more intelligent use of the "dynamo of business," advertising, by florists has been everywhere apparent. No longer may it be said with impunity that retail florists as a rule are, from long habit, nonadvertisers. A review of the business done on any of the notable flower days seldom fails to bring out the encouraging fact that more florists have been convinced of the efficacy of printers' ink as a stimulant of flower sales.

Apparent at Holidays.

It is principally in connection with the red-letter days—Christmas, Easter, Mothers' day, Memorial day and St. Valentine's day—when sentiment plays an important part in the sale of flowers, that retailers have employed advertising extensively, and in many cases with highly profitable results. The increase in the quantity of publicity has been attended by an improvement in advertising copy, indicating that many a retailer through experience has learned to distinguish strong copy from weak copy.

As the advertising done for the big flower days must necessarily be of short duration, appearing a few days only, advertisers long ago found it expedient to put a more concentrated punch into their periodic publicity. It was agreed that for short-time advertising newspaper advertisements of large dimensions had a more telling effect and gave the flower message for the day a more conspicuous showing than did small advertisements.

The sentimental appeal on flower days is a powerful factor in promoting sales, but it is a difficult matter to mix sentiment and the merchandising of flowers in the right proportion. The thing can be overdone as easily as it can be underdone. One should not forget the goods advertised, nor that prices are more important than some would have us believe. As florists continue to devote more study to their advertising copy, the old adage that "any advertising is better than no advertising" will go by the board. Perhaps some day the slogan will be: "All advertising can be good advertising—make the copy sell!"

Does It Sell?

It never should be forgotten that the reason for advertising is to sell the florists' merchandise. To inspire a desire for the things we have for sale we would better restrict the space given to pictures and gain opportunity to picture our plants, to describe them attractively but accurately, and to state the prices.

The preparation of copy is one of the most important details of advertising. It should be thought out with care, if the maximum result is to be obtained. First of all, the layout or display should be such as to catch the eyes of the greatest possible number of readers. Second, the opening sentences at the top of the advertisement should be such as to inspire a desire for the things advertised. Third, and perhaps most important of all, the plants and cut flowers offered should be described in terms that will be intelligible to the public. Where immediate, direct sales are aimed at, prices should be quoted. You will know this to be the case if you stop to consider the number of customers who ask the price before buying the article you show them and compare their number with the number of those who buy without asking the price.

When you have finished writing your advertisement, read it over and ask yourself the question, "Will it sell?" If the answer is "No," don't print it; write another.

Many people think that plants and cut flowers are like Topsy, who "just growed," but in the trade we know that success in growing is in proportion to the mental and physical effort put into the work. It is so in advertising. There are many ways of reaching the buyers and the results are in proportion to the intelligent effort put into the appeal.

CATCHING THE EYE.

No better way to catch the reader's eye is devised than the use of a clever cartoon in newspaper advertising, provided of course the subject of the advertisement is not too serious to make it out of place. But moving to a new store is not so serious a subject for advertising as the actual job, so Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, were able to contrive a catchy bit of publicity by the use of a cartoonist's idea of moving a flower store piecemeal. Since the store is now completed and the opening is to be held shortly, Grimm & Gorly expect to do their Easter business at 712 Washington avenue and therefore announced their move by the advertisement reproduced on page 45. It appeared in the St. Louis Times, March 13.

COMMENTS ON OMAR KHAYYAM.

To get away from the advertisements of yesterday and print something new that will make readers sit up and pay attention, is the aim of retailers who use the newspapers with some degree of regularity. Novelty is not easy to find in this generation, when the field is so full of advertising men that they fall over one another in their race for ideas that have not palled on the public. The difficulty of securing new means of catching attention is augmented in smaller towns by the limited facilities at hand; one cannot, if he would and if he could afford it, prepare such advertising as is done for magazines and metropolitan journals at much expense to produce novel illustrative effects. So the florist depends on what he says for his appeal to the public's attention, rather than on some striking effect to command the reader's eye.

Despite such difficulties, retailers in various localities produce some good pieces of work, which draw appreciative comment from fellow tradesmen. Specimens are reproduced in The Review from time to time. A recent one appears on this page, that of A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill. He has gone to the classics for his advertising copy and prints verses from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, with comments by himself in application to his business. The citizens of Springfield read this advertisement, which occupied a quarter-page in the Illinois State Journal, with much interest and appreciation. Its novelty is refreshing.

CROMWELL, CONN.

The public's idea of prosperity in the florists' business is represented in the following newspaper account of the tax appeal by A. N. Pierson, Inc.:

A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, is aggrieved because of the action of the board of assessors in jacking up the great greenhouse plant, the home of special roses and flowers of all kinds, to something like $400,000. Today the Cromwell board of relief met in the bank building to listen to the complaint of the company against the assessment and to consider the proposed reduction of $225,000.

It is the claim of Mr. Pierson that the assessors have listed the company's property at a rate far beyond its real value.

Townspeople insist that the assessors have not gone far enough and that if the great florist property is not worth a million, then it is not worth a cent.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Business was brisk last week and somewhat better than it has been for the last few weeks, little stock accumulating. Carnations and roses held their prices well, but bulbous stock declined slightly. Carnations are arriving in quantity, some fine Ward and Laddie being seen and picked up readily. The cut of roses is heavy, with a good demand for all grades. Sweet peas meet a ready market and realize as high as $5 per hundred for specials.

Calendulas find a good market and clean up well, as do all other novelties. Calla and Easter lilies are available in quantity and are priced at $20 and $25 per hundred.

Bulbous stock, with a slight decline in price, moved fairly well and the counters at the wholesale markets, crowded the last few weeks, were kept cleaned. Violets cleaned up well, singles and doubles realizing $1.50 per hundred. The demand for narcissi has fallen off to almost none at all. It seems that the public has been growing its own stock, as the demand for bulbs and bulb dishes has increased more this year than at any time previously.

The wholesale plant growers report a good sale of pans of bulbous stock, as well as primroses, cinerarias and a few hydrangeas. The need at present is for bright weather to bring on the large stock of hydrangeas, Easter lilies and roses for the Easter trade.

Various Notes.

William Ziechmann has been seriously ill for some time. He is suffering from a complication brought on by the flu.

Norman Kirchner has been confined to his bed for a time, but is reported to be recovering.

FUEL FEUD FAILS TO FADE

TWO SIDES IN DEADLOCK.

Coal Commission Reports.

Since Friday, March 12, when President Wilson received the majority and minority reports of the bituminous coal commission, the trade has been watchfully waiting to see what improvement can be made in an apparently hopeless situation. At that time, it seemed that the President could do little, if anything, more to bring the miners and operators together and that, consequently, the miners would probably quit their jobs voluntarily April 1, when the present working agreement will expire. Whether the miners strike or whether the increase recommended by the commission in the government-fixed price of coal becomes effective, the cost of heating greenhouses next winter will assuredly be greater.

The President had urged the commission to come to a unanimous decision, but J. P. White, representing the miners, held out to the last for a reduction of hours from the present eight per day to seven, if not to six, as originally demanded by the miners.

Majority Report.

The majority report, signed by H. M. Robinson, chairman and representative of the public, and Rembrandt Peale, for the operators, recommends a twenty-seven per cent increase in wages over what the men were getting when they struck last winter, an 8-hour day, an immediate increase in the maximum government-fixed price of coal, amounting in some fields to 70 cents per ton, and the removal of all governmental restrictions of the price of coal and also of all governmental regulation of distribution, beginning with the new coal year April 1.

If the miners stop work April 1, it will be because of their failure to win shorter hours and a greater wage increase than either the fourteen per cent granted by governmental decree or the twenty-seven per cent recommended by the majority of the commission. It is not planned, however, to make the tactical mistake of last winter and call a formal strike, thus exposing the leaders, if not all the miners, to injunction proceedings. The workers would simply quit work voluntarily.

That the attitude of the miners is far from conciliatory is indicated by a statement issued by the headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America at Indianapolis March 9. It said: "There has been a steady increase in the cost of living since the first of this year, in spite of the fact that the government represented to labor last summer that living costs would be reduced and that the government would see to it that this was done. Further promises of reductions in the cost of living would fall on deaf ears as far as the coal miners are concerned, because they have had their experience with such promises in the past, all of which have gone unfulfilled. Nothing short of a substantial increase in wages and improved working conditions will be acceptable to the United Mine Workers of America."

A further indication of the miners' feeling is given in the resolution passed unanimously March 9 by the biennial convention of District No. 14 of the United Mine Workers of America in session at Kansas City, Mo. This resolution pledges to the district's president, Alexander Howat, the delegates' support "at any time he might see fit to call a strike."

Operators Opposing Lever Act.

But the miners are not the only ones to express dissatisfaction with the way things are going, especially with the result of the government's participation in the controversy. The operators have for some time been distinctly restless under the price restrictions of the Lever act and it is reported that if these restrictions are not removed April 1, some of the operators plan to defy them and sell their coal for the best prices they can get. They have been advised by counsel that the application of the Lever act to the present situation is unconstitutional, on the ground that this act was passed to aid in the prosecution of the war and cannot legally be applied to such a situation as this in time of peace. William Howard Taft, who recently rendered an opinion to the Smokeless Coal Operators' Association, is one of those holding this view.

When Attorney-general Palmer was asked by representatives of the West Virginia anthracite coal operators whether he would consent to a removal of all price restrictions April 1, he replied that he was not the fuel administrator. In reference to a possible suit to test the application of the Lever act to this situation, Mr. Palmer said that he would stand pat.

While controversies in the anthracite field are of interest to fewer greenhouse owners, it may be noted that the settlement here is expected to be reached independently of what is decided for the bituminous mines. A general conference of operators and union men in New York city has appointed a subcommittee of eight, consisting of four operators and four union men. This subcommittee has held several sessions, considering the miners' demands for a closed shop agreement, a 6-hour day, a 5-day week and a sixty per cent increase in wages. The complete recognition of the union by the operators is among the most important of the demands.

Express Rates.

While the prospects for obtaining coal for the next cold season are thus by no means pleasant, either as to prices or as to quantity available and promptness in securing it, not all the clouds in the sky are over the fuel field. The American Railway Express Co. filed a petition March 13 with the interstate commerce commission, asking for increased express charges, ranging from ten to seventy-five per cent. The company asked for a flat twenty-five per cent increase east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river. Between points in that district and other sections of the country the increase would be ten per cent. The largest increase sought was for actual hauling, for which the company asked seventy-five per cent additional in the eastern district and fifty per cent elsewhere. An increase of thirty-three and one-third per cent was asked for terminal handling of shipments, more than half of which would be turned over to the railroad companies.

Not only will such disturbances and price increases as these affect the greenhouseman directly, but the trade as a whole will feel the effect of any such boost of the h. c. of l. in the decreased amount of money that people are likely to have to spend for flowers.

Report Not Yet Published.

Neither the majority nor minority report of the commission has been published. The majority report is said to cover something like 30,000 words. Included among its recommendations, it is understood, are retention of the check-off system by which the operators collect the dues for the unions, and reference of the question of differences in wages to a special commission to be appointed by the next joint wage conference, to report within two years.

In an effort to reach a unanimous conclusion, the commission was understood to have held many long sessions, meeting both day and night. Mr. White held out against the majority recommendations, however, and when an agreement appeared hopeless the majority proceeded to complete their report at midnight, March 10, sending it to the White House early next day.

The commission began its hearings January 12, with the understanding between the government and the miners that its report would be made within sixty days, which period expired March 12.

The commission would have no authority to enforce its findings had its report been unanimous. However, when it began hearings the miners agreed unreservedly to abide by its decision, and the operators accepted its jurisdiction with the reservation that they could not be bound by any price advance for a period subsequent to the life of the Lever food control law, as this might subject them to prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

Operators Insist on Increase.

Throughout the hearings the operators insisted that many mines could not operate if wages were advanced unless there was a corresponding increase in coal prices. The miners contended against this position and charged that the operators had made large profits during the war.

The miners originally demanded a sixty per cent increase and thirty hours of work per week the year around. In the conferences with the operators called by Secretary Wilson after the government had obtained an injunction to end the coal strike their representatives receded from this and agreed to accept Mr. Wilson's proposal for a 31.6 per cent increase in wages and a seven-hour day.

The approximate increase of thirty-five per cent which it was reported Mr. White recommended in his report to the President was said to have been worked out on the same basis as was that of Secretary Wilson, with the increases in the cost of living since November added.

Wage increases were said to have been calculated by the majority of the commission on the basis of tonnage for pick and machine mining, a percentage increase for yardage and dead work and a flat advance in the pay of day laborers. The increase is not uniform for all mines, varying in accordance with costs of production. According to some calculations the general advance amounts to twenty-seven per cent or more.

Contract Expires April 1.

The existing contract between the miners and the operators will expire April 1. It was made during the war for the duration of the conflict, but was not in any event to run beyond the end of this month. The miners in presenting their original demands insisted that the war had ended and that consequently the contract had expired. The government took a different view and when the miners went on strike November 1 it obtained an injunction from Federal Judge Anderson at Indianapolis.

COAL CHEAPER IN SUMMER?

With the approval of the interstate commerce commission Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, introduced a measure in the Senate March 17 to provide a constructive solution of the problem of equalizing and stabilizing coal production and distribution the year around.

The effect of the measure will be to establish summer and winter rates in the hope that buying may be encouraged at slack seasons and the mines kept in continuous operation.

Under the terms of the bill the interstate commerce commission will fix normal rates for the transportation of coal and then require the railroads to haul it fifteen per cent cheaper in the summer.

The introduction of the bill was accompanied by the submission of a bill by Commissioner Clark stamping it with the interstate commerce commission's approval.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The usual Lenten apathy now governs the local situation, the only activity being occasioned by the brisk funeral demands, but between digging themselves out and repairing damages from snow and ice, the florists have been more or less busy.

The increase in supply and greater decrease in demand have weakened the market so that prices have dropped almost to normal.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock is plentiful. Last week there was more than an ample supply of carnations, sweet peas and freesias. Roses are in good supply, but there is not an overabundance.

Business has been fair, suffering no more than is usual at this time of the year. Funeral work has been heavy and has been the chief item in keeping the market busy.

Bulbous stock is much in evidence, both in cut flowers and potted plants. Calla lilies are in good supply at $2.50 per dozen and Easter lilies are more plentiful at $3 per dozen. Single violets are selling at $1 per hundred. Calendulas are available in quantity at prices varying according to quality and the length of stem.

Hyacinths, tulips, jonquils, daffodils, cinerarias, cyclamens, begonias and primroses predominate among the potted bulbous stock offered.

Various Notes.

Allan Humason, of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago; Rolf Zetlitz, of Lima, O., and J. C. Nielsen, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, were visitors last week.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

For the last week stock has been plentiful and prices somewhat lower than they have been for some time. Roses were in splendid condition, with a full supply in every grade. Carnations are good stock and the supply more than equals the demand. Calendulas, sweet peas, freesias, tulips, daffodils, mignonette, valley and Paper Whites helped to make a good assortment in combination bouquets. Cattleyas are more plentiful and the stock is good. Easter lilies and callas are both good sellers and the supply is equal to the demand. In potted plants there is a good assortment of hyacinths, hydrangeas, tulips, baby rambler roses, cinerarias, genistas and primroses, for which there is a ready sale. The spring opening of the department stores caused a demand for flowering plants.

THE LANGUAGE OF FLOWERS

HOW can we "Say It with Flowers" if we do not know the language of flowers? The obvious reply to that question is that almost everybody has at least a smattering of the language. One of the chief advantages of speaking through flowers is that their language is a universal one, the only really universal language thus far evolved. Whatever may be the nationalities of a florist's patrons, they all know that flowers express respect, esteem, affection, sympathy, condolence, congratulation, or whatever sentiment the occasion requires. They know that flowers have a wonderful facility for adapting themselves to all sorts of circumstances and saying just the right words at every juncture—saying them so plainly, too, that the dullest intellect cannot misunderstand.

Yet it is possible, and frequently desirable, to know the more precise meanings, the numerous distinct shades of meaning, in the messages conveyed by the different varieties of flowers. It is possible thus to have complete command of the language of flowers, to be both fluent and discriminative in the use of that form of speech. Florists especially, since they undertake to teach and popularize the language of flowers, should themselves have an expert knowledge of the language. As people continue to "Say It with Flowers" they will become increasingly familiar with the flowers' significance, and the florists, being the teachers, should always be in advance of their pupils.

It might not be wise for a florist to give persistent publicity to so elaborate a floral vocabulary, or list of flowers and their meanings, as is printed on this page, since only a few of the varieties in such a list would be available in any one season and many of the species mentioned would not be found in a florist's store at any season. But almost any florist, besides displaying the sign, "Say It with Flowers," might at least append to that sign, occasionally, a statement as to the import of a few of the most seasonable flowers.

For instance, this is tulip time. If you don't know what the red tulip says, consult the following list. Why should you not inform your customers, in some tactful way, that this flower utters "a declaration of love"? Think of the use—humorous, semi-serious or desperately serious use—that might be made of a flower laden with such a message!

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

All indications point to splendid Easter stock, both as to quantity and quality. More lily of the valley arrived during the last week than during the preceding four months. American Beauties are still a little scarce, but some fine freesias are being received from the local growers. Some good tulips and calla lilies are appearing on the market.

Various Notes.

Notable among the many magnificent floral tributes at the funeral of the late James J. Flannery, founder of the Vanadium Corporation of America, was a wreath resting on an easel four feet in height designed by Harvey C. Sheaff, manager of Mrs. E. A. Williams' establishment. It was composed of 200 cattleyas, eighteen sprays of vandas and 1,500 violets. Another contribution from the same firm was a large Roman gold vase of Premier roses with white lilacs and pussy willows.

Friday afternoon, March 12, Pittsburgh experienced one of the worst wind, rain and hail storms in its history. A large plate glass window on the Stanwix street side of the McGrath & Langhans store was blown in. Mr. Langhans, who had just returned to the store after an attack of tonsillitis, was sitting at a desk nearby and fortunately escaped injury. Mr. McGrath was called from his suburban home, but before he reached the store every plant and cut bloom in the place was frozen.

William A. Clarke and Theodore P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., made a trip to the range at Bakerstown, Pa., Thursday, March 11, to inspect the Easter stock.

Ira H. Landis is sending in some fine freesias from his place, near Lancaster, Pa.

The verdict in the case of C. Colyn, of Voorhout, Holland, vs. Theodore Verscharen, which has just been tried in the Allegheny county court, was the awarding to the plaintiff $350 and ordering the defendant to pay all court costs besides. The report, however, is that Mr. Colyn has refused to accept this settlement. His appeal was for full compensation for bulbs valued at between $1,500 and $1,600, Mr. Verscharen having refused to accept the consignment on account of its late arrival during the summer of 1918.

Earl Tipton has returned from a several days' trip to Detroit and Cleveland, where he went to inspect the new branch stores of the McCallum Co. James Reilly has been changed from the salesroom of the main store in Pittsburgh to the Detroit store on Elizabeth street.

Michael J. Steiner and Peter Matsukes are again on duty in the salesroom of Randolph & McClements, following attacks of the grip.

Joseph Fineberg has almost entirely recovered from the serious operation which kept him a patient in the Passavant hospital for two months. Mr. Fineberg, who was formerly connected with the Victoria Flower Shop of A. Krongold, is now associated with the retail shop of John Kuntz, on Seventh street.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The market last week was easier than it has been for a long time; the supply has increased materially and the demand has to some extent fallen off. Prices are beginning to get back to normal for this season of the year, although there is no precedent for flower prices this spring.

Roses are in fair supply and of excellent quality. Carnations, since the bright weather has come, are blooming in fine shape and plenty are to be had each day. Sweet peas, which stood still so long this winter, have responded well to the sun's rays, so much so that at times there was almost a glut of them. Bulbous stock is in fair supply, perhaps enough to meet the requirements. Calla lilies, which also seemed to have stood still this season, are now in almost abundant supply. Easter lilies, while not so plentiful, are in sufficient quantity to supply the demand. Miscellaneous flowers, such as pansies, mignonette and other small flowers, are scarce. This class of stock has been scarce all winter.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Baltimore Florists' Club was held in Royal Arcanum hall March 8. The advertising committee, of which Joseph S. Merritt is chairman, held the floor the entire evening. It was the committee's meeting from the start to the finish. It would seem that the five young men on the committee—Joseph S. Merritt, Geo. J. Muhly, C. Harry Wagner, Henry Baynes and Wm. F. Keyes, Jr.—had made up their minds that Baltimore should stay in the piker class no longer, for they came to the meeting with a specific amount of money pledged and, more than this, they had some of the city's best advertising men present to do business with. There was a discussion as to ways and means, but the plan that seemed to be in most favor was the percentage plan; that is, for the growers to pay one-half of one per cent and the retailers one per cent on all stock that passed through the wholesale houses. This will mean one and one-half per cent on the business transacted by the four wholesale houses of the city and should give the committee ample funds to take care of the local as well as the national advertising. The committee had $4,000 per year in sight to start with and George A. Deatel, of the Deatel Advertising Service, was asked to submit plans on a basis of $4,000 per year to get the campaign started. When this campaign gets under way this amount will be doubled, and before it is 1 year old the subscribers will, as in some of our sister cities, insist on the percentage being doubled. Baltimore may be a little slow at the barrier, but look out for her once she gets into the stretch.

Fred Bauer had several blooms of his new seedling rose, W. B. No. 2, on display. This is a cross between Ward and Sunburst; the color is delicate yellow, verging to orange in the center. The blooms were on stiff stems thirty inches long and covered with fine foliage. One of the good points about them is that they are not susceptible to mildew and are never seen with bent stems.

George Morrison, manager of the Jacobs estate, an authority on all kinds of growing, was an interested listener at this meeting, but as Mr. Morrison is not directly interested in advertising he took no part, but when any question of growing is up he is a busy man.

Various Notes.

The following members will be visitors to the international flower show at New York: R. Vincent, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnston, A. E. Erdman, William Patterson, Harry Wagner, John Rider, William Feast, George Morris, George J. Muhly, Douglas Hamilton, George Eberly and William F. Ekas.

Charles Paterson has bought the Lutz range at Glenburnie, Md., where he is growing a general assortment of stock for his Orleans street store.

Wm. Patterson, of Ready avenue, has bought the Boyd Merritt range on Patapsco Neck, Md. Mr. Patterson has had this range wrecked and stored and is now negotiating for a place to erect it this spring, as there is not enough room on his present location. He is of the opinion that there is a great future in growing and with the Merritt range combined with his own he will have plenty of glass.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market is suffering from an oversupply of stock and a surprisingly small demand. The result is daily accumulations, which are exceedingly difficult to move. Arrivals of bulbous flowers are enormous, many crops evidently arriving at one time, and the sales of other staples are materially affected. The demand for stock has been of the hand-to-mouth variety largely, possibly due to uncertain weather. Saturday, March 13, was a particularly bad day in this respect, closing with a regular blizzard for a few hours.

While roses are not in particularly heavy supply, they are sluggish in movement and prices are on a normal basis. The supply of short grades is better and the short sizes can be had at $1 per hundred, with the better grades up to $15 per hundred and one or two varieties bringing a little more. American Beauty is not plentiful, but there is quite enough to go around, the best still bringing $75 per hundred.

Carnations are plentiful and $3 per hundred is about the top price for select stock, with white varieties somewhat scarce at $4 per hundred.

Cattleyas are quite plentiful, but really fine blooms are scarce. The range of prices is from $15 to $75 per hundred, the latter figure applying also to hybrids. Gardenias are in too heavy supply for the market and, while the quality of arrivals is excellent, the flowers move only within the small range of 50 cents to $3 per dozen.

Easter lilies are plentiful and their movement is fairly good. Some particularly fine potted stock for Easter deliveries is finding purchasers. Lily of the valley is almost a drug on the market and only the best commands $4 per hundred.

Tulips are to be had in every shade of color common to the type and the quality was never any better. Daffodils also are in large supply and move fairly well. Freesias are plentiful, with arrivals including an extensive choice of colored hybrids.

Sweet peas are overplentiful and sacrifices are necessary to effect clearances. There is an abundance of miscellaneous flowers, which move at prices depending upon quality, but they are lower than for some time. The varieties are extensive and include cannas, iris, lilacs, acacias, buddleias, stocks, pansies, myosotis, wallflowers, daisies, violets, mignonette, calendulas and snapdragons.

Various Notes.

The center of attraction this week is the flower show and little else is talked about. While the exhibits expected have materialized largely, transportation has been considerably hampered by the condition of the roads. John Canning, superintendent for Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., the largest exhibitor at the show, had a gang of forty men engaged for several days shoveling through snowdrifts in and around Ardsley in order that his stock might be brought in. Wallace R. Pierson, of A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., brought nine motor truck loads of exhibition stock by road from Cromwell without mishap and considered himself lucky. The storm and low temperature of Saturday night, March 13, did no damage as far as is known, although some large plants arriving at the Grand Central Palace showed signs of severe chilling.

John Mallon, for many years a salesman for William Burns, the Sixth avenue florist, and later with W. P. Sears, died March 13 from heart failure.

Louis Hanfling, of Russin & Hanfling, was receiving congratulations Monday, March 15, on the birth of a 10-pound son.

Early arrivals in New York for the show were C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; Fred Meinhardt, St. Louis, Mo.; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind., and John H. Dunlop and his manager, George M. Geraghty, of Toronto, Can.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club, which took place at the Hotel Biltmore the evening of March 17, was a brilliant affair. Over 350 seats were reserved, in addition to 100 or so for out-of-town guests. J. H. P.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Market conditions are in bad shape. Much stock is being dumped owing to a lack of buyers. The best roses are now quoted at $6 to $25 per hundred, according to the length of stem. At these prices nearly all stock of any consequence moves well, but in some instances the poor stock finds no sale at all.

Carnations are now quoted at $4 to $6 per hundred, with some increase in the price of whites likely at St. Patrick's day. Single daffodils are selling at $4 per hundred, with long-stemmed Emperor bringing $6 per hundred. Sweet peas are good and meet a ready sale. Other items in bulbous stock and greens stand about the same as last week.

Easter lilies have become plentiful on short notice and are quoted at $25 per hundred for stock with stems of fair length, while the cut blooms are offered at $15 per hundred.

Callas are not numerous, but what stock makes its appearance is readily sold. Funeral work has fallen off, which is evidence that the flu epidemic is over. To make up for this, the stores have been taxed to the limit of the palm and plant supply to meet the requirements of spring openings. In some instances artificial palms were used, but the results were unsatisfactory. Many carnations have also been given away as souvenirs. A favorite arrangement of flowers in connection with decoration work is a low basket arrangement with the flowers all in water. These baskets are distributed upon the show cases throughout the establishment.

Nearly all the leading florists were unfortunate in having palm shipments from the east arrive in a frozen condition. Since the weather here was unusually mild, the fault must be at the other end. The express company seems willing to be fair in the adjustment of damages.

Various Notes.

G. E. Tromey's, 921 Vine street, is making fine window displays this week with carnations of good quality.

Fred Gear, 1113 Vine street, has some attractive plant combinations arranged on buff and rose colored mats.

Eck Bros., 1233 Vine street, have enough business to keep them busy at all times. When not making up work they are selling talking machines, iceboxes and washing machines.

H. W. Sheppard's force is kept busy with spring openings of some of the most exclusive stores.

W. G. Matthews, of Dayton, O., was a visitor last week. H. E. K.

Moline, Ill.—Mrs. A. L. Friedel is planning to add nursery stock to her present lines of operation this spring.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The Mohawk Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., supplied a beautiful floral piece, along with a large number of others, at the funeral of the late postmaster of the city. E. V. B. Felthousen, who is on the postoffice staff, had charge of the floral arrangements, which included a large plaque of American Beauties, which cost $2.50 per flower at wholesale.

• • • •

The Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., is brilliant with spring flowers. Commenting upon the severe storm which affected the country business, Henry Eberhardt said, "It was remarkable how business kept up and I attribute it to the good front that was backed up by service of the same grade."

• • • •

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., commented upon the splendid manner in which his new houses withstood the strain put upon them by the last snow storm. The second storm has left a depth of five to six feet a short distance below the ridge and, with exception of a few panes of glass, practically no damage has been done.

• • • •

A. D. Carpenter, Cohoes, N. Y., reports things in fine shape. Bulbous stock is relieving the shortage when funeral work gets heavy. Easter prospects are bright, both in supply and in demand.

Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, N. Y., said that he gladly contributed to the national publicity campaign fund because he was convinced that it was the right thing to do. He compared the benefits of the advertising with the results of the campaign of the Beech Nut Corporation in his city, which is getting ready to meet the demand for that well known brand of goods. They are well known because of advertising and are being bought because they are well known. He said that our product, being from nature, is subject to its call and, no matter how much glass is erected, there will be periods of lean and fat crops. The prospects for good business with Mr. Traudt were never brighter.

• • • •

William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., mentions the fact that the recent storms have made rural deliveries almost impossible, but the demand has kept up with the supply.

• • • •

A. J. Hilton, Amsterdam, N. Y., reports things in excellent shape in spite of the recent severe weather and anticipates a banner Easter business.

• • • •

Hotaling's Flower Shop, of Amsterdam, N. Y., passed through a severe test during the unfavorable weather conditions, but bobbed up serenely. The greenhouses withstood the strain and are filled with choice stock for Easter.

You can't saw wood with a hammer.

EASTER is early this year, but next year it will be a week earlier.

LOCAL coöperative publicity may now be said to be nation-wide. Los Angeles is taking it up.

MILDER weather has improved express conditions in the east, but no mildness has appeared in the strike which ties up the service in Chicago.

A BUSINESS that is built on personal influence or friendship is always limited in scope, but one built on service becomes national and even international.

PEOPLE who speak of eastern this and western that are thinking in terms of stage-coach days, not of the Twentieth Century Limited and special delivery mail.

DOCTORED flowers are not so numerous at St. Patrick's day as they were formerly. The trade has found adequate outlet for the stock without resorting to green dye.

IT seems certain that coal for the season of 1920-21 will cost more than the greenhouse trade ever thought possible. In that respect the grower will be like the publisher, who finds his paper bill trebled.

THERE are signs of a change in the general trend of business, but the peak of high prices scarcely can have been reached so long as the country has not adjusted itself to freight, express and other public utility rates which will make the companies profitable to their owners.

THE king of the Belgians has bestowed upon Sir Harry Veitch, of James Veitch & Sons, London, England, the cross of Officier de l'Ordre de la Couronne in recognition of the valuable services he has rendered to Belgium as treasurer of the Royal Horticultural Society's war relief fund.

THE old-fashioned publicity stunt pulled, among others, by florists and allied trades, is worn out. Since the newspapers have got wise to the publicity "manager's" plan of charging his client a percentage of the regular advertising rate for the stuff gotten into free print, the editors have seen to it that, if they print anything at all, it has absolutely no commercial value.

TRANSFER of the railroads to private hands has occasioned optimistic predictions from coal shippers and steel manufacturers which give encouragement to the trade.

BRITISH florists will undertake coöperative advertising if the trade responds in voluntary contributions to the extent of £5,000 (normally $25,000). The first twenty-one pledges totaled £1,000.

THE report of the bituminous coal commission has led many to believe that the transactions in regard to settling the miners' demands at Washington were not carried on with the fullest frankness so far as the consumers' interests were concerned. Organization of consumers, such as is being effected by the growers' association, will be valuable on future occasions of similar character.

QUARANTINE FOUR STATES.

Corn Borer Order Is Out.

The Secretary of Agriculture, on March 15, signed the order for quarantine Number 43 and issued regulations on account of the European corn borer, effective on and after March 29, 1920.

The notice sets forth that the Secretary of Agriculture "Does hereby quarantine the States of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania and by this notice of quarantine Number 43 does order that corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk; celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or when used as packing, cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof, without stems, shall not be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from any areas in said quarantined states designated in the regulations supplemental hereto as infested with corn borer in manner or method or under conditions other than those prescribed in the rules and regulations hereinafter made and amendments thereto."

The regulations are drastic and sweeping and after describing infested areas in the states named make inspection and certification a condition of movement from infested areas, marking and certification a condition of interstate transportation.

Certificates of inspection will issue only for plants and plant products which have been actually inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture, except in cases where permits are granted for individual premises or districts within an infested area where it shall be determined by competent inspection that the corn borer does not infest any of the cultivated products grown in such premises or districts. Thorough cleaning is required of cars, boats and other vehicles before moving interstate. The restrictions apply to all products enumerated in the notice of quarantine given above. T. O. M.

A RECORD NUMBER.

This week's issue of The Review sets a record that surpasses all in the history of the horticultural trade press—that is to say, those which previous numbers of The Review have made. It is the first time that one has reached the 200-page mark. Even for a special number, that is a large figure and one that will be shot at for some time—at any rate until The Review's next Christmas or Easter special number.

This large size is due to the increase in the trade's business. The Review is known as the paper that grows with the trade. As one compares this year's issues with last year's and last year's with those of years before, one gets an idea of the trade's progress.

The largest Easter number previously printed was that of 1914, containing 180 pages. The largest issue of any was that of last Christmas, 188 pages, twenty-four less than the number printed this week.

A striking feature is the growth of the Pink Part, which attains forty-eight pages this week, eight pages more than it contained last Christmas and sixteen pages more than in any issue other than that one.

The paper consumed in printing this week's edition totals 14,520 pounds, or more than seven and a quarter tons.

THE GOLDEN RULE.

How would you like to order some 2½-inch plants at a price twice to three times what you paid three years ago and, when the stock came, find that the shipment was nothing but rooted cuttings which, perhaps in the hope of saving the shipper's soul, had been given a week in pots?

In the good old days a plant "from" a 2½-inch pot was supposed to have been in that container long enough to be well rooted around; to be a credit to the shipper the roots should show all around the ball of soil when the plants were knocked out of the pot. But today plants should be offered as "for" such-and-such a size of pot, instead of "from" that pot, as too many florists are content to ship stock which has been shifted scarcely long enough ago for the soil to have settled in the pot.

Of course it is the unprecedented demand for plants which is at the bottom of this trouble. If stock were plentiful it would be impossible for any shipper to send out unestablished plants and get away with it. Today buyers accept such material or go without. The danger is that increasing numbers will do just that—go without. It will kill the trade of many a shipper and discourage many a buyer unless an increasing number practice the golden rule.

The man who sends out strictly first-class stuff under the present conditions need not worry about the future of his business. He will make enough friends to keep his trade booming the rest of his life.

PROMPT ACTION.

Any member of the trade who wants prompt action should put his proposition before the readers of The Review. It works like this:

We are so nearly sold out of Louise as the result of the page advertisement that we will not want any more space until next fall. Have sold nearly 4,000 of it this last week [the price advertised was $1 per bulb.—Ed.] and orders are coming in by the dozens.—M. F. Wright & Daughter, Sturgis, Mich., March 11, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Breitmeyer.

Mrs. John Breitmeyer, widow of the late John Breitmeyer, who was founder of the business now known as John Breitmeyer's Sons, Detroit, and mother of Philip and Fred Breitmeyer, died Tuesday, March 9.

Mrs. Breitmeyer was a great aid to her husband and took an active interest in the business, being head of the store and the selling end. She held this position until her son Philip was able to take over the management.

Charles F. Swayger.

Charles F. Swayger, chief gardener of the Illinois Central Railroad Co. and the Mississippi & Yazoo Valley Railroad Co., died March 6 at his home in Champaign, Ill. He had been ill for some time with pleurisy and heart trouble.

He is survived by his wife, a son 16 years old and a daughter 5 years old. The son has already entered his father's profession.

George W. Cunningham.

George William Cunningham, of Delaware, O., son of the late Joseph H. Cunningham, died at his home in that city February 25, after a two weeks' illness with pneumonia.

Mr. Cunningham was born in Delaware, O., December 25, 1890. Upon the death of his father, he became general manager of the Joseph H. Cunningham Greenhouses and was not only prominent in central Ohio, but well known in all parts of the country. His specialty was primroses and, being unable to secure good seed from Germany because of the war, he applied himself to the growing of his own seed, which found favor throughout the trade.

He was Worshipful Master of Hiram Lodge, No. 18, A. F. & A. M., of Ohio, and a member of the Chapter Council and Enoch Lodge of Perfection at Columbus, O.

Besides his wife and four children, he is survived by his mother, two sisters and a brother. The funeral ceremony was conducted according to the Masonic rites. Many beautiful floral pieces testified to the high position he held among his friends and the florists' trade throughout the country.

A. F. Harfst.

A. F. Harfst, of Peoria, Ill., who was a grower of flowers and plants, died at his home, 310 Corrington avenue, Sunday, February 22, after a three weeks' siege of influenza and pneumonia.

Mr. Harfst tried in vain to overcome the effects of these diseases, but succumbed after terrible suffering. Mrs. Harfst is continuing the business under the same name.

Bernard H. Klus.

Bernard H. Klus, 83 years of age, died at his home in a suburb of Anderson, Ind., Thursday, March 11. He is survived by his wife and five children.

Mr. Klus was born at Minster, O., in 1837. His marriage to Anna L. Heitzman took place in 1863. They located a year later at Redkey, Ind., where Mr. Klus was employed in the supply department of the Pennsylvania railroad for seventeen years. The family moved to Muncie, Ind., in 1881, and located in Anderson, Ind., in 1889. He and his sons established the firm of B. H. Klus & Son. He had a genial disposition and was strong in the affections of his friends.

The funeral took place Saturday, March 13, at 9 a. m. at St. Mary's Catholic church. The burial was at Muncie, Ind.

John Mallon.

John Mallon, for many years a salesman for William Burns, the Sixth avenue retail florist, New York city, and later with W. P. Sears, died Saturday, March 13, from heart failure.

The Market.

Many prices have been reduced, including those on roses, carnations, orchids, calendulas, mignonette, violets, sweet peas and lilies. The most plentiful flower is the orchid, which has grown in popularity until now there is a large demand for it. Stock is a little more plentiful and, with the passing of the flu epidemic, the florists are in a better position to fill orders. The outlook for Easter is promising. The warm weather is assisting the growers and there are prospects for a good supply. Easter lilies will cost more this year, running from 20 cents to 25 cents per bloom.

Club Holds Social Evening.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held its annual social Tuesday, March 9. There were over 100 present. Progressive euchre was enjoyed the first part of the evening, twenty tables being required for those taking part. After refreshments the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing. Ice cream and macaroons were served later. Those who attended stated that this was the first really social affair the association has held, as it permitted the members and their wives to get acquainted.

Various Notes.

T. W. Duggan, manáger of the Dale Estate, has been ill and is in the General hospital.

The Allan Gardens greenhouses, at one of the city's parks, have been open to the public and will be until Easter. The displays of plants, flowers and palms were fine and the opportunity of visiting the greenhouses was much appreciated. A resolution has been passed by the Riverdale Horticultural Association asking that all the greenhouses in the various parks in the city be opened to the public and that additional greenhouses be provided to permit the proper display of plants, etc., and that the plants should bear labels bearing the names.

At the closing of the short course on horticulture at Ontario Agricultural College, at Guelph, papers and addresses were given by many prominent florists. These included Professor Thomson, of Toronto University; W. W. Gammage, of London; W. E. Groves, of Hamilton; H. J. Moore, of Niagara Falls; E. B. Hamilton, president of the C. H. A., London; P. Bennett, president of the St. Thomas Horticultural Association; J. Lockie Wilson, president of the Ontario Horticultural Association; A. P. McLennan and others. Alexander Simpson, secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association, was a guest. The chair was occupied by Prof. J. W. Crow.

Professor Thomson is calling a meeting for March 27 to take further steps towards the establishment of a botanical garden at Toronto. All those who are interested are invited to attend.

H. J. Moore, superintendent of Victoria park, Niagara Falls, addressed the Rose Society, March 10, on "How to Grow Plants."

The executive committee of the C. H. A. will meet in Hamilton in April to arrange a program for the convention at Hamilton, August 10 to 13. At that meeting a council of horticulture will be appointed.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association has appointed a committee to assist its representative on the board of the Canadian national exhibition, P. L. Whytock, in making arrangements for this year's exhibit. Mr. Whytock and Alexander Simpson are at the New York show to secure new ideas for making the fall exhibit a greater success and to secure suggestions for the better arrangement of the building and exhibits.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market has been in a most unusual condition during the last week. The supply of flowers has been large, though not unseasonably so, and the city demand has been good. Shipping, however, has been conducted with difficulty and it has been impossible to dispatch the quantities of flowers which would have been sent out had transportation facilities been normal. Taking all things into consideration, the market has got along splendidly in the face of the express strike. One might have supposed that a suspension of express service through strike and embargo would have resulted in an almost complete cessation of shipping, but the fact is that most of the regular customers are being taken care of after a fashion in one way or another. It is not possible to make the big shipments that ordinarily go out from a well supplied market, but the regular customers who are paying fair prices are getting their flowers. The shippers either run the blockade imposed by the express officials or use the parcel post. While the postoffice facilities are greatly congested, the management has risen to the occasion in better shape this time than for several years. Although there are huge accumulations of parcels, the perishable shipments, especially if a special delivery stamp has been used, are getting fairly prompt service. There are, of course, instances in which shipments have been delayed for days and were a total loss, but the losses are comparatively few and do not discourage the shippers, who feel themselves lucky under the circumstances.

But it cannot be denied that the express strike, coming at a time when stock is so plentiful, is having a disastrous effect on the trade. Losses are running to large sums. It is impossible to sell all the flowers locally, and it is impossible to do business with the quantity buyers out of town. The result is a wide spread in prices; the stock that is shipped with much effort is being billed out at reasonable figures and the city buyers are paying moderate prices for their regular purchases, but the surplus is so large that it cannot all be moved through trade channels at any price whatever. The only possible outlet would be through department stores, but everybody in the trade seems inclined to profit by last year's lesson and throw stock away rather than have it cheapened in the eyes of the public by such ridiculous sales as occurred in last spring's glut. The result is that most of the wholesalers now report sales running behind those of last year. It is the first time since early November that the daily sales reports have not been showing good gains.

There is no use particularizing as to stock under these conditions. There is an abundance of everything in the way of cut flowers. The quality of the stock is excellent. There is nothing to be desired except an opportunity to do business, such as is denied the trade by the express officials and employees. Curiously, however, a lot of the strikers are now at work handling mail in the emergency force of the parcel post department.

One of the notable increases in the supply is of Easter lilies. These are the precocious flowers, too early for Easter. Otherwise the principal increase is in the supply of sweet peas, which have come into full crop under the influence of better weather.

Greens are scarce. The frost in Florida has shut off some of the shipments of asparagus and the express embargo has made the shipments of eastern ferns and of California greens more or less uncertain; some agents let them come forward, while others remember the embargo.

The Express Situation.

The express strike is getting on the nerves of the men in the market. While they speak gently to those in the express service, in the trade there is strong condemnation of the policy the management is pursuing. After ten days of interrupted traffic, the situation is exactly what it was at the start. The management seems to be doing absolutely nothing; it neither seeks to reach an agreement with the strikers nor to do business without them. In the meantime shippers suffer.

The embargo continues. The management at the start of the trouble gave orders to agents throughout the country to refuse shipments for Chicago, and in Chicago all attempt to give service was abandoned, although wagon men and some of the station employees are at their posts. But more or less freight comes in every day and some goes out, in spite of the official embargo. Agents at a distance "forget" and forward some of the shipments offered. These get prompt handling here, because the men still on the job have nothing else to do. With outgoing freight it is only slightly different.

If you have a friend in the station crew you take your stuff to him and he gets it off, though ordered not to accept it. If someone complains of favoritism an official gives the station men a calling down and the lid is on tight for an hour, but nobody loses his job and soon everything is as before.

The shippers feel that it is up to the management to get busy and give service, one way or another, without inflicting further loss on the public, but little is said for fear of making a bad matter still worse.

Easter Prospects.

Supposing that express service will be normal by then, there is every indication that the Easter business will break all records. Orders already are coming in numerously and average larger than ever before.

The prices at which advance orders are being taken average much higher than those of other Easters, but are not nearly so high as at St. Valentine's day. The prices are based on the belief that the supply of stock will not be larger than in recent years, but that the demand will be much heavier.

There has begun to be an idea that the supply of cut lilies will be enough to go around at the price, which is more than double what was asked two years ago, the last Easter of normal supply. But a good many growers say their roses will not be in full crop and it begins to look as though there may be fewer flowers than had been expected. Carnations will be in heavy crop. Bulbous flowers will be less plentiful than usual, because of the high cost of the bulbs, but sweet peas will be in the largest supply ever known. Flowers are averaging of unusually good quality at present and Easter is too early for much change to be feared. Stock should be fine.

The Coöperative Advertising.

The Allied Florists' Association is doing more than advertising flowers, as witness the following letter sent to the retailers March 15, by Secretary Swenson:

TO THE RETAIL FLORIST.

The natural channel of distribution of flowers is the retail florists—they should be sold to the public by the retailers only.

There is an abnormal supply of flowers on the market right now. We can't put the blame on anyone, for the present condition is governed by the weather, the express situation and otherwise.

But this stock must be moved—sold! It should not be dumped and the producer suffer a loss.

I am sure you will agree that every retailer should fully realize that he is the natural distributor of these flowers and during these times of glut should do his utmost to help move this stock. If every retailer felt this responsibility and bought an extra share, the glut would subside considerably—400 retailers, each buying a little extra, soon counts up.

You say, "What am I going to do with the extra flowers?"

Sell them! Sell them by putting on a sale for several days—make the price so attractive the public will buy. You won't lose. Don't you think it's better to make 100 sales at 50 cents profit each than ten sales at a profit of $1 each? Figure it out.

And the best part of it is, you bring people into your store and make new customers that way. Marshall Field does business that way—why can't florists? It is one of the best ways of getting new business.

Go after business. You only get half as much if you wait for it to come to you.

If I can be of any assistance, do not hesitate to call me up—Harrison 6075. I will be more than glad to offer any suggestions.

We Announce

the addition of a retail department to our long established wholesale business. It will not be a secret, under-cover affair, but a separate department, strictly retail—as our wholesale business is strictly wholesale.

Paul Weiss Makes Another Deal.

Paul Weiss has just put through another deal in greenhouse property, but this time he is not adding to his list of four splendid establishments, having turned his purchase over almost immediately to Fred Wehrman, of Oak Park. The range involved is that built by Fred Weber, in Bowmanville, and operated with great success until his death. Mrs. Weber has continued the business, recently under the management of her son, Arthur, who returned from the war nearly a year ago. Originally built for Beauties, the range now is in roses.

Mr. Weiss held his purchase only a few days, passing the property on to Mr. Wehrman, who has been looking for a good place to start his son, Elmer, in the business. The cut will, as heretofore, be sold by the E. C. Amling Co.

Various Notes.

St. Louis paid Chicago the compliment of that which is called sincerest flattery by reproducing in the Globe-Democrat March 13 the advertisement, "Brighten Your Sunday Dinner Table," which the Allied Florists' Association ran in the Tribune February 28.

Last week Johnson & Chronis cabled an order for flowers to Reading, England, in remembrance of a soldier killed in the late war, whose family had bought the estate of a former British ambassador to this country.

Ernst C. Amling and wife returned to Maywood March 12 after having spent seven weeks in southern California. Albert F. Amling and wife are due home March 28. Walter Amling, who is with Armacost at Los Angeles, is so pleased with California that he will remain.

Joseph A. Mendel, former county commissioner, was married March 11 to Miss Emily Matousek, an employee in the Mendel flower store at 1424 West Eighteenth street. The ceremony was performed in Judge Joseph Sabath's chambers. Then they went to Florida. The judge gave away their secret next day. He didn't know why he should keep it, he jokingly remarked, seeing Mr. Mendel had once tried to beat his brother in the fight for congress.

The E. C. Amling Co., for St. Patrick's day, noted a new wrinkle. A number of customers ordering white carnations asked that they be set aside the day before delivery and allowed to stand overnight in the icebox with the stems in the usual deep galvanized vases, but without water. The idea was to make the flowers thirsty, so that they quickly would absorb the water containing the green dye, when put in it.

George Asmus, in his capacity as president of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois, was at Cleveland March 14 to address a Sunday afternoon gathering of the florists there, who propose to organize their publicity work on the lines adopted in Chicago. J. F. Ammann, secretary of the new national growers' association, also was there and the two joined the Cleveland party which went to the New York show. Mr. Asmus had meetings of the S. A. F. publicity finance committee and the national flower show committee, of both of which he is chairman, to attend this week.

In a party which left March 15 to see the New York show were George Wienhoeber, Henry Wehrman, W. J. Keimel and Alex. Henderson. C. J. Michelsen, A. Miller and Guy French, who had planned to go, stayed at home because of conditions growing out of the express strike.

Paul R. Klingsporn left March 14 to spend the next day at his old home in Philadelphia. It was his fortieth birthday. Then Mr. Klingsporn went to New York to spend a couple of days at the spring flower show in progress there this week and to attend meetings of committees of the S. A. F., of which he is a director.

The express strike alarmed Amling Bros., of Des Plaines. The day it started Joseph H. Hill Co., of Richmond, shipped them young stock of Premier to the value of over $1,200 and it was

Henry Wittbold supplied a considerable part of it, including over 5,000 long roses which he bought March 13 wherever the buying was good and assembled in one of the empty iceboxes of the A. L. Florists' Refrigerators

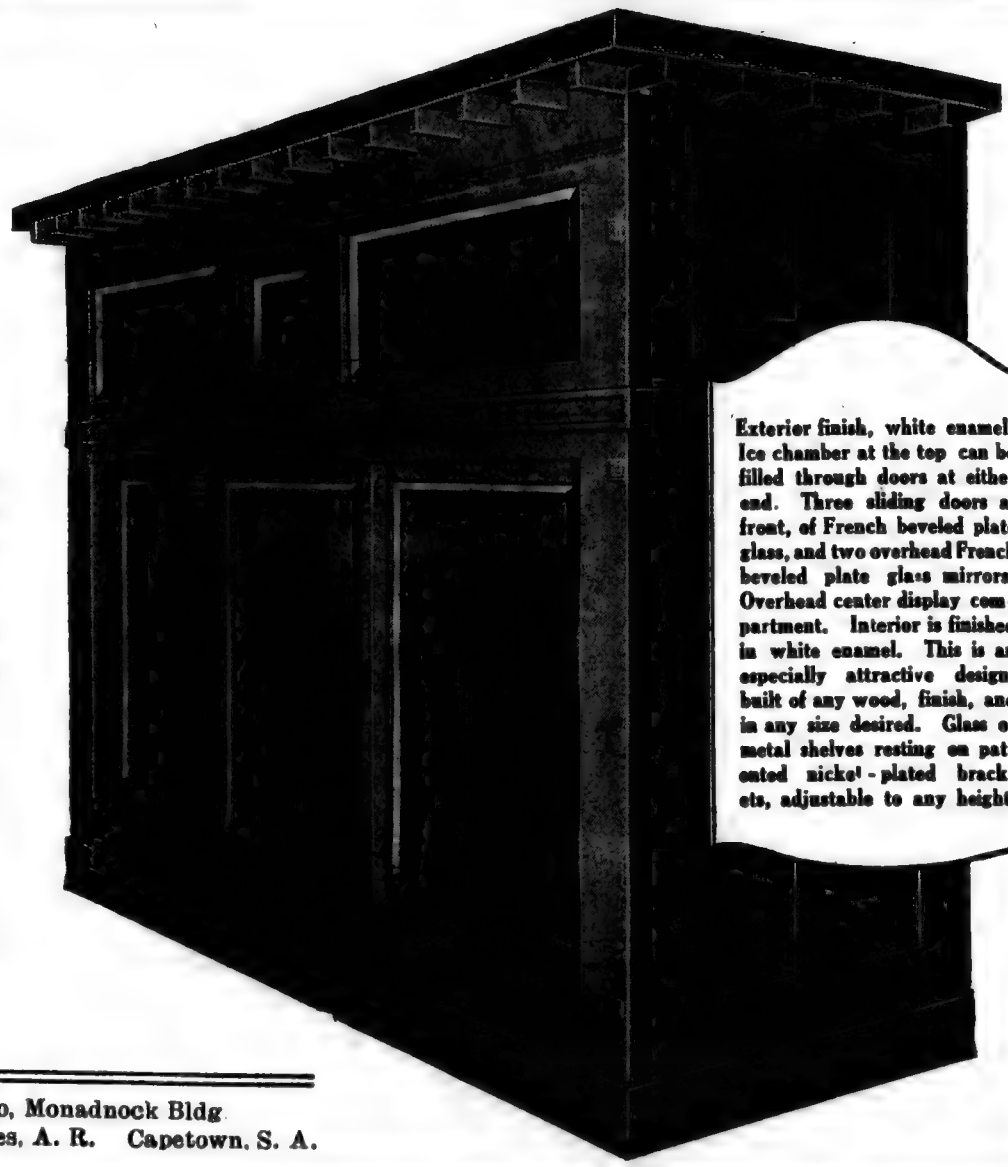
We manufacture, in our own plant, a complete line of florists' refrigerators. While we have many popular standard designs, most refrigerators are built for individual requirements.



Brecht Refrigerators are the result of 67 years' experience. They are designed on a scientific basis, from the best material obtainable, and are built to give greatest service with minimum ice consumption.

We will be glad to quote you on our standard designs, or to offer suggestions and submit special designs upon receipt of your requirements.

Three sliding doors at front, of French beveled plate glass, and two overhead French beveled plate glass mirrors. Overhead center display compartment. Interior is finished in white enamel. This is an especially attractive design, built of any wood, finish, and in any size desired. Glass or metal shelves resting on patented nickel-plated brackets, adjustable to any height.

in some of the finest mums which reached this market and now the young man is cutting first-class Sunburst roses. Leo Wietor, elder son of N. J. Wietor, has a section of carnations and, in addition to growing fine flowers, is proving to be a skillful propagator.

H. N. Bruns reports the arrival of a large importation of valley pips in a sprouted and worthless condition. Such reports have been coming from the east for some time, so that it appears valley pips that will come out of storage in forcing condition will be scarce before the 1920 crop is ready.

O. A. Tonner says that Tonner Wholesale Florists believe the time has come when they, as wholesale florists, are so located that they can begin to establish a separate retail department, conducted strictly retail, without interfering with their wholesale department.

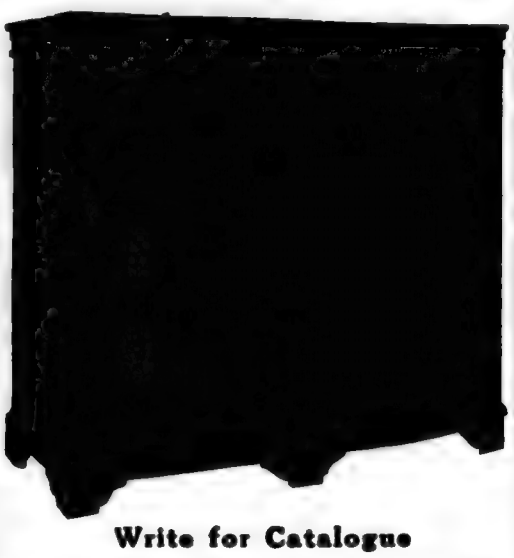
A. H. Budlong and his sons, Kenneth and Herbert, make a strong triumvirate in greenhouse work.

The A. L. Randall Co. continues to grow at an astonishing rate. A factory for the complete manufacture of artificial flowers recently was opened in New York city in the center of a colony of trained workers, and now negotiations are practically closed for the purchase of a factory building in St. Louis, where baskets and reed ware of other kinds will be manufactured.

Robert Newcomb came to town March 19, but without the sombrero and "chaps" reputed to be his apparel while hunting orders in the west.

The express strike hit the cut flower market hard, but there were others who found the problem serious. During the first week of the strike the A. B. C. accumulated 700 packed orders considered too small for freight and too large to mail.

A. J. Zech was at Peoria March 12 and 13 to take part in the annual American bowling congress.



Floren Cipar is representative of a large class of successful florists. After spending a number of years in the employment of E. H. Hunt, he went into business for himself at 7121 South Halsted street, renting a place where there are comfortable living rooms back of the store. Mr. Cipar and his wife do all the work themselves, employing their idle moments by making their own baskets, wire frames, etc. They have prospered to the point where they are ready, when building becomes easier, to "Well, Sir—It's been just a year since I bought my Cut Flower Refrigerator from Gloekler's—and let me tell you!—I've sold more cut flowers in a single year than I did in any two years before. Customers come in just to look around for something nice—they see that beautiful Display Refrigerator standing there just chock full of Beauty—and bless my soul if it don't just seem to make them buy! The money I put into its purchase is the best investment I ever made for my business."

C. W. Kent, of Kent Bros., Newark, O., was here over the week end, visiting with his son, F. B. Kent, who is one of Major R. B. Howe's lieutenants with the W. W. Barnard Co.

J. E. Quallich, who represents the A. L. Randall Co. in Cleveland, was here March 15 for a conference with Sales Manager Galavan and department managers.

Swan Peterson, of the Peterson Floral Co., Gibson City and Decatur, was here March 15 for the first time in six weeks. He is a frequent visitor, but the flu has kept him at home.

W. B., better known as "Jack," Shotwell, of Fargo, N. D., spent two days in the market last week. Mr. Shotwell is convalescing from an attack of the flu and was accompanied by his wife. He commented on the recent increase in his telegraph delivery business, Fargo sending and receiving orders for a large territory in the northwest. Mr. Shotwell believes the national advertising of the S. A. F. has done more than any other one agency to acquaint the public with the trade's facilities for delivering flowers at a distance.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The close of the second week of March marks a further decline in the prices of cut flowers. Gradually the flower-loving public are becoming aware of the fact that flowers are no longer expensive. Gradually they are buying flowers again. So slowly is the change coming that the supply continues to exceed the demand and the week has been a poor one. The unfavorable weather has been a barrier to improvement in market conditions. Greens, such as leucothoe, ferns and asparagus, sell much better than flowers. The leftovers pull down the rather low average prices of sales.

Emperor and several other fine daffodils have come. Freesia is still here, but the season is over; it does not sell. Snapdragons are extremely fine and quite plentiful. There is special demand for the few Cattleya Trianæ that are still coming. It is probable that Easter will come at the wrong time for the orchid. The winter variety is over and

Easter Prospects.

Indications point to a good supply of flowers for Easter at prices that are not likely to exceed those of last year. Unlike last year, there will be a good stock of really fine Easter lilies, which is likely to meet all demands. Corsage flowers, especially sweet peas and violets, are likely to be in good supply. Given moderately favorable weather, it is confidently predicted that advance orders will be filled in full.

Easter Plants.

Philadelphia has been growing more important year by year as a source of supply for fine Easter plants for a widespread territory. From a small beginning the plant growers of this city have steadily developed an immense business in Easter plants. Aschmann Bros., Godfrey Aschmann, the Robert Craig Co., Henry I. Faust, William K. Harris, the Strafford Flower Farms, Zieger & Son and others devote a great part of their ranges of glass to the flowering of Easter plants. So large has this industry become that it is confidently asserted that Easter lilies are more plentiful today right here in Philadelphia than anywhere else in this country.

This year there are marked changes in the varieties of plants grown, owing to the war and the embargo. The growers have made the most of their opportunities. The assortment, as offered today, covers a wide range of varieties. The quality of the stock is superior to anything ever seen here before.

Robert A. Craig made time before leaving for the international flower show in New York, where he is staging a handsome exhibit, to go over some of his special features in blooming plants. Easter lilies came first. The return of high-grade, freshly imported bulbs has made it possible to produce Lilium giganteum of superb quality. Buds, foliage, height, finish, timing, leave nothing to be desired. There will be plenty of lilies. Roses are fine, but not so plentiful. There are few growers of pot roses. The supply will not equal the demand. Hydrangeas, in a number of the French varieties, are extremely well flowered and beautifully colored. There is a refinement about many of these French varieties that makes them charming. Otaksa, too, is good. Mr. Craig pointed out a house of Azalea Hinodigiri that presented a fine sight. They ranged in size from small basket plants to large specimens grown on pedestals.

genistas, was so well timed that the plants had acquired an added luster from skillful culture and the absence of forcing.

An exceedingly fine lot of Cineraria hybrida in a rich variety of colors was produced from a special lot of seed that George D. Clark had secured and wanted tested. The individual flowers on these plants were extremely large.

Primula obconica, with over twenty blooms to a plant, was as showy as small hydrangeas. These are only a few of the many Easter blooming plants grown here and hereabouts today. This description is merely intended to give an idea of what is being done.

The indications point to the largest plant Easter that this city has ever seen.

A specialty with the new company will be 2½-inch cyclamens, begonias, primroses, poinsettias and ferns.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

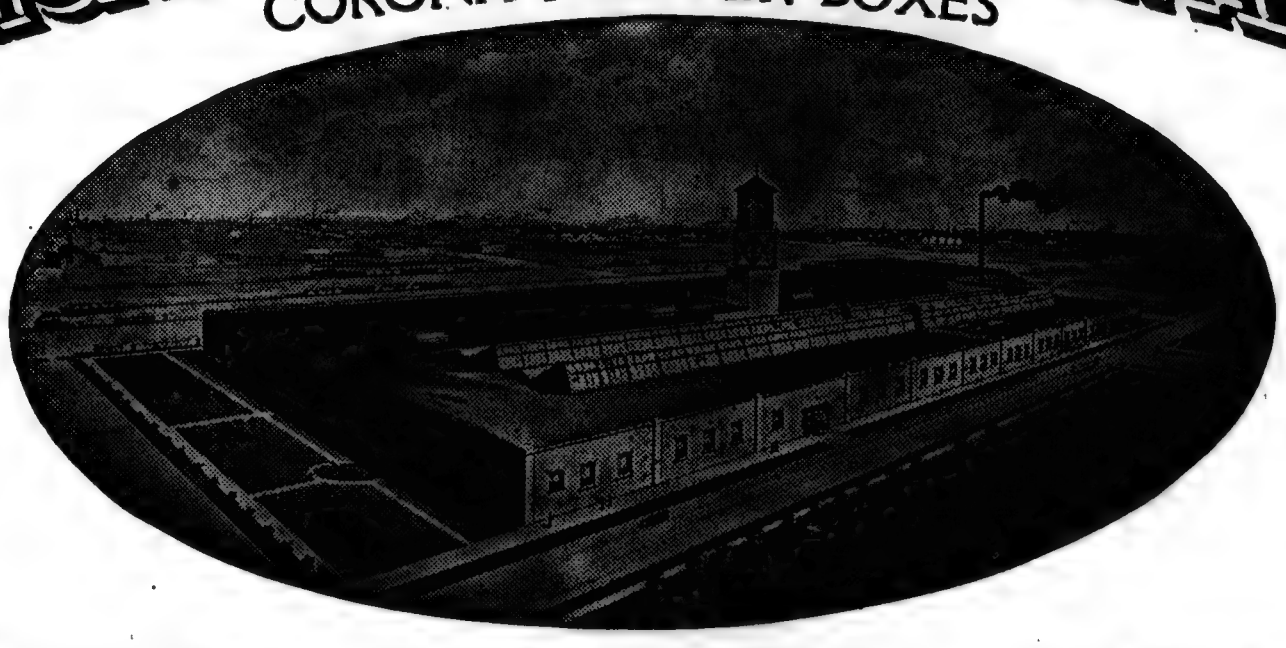
The Market.

Flowers are getting plentiful as business decreases, but the downward tendency in selling is considered only a reaction from the feverish rush of a few weeks ago, when there was not stock enough to take care of the orders. Business is about normal for this season. Prices are lower, because the weather has been right to bring on seasonable crops and there is a good supply of spring stock, carnations, sweet peas and a fair supply of roses.

Many of the lilies this year will be late in blooming and will not be available for Easter. About half of the crop will be on time and this will be sufficient to take care of the retail business, but there will not be any to wholesale to other florists, as in many years past. What growers thought was the giganteum this year must have been another variety of lily, as the stem is green instead of brown and bushes out from the start, which the giganteum does not do.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. will have a large number of azaleas and rhododendrons for Easter. It is the only firm that will have rhododendrons and Mr. Rock is particularly pleased with these, as they have been grown from California stock and it is the first time they have been tried in his greenhouses.



Mrs. T. J. Noll has been ill for several days and has been confined to her home.

Vincent Thomas, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Thomas, of the Rosery, is recovering from a severe attack of tonsillitis.

Samuel Murray has a fine crop of lilies and hydrangeas, which will be in time for Easter. They are the best lilies he has had in years and, from

J. J. Hess, of Omaha, Neb., treasurer of the S. A. F., spent a few days in this city last week.

In preparation for St. Patrick's day, the W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a large green pie in the window. It was designed for a centerpiece and contained favors for a St. Patrick's day dinner.

T. J. Noll & Co. have added space to their establishment by renting another large room for stock. This is on the same floor as their shipping room and office. A balcony will be built on three sides to hold supplies. Improvements are also being made in the display room, where tables and cases are being installed, so that many lines will be accessible for inspection by the customers. A new billing machine will be added, with another clerk in charge.

George E. Kessler, landscape engineer, and the park board have set aside a prominence on one of the hills of Swope park, east of the old rifle range, for a Roosevelt memorial grove. The site is visible from the shelter house and, just as soon as the weather permits, the Boy Scout troops will plant trees in memory of the former president.

Among the visitors last week were: Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, or Pleasant Hill, Mo.; L. H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo.; J. Ralph Souder, Hutchinson, Kan.; Mr. Holt, Des Moines, Ia.; Jacob Hess, Omaha, Neb., and Mr. and Mrs. A. Washburn, Chicago.

CONTINUOUSLY, for over ten years, we have specialized in the manufacture of high grade Florists' Boxes which have been most satisfactory in quality and price.

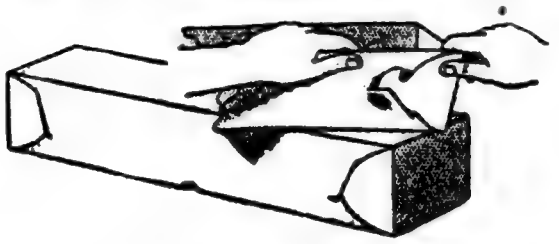
The plate-glass window in the Apollo Flower Shop was blown in by the high wind Wednesday night, March 10, but no damage was done to the plants in the window. This is the second time this window has blown in. The high buildings on both sides of Eleventh street cause a sweep of air in that block at all times and when the velocity is as great as it was March 10 there is a strain on the windows.

About 40,000 packages of garden seed will arrive from Washington this week from the congressional bureau of seed distribution, and will be given by the board of education to children in the three higher grades of the city schools.



Meyer Lieberman and Morse Galamba have what is probably the smallest and busiest flower store in the city. They have rented space in the new Kresge 25 and 50-cent store, recently opened at Twelfth and Main streets. They have invested about $10,000 and run of funeral work for two or three days. J. E. K.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Potted spring bulbous stock is now arriving on the local market in large quantities. Prices on all kinds of flowers have dropped to a much lower point than they have been for some time. Sweet peas may be purchased now for 35 cents per bunch and hyacinths with four or five blooms to the pot are selling at $1 to $2 per pot, a figure much lower than last year.

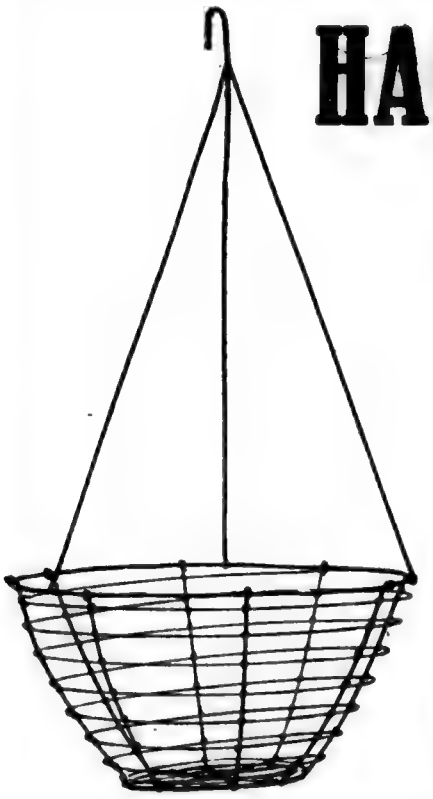
Tulips, jonquils, etc., sell at a relatively low price. Carnations are more plentiful than they have been. Funeral work continues to form the bulk of the business.

Various Notes.

With the advent of warmer weather, pushcart flower venders have made their appearance on the streets of Newark.

The Washington Florists, 577 Broad street, report business good at the present time. Funeral work is making up most of the trade.

Fred D. Wolfinger, Broad street, reports business exceptionally good now.



R. B. M.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There are too many cut flowers arriving for the rather weak demand and prices continue on the down grade. The weather has been much milder and considerable snow has disappeared. More remains, however, than we get in some ordinary winters altogether. Saturdays are usually busy days with retailers, but March 6 gave us the worst blizzard of the winter and March 13 torrential rain, which flooded streets, sidewalks and cellars and made shopping the reverse of enjoyable. As a result many flowers have been carried over at the markets and values are quite low.

Roses are in a particularly weak position and move slowly at prices about the same as a week ago. American Beauties are in small supply and cut little figure in the market. A few fancy Hadley sell as high as from $40 to $50 per hundred, but the general run of hybrid teas sell at from $2 to $16 per hundred. Carnations have weakened even more than roses and many are now sold at $2, while $4 is the limit for select stock. Sweet peas are in heavy supply. Short-stemmed stock is sold at the rate of 300 for $1, while select, long-stemmed flowers realize up to $2. Violets are weak and 75 cents is now top price, with many selling lower.

Lilies remain slow and there is a surplus of callas for the first time this season. Daffodils hold up rather better than other flowers. Calendulas, mignonette, myosotis and marguerites are all selling rather poorly at present. Some good St. Brigid anemones are coming in. These, with iris, are the most recent additions to the varieties of bulbs offered. There are still a good number of Cattleya Trianæ, while Schroederæ has also appeared. Cypripediums are quite scarce. Asparagus is in short supply and selling well.

Various Notes.

A large number of local florists and gardeners from Boston and vicinity are visiting the New York flower show. Among those who started March 14 to act as judges were Thomas Roland, H. H. Bartsch, Donald McKenzie and Patrick Welch. Others who have gone include Julius Heurlin, P. L. Carbone, Henry Penn, S. J. Goddard, W. D. Howard, C. S. Strout, J. C. Gibbs, J. F. Gibbs, of Lynn; W. C. Rust, Walter H. Golby, Peter Arnott, J. K. M. L. Farquhar, George Cruickshank, W. N. Craig, H. M. Robinson, C. E. Robinson, C. F. Boyle, B. F. Letson, L. A. Reuter and E. A. Peirce.

On the following evening the orchid conference will be held and Kewites in America will hold a reunion and dinner the same night, which will be well attended.

There were several severe losses from the blizzard of March 6 among commercial growers. The heaviest occurred at the Coolidge range, near Mount Auburn cemetery, where four houses, 40x200, collapsed under the weight of snow blown in blinding clouds on the roofs. The loss in all houses was complete. Bedding plants and vegetables were mostly grown. Several other houses were damaged. Mr. Coolidge will probably not rebuild. Mrs. Jennie P. Snow, the carnation specialist of Sharon, lost her best house of carnations and has the sympathy of many growers. On other ranges some damage was done, more serious than from the great storm of February 5.

Charles F. Boyle was elected president of the T. F. Galvin corporation last week. Mr. Boyle is extremely popular in the trade. He has worked since boyhood with Galvin's and well deserves the position he has just been given. His many friends tender congratulations.

William R. Nicholson is around again after a severe illness with pneumonia. He will leave for Pinehurst, N. C., this week, where he will recuperate and enjoy the mountain air and excellent golf course. He will visit the New York show en route.

W. N. Craig addressed the Garden Club of America at its spring convention in New York March 17. E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum, will give a lecture on "The Flowers and Gardens of Japan" before the Garden Club of Orange and Dutchess Counties, New York, at the Colony Club, New York, March 19. Mr. Wilson leaves in June for a two years' world tour and will visit Ceylon, India, Java, Sumatra, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and other countries before returning here.

With the passing of the forty days since the ground hog saw his shadow and crawled back for another sleep, we seem rather nearer spring. After several warm days, another cold wave hit us March 14 and 15. A lot of snow and ice remains and automobile traffic is still far below normal on all but city streets, but the end of the most severe and uncomfortable winter experienced in the last half century should soon be here.

St. Patrick's day cut little figure in the market this year. Far fewer shamrocks were sold, but there was the usual number of green carnations and other doctored flowers. W. N. C.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Oakland, Cal.—Plans for a spring flower show and festival were completed March 2, at a meeting of Alameda county florists at the Hotel Oakland.

Portland, Ore.—John K. Scheffer, formerly of Lawrence, Kan., has started in business again at 1555 Burrage street. He intends to grow a general line of bedding plants, some cut flowers and gladiolus and dahlia bulbs.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

A considerable drop in the price of carnations shows that the effect of Lent is being felt and wholesalers are not shipping so much stock as they were one or two weeks previously. Bulbous stock is more plentiful, especially daffodils and hyacinths, and some days large amounts of such stock have been moved off for cash at considerable reduction. Roses are coming more freely and are just about equal to the local demand, though really good shipping stock is still scarce. The Spanish irises are especially good this season, but are short in supply and high in price. Callas are more plentiful and it looks as if there would be no shortage for Easter. Cut Easter lilies will be scarce, but probably there will be enough potted stock at the high prices growers are asking. Orchids are still below the demand. Cecile Brunners continue to be scarce. Sweet peas are arriving in better condition and are a little more plentiful. Greens are scarce.

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Los Angeles Florists' Club, held at Christopher's March 11, was a most pleasant and successful one. The members present were: I. Purdie, F. Warner, A. F. Borden, H. R. Richards, W. Armacost, F. R. Hills, Albert Goldenson, John Polder, F. H. Howard, H. Reeve Darling, N. Maynard, A. Knopf, F. Lichtenberg, C. Gutting, Roy F. Wilcox and J. Rolleri. The visitors were E. A. Fetters and Thomas Browne, from Detroit, Mich.; C. E. Morton, from Phoenix, Ariz., and his brother, Hubert, just in from Seattle, Wash.

President Armacost called on the visitors for a short speech, to which request they all responded happily. Both of the Detroit visitors spoke of the beauties of California scenery and climate and also expressed themselves as delighted with the welcome they had received from the local trade. The following new members were elected: Fred Dostal, Reggie Overstreet, E. C. Amling, Howard Amling and E. H. Volkman.

The question of coöperative advertising was taken up by the publicity committee and President Armacost, H. Reeve Darling and Fred Howard all spoke of their experience in individual advertising. Mr. Darling said that he would give his time gratis to preparing copy, an offer which naturally was received with enthusiasm and immediately accepted. Albert Knopf and other members spoke in favor of using the S. A. F. slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as much as possible and elaborating on it to suit local conditions, a suggestion that seemed to appeal to all. A tentative proposal to levy a small percentage on all growers, wholesalers and retailers was discussed and it was suggested that the principal Japanese growers be asked to contribute to the general fund.

Coöperative delivery also came in for discussion, and the committee which had been appointed asked all retailers present to prepare a statement as to what their deliveries cost. The question is a serious one in such a wide-spreading city as Los Angeles, where the true business section is confined to a comparatively small area. It was also decided to have the membership include all towns and cities in southern California, since it was thought that this would bring the club a more representative membership and facilitate coöperation. Various other points were discussed and it was later than usual when a motion to adjourn was carried.

Various Notes.

Louis N. Dupuy, of Whitestone, N. Y., is paying this city a visit and is having a look around the growing establishments. For two or three days Fred Howard was his pilot and they took in a good deal of the country, including the Howard & Smith establishment and Rudolph Fischer's range, Mr. Fischer being an old neighbor of Mr. Dupuy's. Roy Wilcox took Mr. Dupuy and E. A. Fetters, of Detroit, Mich., out to Sierra Madre to the palm growing establishment of Bassett & Washburn. Mr. Dupuy expressed himself as delighted with southern California. Mr. Fetters has bought five acres of land near Santa Monica.

Harry Bailey, of Montebello, reports that his freesias are in better condition than ever before, with splendid prospects for a large crop of bulbs. Mr. Bailey has again joined the ranks of the married men, much to everyone's surprise. His many friends in the trade join in wishing him every happiness.

W. Rapp, president of the Pasadena Horticultural Society, is expecting a record-breaker in the society's show, which opens April 8 and continues through April 10.

Roderick Mackenzie, now getting established in his nursery, is growing fine pot stock of primulas, ferns and other popular items.

The Crown City Nurseries are building a new greenhouse, 25x100 feet, at their Villa street range at Pasadena. This firm, in the short time it has been in business, has worked up a fine trade. Both partners, William Rapp and Frank Rossiter, are experienced men in the business. Landscape work is one of their specialties.

Mrs. Paul C. Hahn, Cleveland, O., and a party of friends visited the city last week.

C. E. Morton, of Phoenix, Ariz., is in the city looking up stock for Easter. Mr. Morton says that, notwithstanding the big business of last year, the pres-

The Market.

The local market took a drop last week, with prices of all cut stock a little lower than those maintained for the winter months. The market, instead of dropping evenly, however, has fluctuated more or less and it has been difficult to establish a general scale of prices, the demand for the current day influencing the market to a considerable extent. All stock is more plentiful and in excellent condition. Recent rains have brought out the outdoor stock and cutting will soon commence. In fact, daffodils and much stock of a similar character are now out of glass and are being brought into the market in large quantities.

Of roses Russell is about the only one that is really holding its own in the matter of price. The market has been up and down on most of the other varieties.

Carnations, with the exception of the specially selected stock, are down in price, although the demand is strong enough to clean up in fairly good shape each day.

Lilies of the valley, which first appeared in the market at $1.50 per dozen wholesale, are much more plentiful and are selling for about half of the above-mentioned price. The demand for them is particularly strong just now, however, and retailers are able to sell all they can get hold of. The quality is excellent.

There is a slight lessening of the local orchid supply, but the call for these blooms is not quite so heavy, on account of the presence of camellias, gardenias and lilies of the valley; so no difficulty is reported by the retailer.

Violets are still plentiful and fine. Shipping establishments are still sending out large quantities.

Potted stock for Easter is appearing in quantity. Rhododendrons, Dorothy Perkins roses, etc., are ready for removal from the greenhouses and local wholesale depots state that orders are already being taken on a good volume of Easter stock, including lilies, both cut and potted.

Various Notes.

At a recent meeting of the California Dahlia Association, in the Palace hotel, officers for the ensuing term were elected. J. W. Davis, of San Francisco, was chosen president, succeeding T. A. Burns, who has held the post of executive officer of the organization since its founding, in 1917. The following were elected for the remaining offices: Vice-presidents, W. Kettlewell, of San

The market is about normal. Stock in all seasonable flowers is enough to meet the demand. Local roses have increased in quantity and they are far better than the shipped-in stock. After the bright sunshine, recently, some fine sweet peas are to be had.

Club Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Spokane Florists' Club was held at the Davenport hotel, Monday, March 8, after being postponed a month on account of illness in so many of the florists' families.

S. Yonkin acted as toastmaster. Among the speakers was Mrs. Ruth Day, president of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association, who gave an interesting talk on coöperative working among the nurserymen and florists and coöperative advertising, stating that the nurserymen were envious of our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," because they cannot find one for their business. C. T. Kipp spoke of the progress made in the last ten years in our business, remarking that the florist of today is a thorough business man in every sense of the word. J. F. Austin spoke in behalf of the growers, telling of the progress made in that line and the aim for better goods at better prices. R. W. Neville gave an interesting talk on seeds, saying that good seeds are responsible for good results from the grower. J. W. Duncan, superintendent of the city parks, told of landscape work and its close association with the florists' business. In order to get good results from flower beds, it is necessary to have the landscape designed in a correct manner. The program of song was well rendered by Mrs. A. J. Burt, Mrs. W. F. Binge and

William Green. Mrs. Burt sang our song, "Say It with Flowers." The menu was:

Cactus cocktail a la spine.
Nico-Fume with ironite southern.
Stuffed Amaryllis vittata with bougainvillea sauce.
Club giganteum on mushroom spawn.
Browned hydrangea vita plastic.
Buttered tradescantia.
Tulip salad.
Forget-me-not cake.
Kipp's moonshine. Inland lime sulphur.

Wednesday, March 10, was florists' day at the Ad Club luncheon. The tables were decorated with Laddie carnations and each arch in the banquet room was decorated to show different uses of flowers, such as cradle, corsage, bride's bouquet, birthday gifts and wreaths. The center of the room was strung with telegraph wires, with flowers coming and going by wire.

Various Notes.

The local growers state that they have to watch the Easter lilies closely, as they are all more or less backward and, with Easter so near, no chances can be taken.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

With funeral work holding up well and the increased arrivals of spring flowers attracting the casual buyers, there was a noticeable increase in business last week and general satisfaction is expressed by members of the trade.

The first anemones of the season arrived during the week. Tulips are arriving in such large quantities as to bring some reduction in prices. The same is true of California violets, but a falling off of orders is expected to remedy this to a certain extent. The local greenhouses are supplying more roses for the market, with Columbia and Ophelia leading. White Killarney and Premier are also to be seen in quantity and Ward and baby roses are the main items in late California arrivals. Freesias are plentiful but in slower demand, as the result of the many novelties. They have been freely used in funeral pieces recently and help to hold down the cost of this work. Local sweet peas are in heavy enough supply and of fine enough quality to keep out southern offerings.

Buyers as far away as Denver have been taking stock from the local green-

IF I KNEW YOU AND YOU KNEW ME

If I knew you and you knew me,
'Tis seldom we would disagree;
But, never having yet clasped hands,
We might, perhaps, not understand
That each intends to do what's right,
And treat each other "honor bright."
How little to complain there'd be
If I knew you and you knew me!

2.

If e'er we ship you by mistake,
Or in your bill some error make,
From irritation you'd be free
If I knew you and you knew me.
Or when the checks don't come on time,
And customers send us nary a line,
We'd wait without anxiety
If I knew you and you knew me!

3.

Or when some goods you "fire back,"
Or make a "kick" on this or that,
We'd take it in good part, you see,
If I knew you and you knew me.
With customers six thousand strong
Occasionally things go wrong—
Sometimes our fault, sometimes theirs—
Forbearance would decrease all cares.
Kind friend, how pleasant things would be
If I knew you and you knew me!

4.

So let us trust, rely, confide,
Have firm good faith on either side,
Confidence to each other give—
Living ourselves, let others live;
And any time you come this way,
That you will call, we hope and pray;
Then face to face we each shall be
And I'll know you and you'll know me.

The undersigned florists of the above cities send greetings to their brother retailers throughout the United States and wish to assure them every facility in filling orders all over California and adjacent states.

There is every prospect of a good supply of stock for Easter, but of course prices have advanced over those of past years. Artistic boxes and baskets of spring flowers will be in big demand.

Our rose growers expect to be in with a good crop and Lilies, Carnations, bulb stock and other staples promise to be plentiful.

We do not solicit or care to fill orders for less than $5.00, but at or above this amount we can guarantee satisfaction to your customers.

We are continually sending orders to all parts of the country from tourists and residents in this locality and wish to express our sincere thanks for the courtesies extended us by our brother florists.

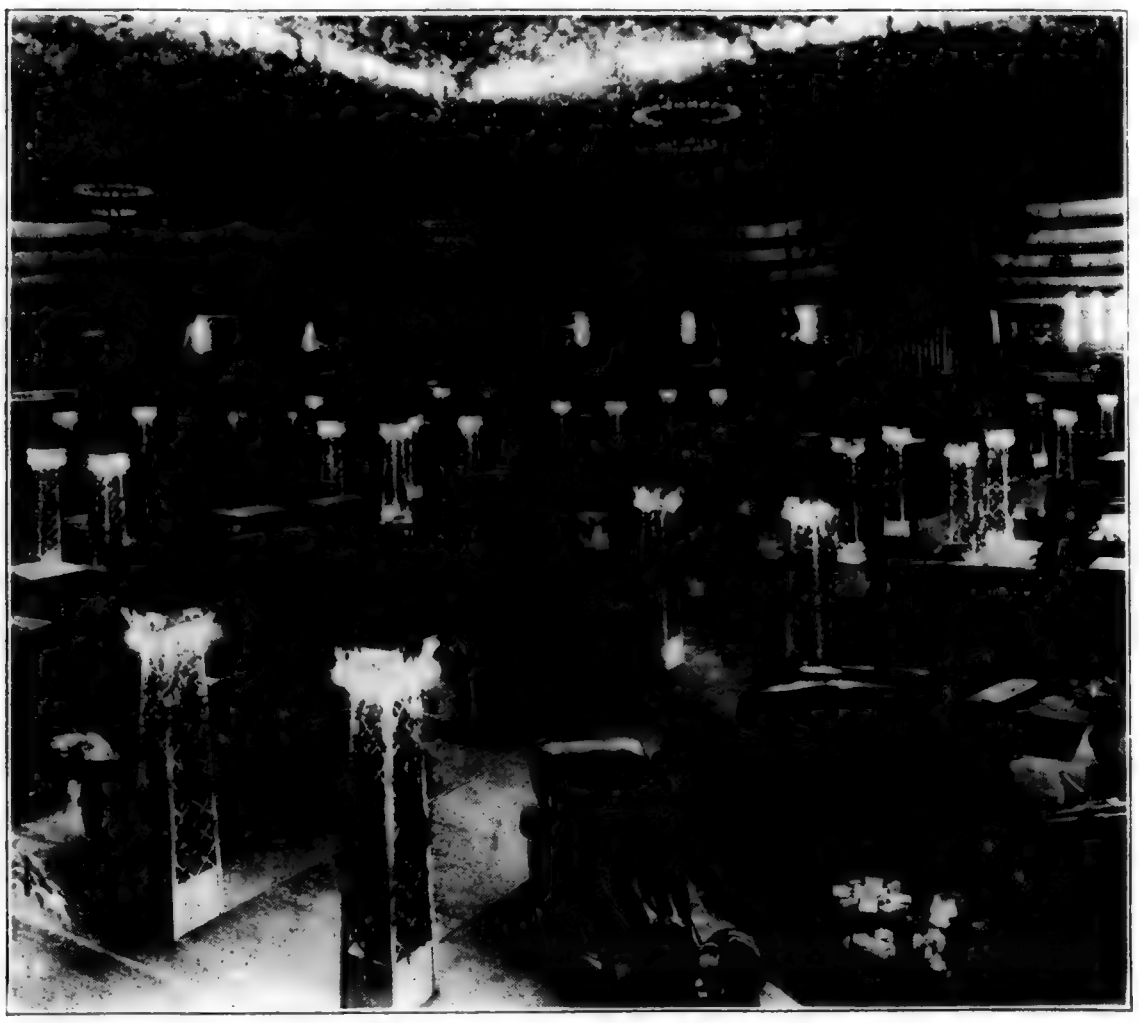
WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

BUFFALO'S BIG AUTO SHOW.

Demanded Ingenious Decorating.



The list of dates given with the article entitled "Auto Shows Are Coming" in The Review for January 1 showed the first three months of the year to be a season busy with automobile exhibits in all parts of the country and consequently full of opportunities for florists to extend their trade. The various suggestions given as to how this could be done, both in connection with the show itself and in appealing through window displays to the crowds that would throng each particular city during its show week, were acted upon by florists in a number of the cities with excellent results.

The order for decorating the exhibition hall is a desirable one and the competition for it is keen, since, calling for the exercise of great ingenuity in solving large problems, it brings a large money return and good publicity for the florist. In Buffalo various plans were submitted to the Automobile Dealers' Association in competition for the order to decorate the Seventy-fourth Regiment Armory for the automobile show which was held there February 28 to March 6. The plan of Albert Reichert was finally selected, with results which are here described and illustrated.

Plants Played Prominent Part in Buffalo's Automobile Show.

The entire ceiling of the main auditorium was one solid mass of southern smilax from Alabama; this was hung on a wire network. The effect was distinctly pleasing, since the smilax hid the ceiling and tended to reduce the effect of the great height of the arched roof otherwise visible. From the center of the smilax canopy hung an enormous basket, which was twenty-two feet in diameter at the top and tapered to eight feet at the bottom. The basket was decorated with beautiful wisteria blooms and from it eighteen powerful electric lights, which were surrounded by a rotating color scheme operated by a motor, flashed rainbow colors incessantly. White and gold bunting was used to cover all four sides of the auditorium. At regular intervals along the rails of the balcony were birch-bark flower boxes seven feet long, filled with beautiful cibotium ferns and fancy varieties of crotons and dracænas. Stately palms and ferns were ranged along on the floor beneath the balcony.

General View of Buffalo Automobile Show Decoration by Albert Reichert.

One of the accompanying illustrations shows the main entrance, or grand court, from which people passed into the auditorium. This court was prettily ornamented with more birch-bark flower boxes, with a few blooming plants added to give a touch of color to the rich greenery.

Fireproofed Foliage.

The other illustration shows the main auditorium. The exhibition space was divided into eight oblong areas, each of which had six columns of latticework trimmed with smilax. These columns were ten and one-half feet high and supported boxes containing a wide variety of ferns, ranging from the Boston fern to various Australian sorts. Suspended electric lights of high power showed the auditorium decorations to full advantage.

An improvised dining room was screened off with smilax and foliage. Plants and flowers of every description were arranged in baskets at each of the separate booths.

As one precaution against the possible destruction of the valuable exhibits by fire, all of the smilax and other greens used in the decoration were treated with a fireproofing dressing, which, however, did not affect their appearance.

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS OFF.

The removal of restrictions on tourist travel to Europe is greatly increasing the number who are making the ocean trip. The military control at the British passport bureau in New York has been abolished and now there is no longer need of tourists giving five days notice, but they may have their passports viséd at the consulate in a few minutes. Other restrictions have been dropped, with the result that tourist travel has been greatly accelerated.

All the berths on vessels leaving New York are taken long beforehand and there is in addition a waiting list to take advantage of last-minute cancellations. The hotels in London and Paris are reported to be so crowded that reservations must be cabled from this side if one does not wish to walk the streets after he arrives there.

At the present time the New York florists who cater to such trade are enjoying good business in steamer orders, which seem to grow constantly. Of course, it is not back at the old pre-war level, but with the resumption of tourist travel as of yore and renewal of florists' efforts to develop steamer business, this branch of trade gives indication of climbing to a high mark this coming season.

DINNER-DANCE DECORATION.

Decorations for those who dine may be thought of as intensive decorations; decorations for those who dance, as extensive. In one case, the people are sitting down and their attention is focused mainly on that part of the table in front of them. In the other, they are either moving around or sitting where their gaze may wander over large wall spaces. In the first instance, the individual flowers are likely to be scrutinized; in the second, the mass effects will make a more general impression on the observer's mind. The room in which the dinner is given may be lighted entirely from the table itself, thus increasing the prominence of the table decorations, while the ballroom is almost certain to be lighted from the walls or ceiling, or both, thereby spreading the attention over all the interior.

Decorating for a dinner-dance combines the two problems. An interesting joint solution of them is illustrated on the following page. These decorations Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, Cal., designed and executed for the dinner-dance given March 1 by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Canfield, of Chicago, in the palm room of the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena. The tastefully arranged centerpieces of daffodils, rainbow freesias, tulips, snowdrops, ranunculuses and anemones, with adiantum, gave each table distinct attractiveness, especially when the delicate flowers and greenery were seen by candle-light. From the dancers' point of view, the general appearance was that of a garden, an appearance which was strengthened by the changing lighting effects, from sunset glow to twilight and starry night.

In the center of the room stood a blooming peach tree, with a spread of twenty-five feet; its base was surrounded by ferns. On all four sides of the room were specially constructed walls seven feet high, covered with rose

WHAT I LEARNED ONE SUNDAY RIDING DOWN HILL

The Sunday after that last snow, I was prowling around in the garret, looking for something or other for my wife, when what should I run against but my old sled.

The little old red and blue sled that Dad gave me over thirty years ago.

Say, do you know what happened next?
In fifteen minutes that sled, and a pair of rubber boots with me inside of them, was scooting lickety-brindle down Deacon Hadden's big hill, just as he was coming home from church.

The Deacon waited for me to come puffing and blowing back up the hill and kind o' took me to task for "a man of my age doing so unseemly a thing on the Sabbath day."
Hold on, Deacon, says I, don't you go and spoil the most fun I've had since Carlo was a pup, by poking any of your fire-and-brimstone Sabbath day stuff at me.

Furthermore, I've got a more important matter to talk to you about.
See that old sled? Recognize it?
You don't? Well, that's the very sled you made for me over thirty years ago last Xmas.
I'll bet there are ten more of them made that same year, that are hanging up in garrets or wood sheds right now.

Yes, and a lot more besides, standing on their runner ends, waiting for tomorrow to come so they and their little owners can go whooping and hollering down this very hill.

Sleds that their Dad used to have when they were boys.
Sleds that you made, Deacon.
You sure did know how to make sleds.

Well," says he, "whatever I build in my life, I try to BUILD TO LAST, whether it's building sleds, or building the sled business.

Reckon it's a pretty safe way.
Say, George, you've made me gol darn pleased, saying what you said about them old sleds of mine. Seems like I ain't been so dog-gone happy in many a day."

That night, when toasting my shins before the open fire, got to thinkin' about us florists and wondering how many of us are building our business the way the old Deacon built his?

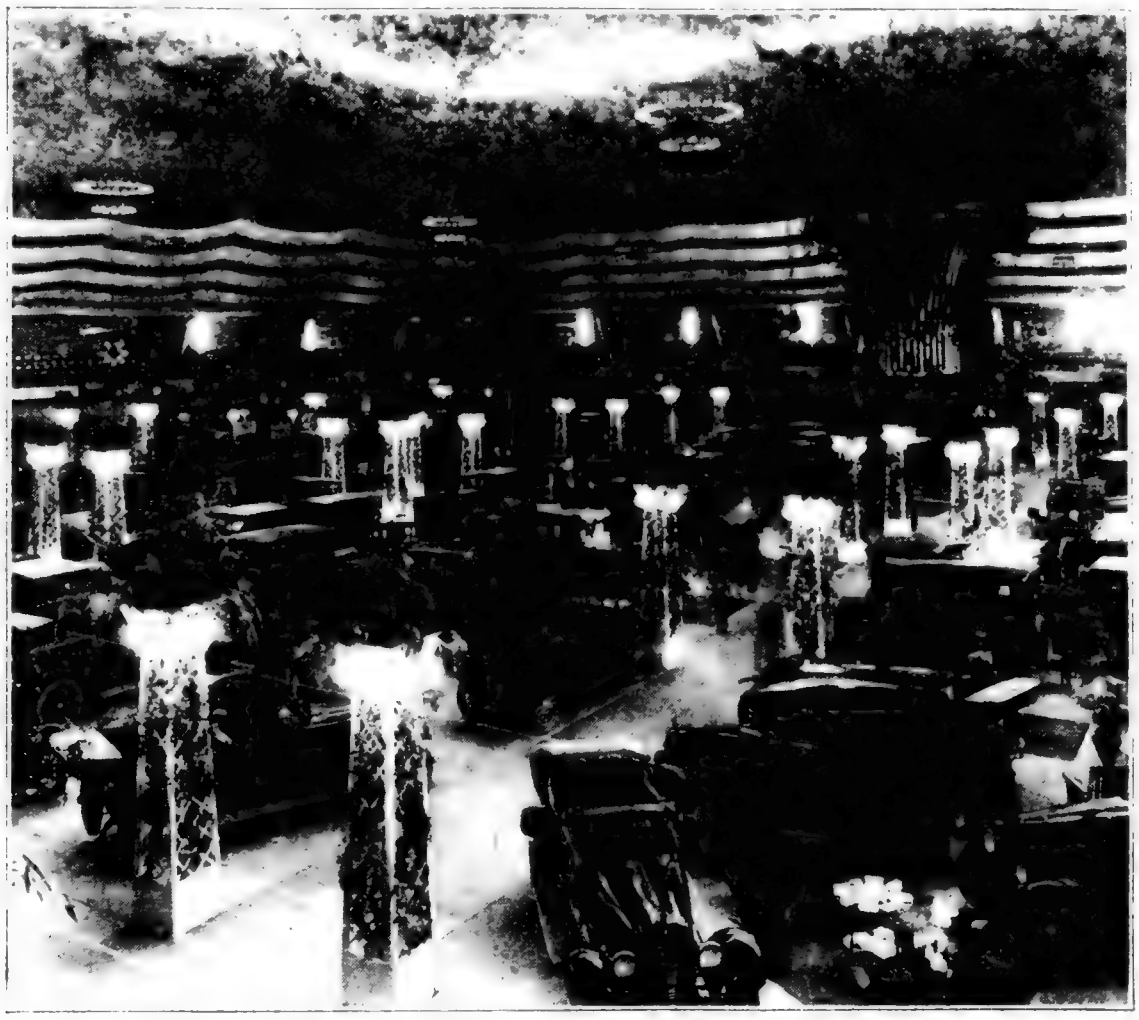
WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

BUFFALO'S BIG AUTO SHOW.

Demanded Ingenious Decorating.



The list of dates given with the article entitled "Auto Shows Are Coming" in The Review for January 1 showed the first three months of the year to be a season busy with automobile exhibits in all parts of the country and consequently full of opportunities for florists to extend their trade. The various suggestions given as to how this could be done, both in connection with the show itself and in appealing through window displays to the crowds that would throng each particular city during its show week, were acted upon by florists in a number of the cities with excellent results.

The order for decorating the exhibition hall is a desirable one and the competition for it is keen, since, calling for the exercise of great ingenuity in solving large problems, it brings a large money return and good publicity for the florist. In Buffalo various plans were submitted to the Automobile Dealers' Association in competition for the order to decorate the Seventy-fourth Regiment Armory for the automobile show which was held there February 28 to March 6. The plan of Albert Reichert was finally selected, with results which are here described and illustrated.

Plants Played Prominent Part in Buffalo's Automobile Show.

The entire ceiling of the main auditorium was one solid mass of southern smilax from Alabama; this was hung on a wire network. The effect was distinctly pleasing, since the smilax hid the ceiling and tended to reduce the effect of the great height of the arched roof otherwise visible. From the center of the smilax canopy hung an enormous basket, which was twenty-two feet in diameter at the top and tapered to eight feet at the bottom. The basket was decorated with beautiful wisteria blooms and from it eighteen powerful electric lights, which were surrounded by a rotating color scheme operated by a motor, flashed rainbow colors incessantly. White and gold bunting was used to cover all four sides of the auditorium. At regular intervals along the rails of the balcony were birch-bark flower boxes seven feet long, filled with beautiful cibotium ferns and fancy varieties of crotons and draceænas. Stately palms and ferns were ranged along on the floor beneath the balcony.

General View of Buffalo Automobile Show Decoration by Albert Reichert.

One of the accompanying illustrations shows the main entrance, or grand court, from which people passed into the auditorium. This court was prettily ornamented with more birch-bark flower boxes, with a few blooming plants added to give a touch of color to the rich greenery.

Fireproofed Foliage.

The other illustration shows the main auditorium. The exhibition space was divided into eight oblong areas, each of which had six columns of latticework trimmed with smilax. These columns were ten and one-half feet high and supported boxes containing a wide variety of ferns, ranging from the Boston fern to various Australian sorts. Suspended electric lights of high power showed the auditorium decorations to full advantage.

An improvised dining room was screened off with smilax and foliage. Plants and flowers of every description were arranged in baskets at each of the separate booths.

As one precaution against the possible destruction of the valuable exhibits by fire, all of the smilax and other greens used in the decoration were treated with a fireproofing dressing, which, however, did not affect their appearance.

TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS OFF.

The removal of restrictions on tourist travel to Europe is greatly increasing the number who are making the ocean trip. The military control at the British passport bureau in New York has been abolished and now there is no longer need of tourists giving five days notice, but they may have their passports viséd at the consulate in a few minutes. Other restrictions have been dropped, with the result that tourist travel has been greatly accelerated.

All the berths on vessels leaving New York are taken long beforehand and there is in addition a waiting list to take advantage of last-minute cancellations. The hotels in London and Paris are reported to be so crowded that reservations must be cabled from this side if one does not wish to walk the streets after he arrives there.

At the present time the New York florists who cater to such trade are enjoying good business in steamer orders, which seem to grow constantly. Of course, it is not back at the old pre-war level, but with the resumption of tourist travel as of yore and renewal of florists' efforts to develop steamer business, this branch of trade gives indication of climbing to a high mark this coming season.

DINNER-DANCE DECORATION.

Decorations for those who dine may be thought of as intensive decorations; decorations for those who dance, as extensive. In one case, the people are sitting down and their attention is focused mainly on that part of the table in front of them. In the other, they are either moving around or sitting where their gaze may wander over large wall spaces. In the first instance, the individual flowers are likely to be scrutinized; in the second, the mass effects will make a more general impression on the observer's mind. The room in which the dinner is given may be lighted entirely from the table itself, thus increasing the prominence of the table decorations, while the ballroom is almost certain to be lighted from the walls or ceiling, or both, thereby spreading the attention over all the interior.

LIGHTING THE CORNER WINDOW.

Presents Particular Problems.

In recent issues of The Review have appeared articles on show window lighting which detailed how the retail florist might improve his displays by attention to the light falling upon them. These suggestions took account of the general problems of lighting windows. The florist who has a corner store is faced by somewhat different conditions.

Standing before a window open only on one side, you will, if the lamps are correctly placed, be able to view the display without annoyance from exposed light sources. But if you could knock a hole in one of the side walls and view the display through the opening, the probabilities are that ample reason would be found for complaining of glare.

It is evident that the correct lighting of the corner window open on two sides presents problems beyond those met with in illuminating the window open only to the front. In both instances the fundamental requirements are the same; the light must be on the goods rather than in the eyes of the observer. The problem in connection with lighting the corner window is to direct the light upon the goods without permitting it at the same time to strike the eyes of the observer or to occasion glare because of high reflecting surfaces. Any florist who will take careful thought upon the question can easily find his way to meet those requirements.

Requisites of Good Illumination.

Let us start by defining the requisites of good window illumination, having in mind particularly the points arising in connection with the corner window with two glassed sides. They are as follows:

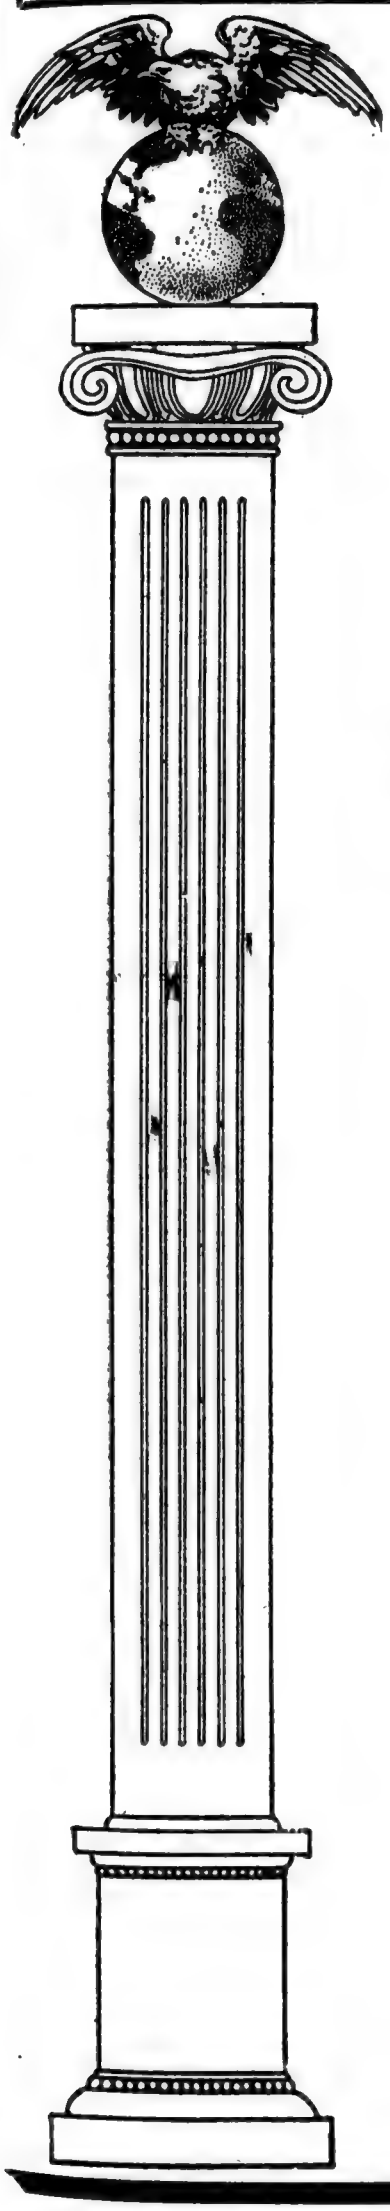
1. What we must aim for in effect is a bright square of light falling upon the display plane of the window, and within which merchandise will be clearly defined without too great a blank or waste above or on each side.

2. The brightness of the illumination should depend rather upon a thorough utilization of the light than upon a prodigal use of light.

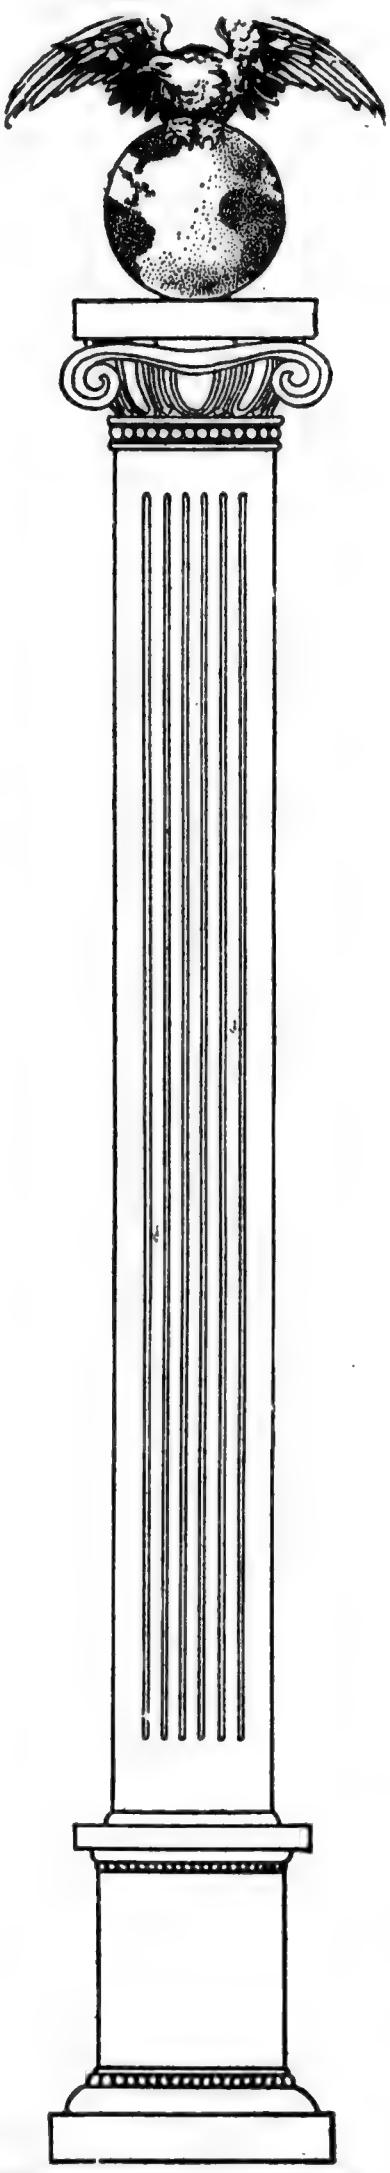
3. The light must not be directed into the eyes of observers nor spilled upon the pavements.

4. The light sources must be concealed from the view of the observer.

Now, it is evident that whatever difficulty arises in connection with the correct illuminating of the corner window over that of any other window will occur in accomplishing the conditions described by items three and four. That is due, of course, to the fact that the display is viewed from two vantage points at right angles one to the other.



Visualizing the Problem.



Imagine, for illustration, a square window having but one glass side. The lamps are, of course, in the upper portion of the window, above the glass. They are concealed from the observer and there is no possibility of the observer standing in front of such a window experiencing the annoyance of glare. But, as suggested earlier, if the observer might step around to the side of the window and view it through a hole knocked in the wall, there would be glare a-plenty and a view of the light sources themselves, too. The reason is obvious. When the observer stands before the glass in front of the window, the direction of vision corresponds to the direction in which the light travels from its source to the goods. But when the observer steps around to the side of such a window and views it through a hole in the wall, the direction of vision is across that of the line of light travel. Also, if the observer's position be far enough around to the side, the line of vision then is almost directly into the light sources.

so that one faces one window and one faces the other window. Now, if all the light be directed from a source above one window it should then be evident that the lighting of the object which faces the opposite window will not be satisfactory. Half at least of that object will be in strong shadow. Each half of the display demands its own supply of light from a source or sources located with special reference to its needs. Only so is it possible to adequately illuminate the corner window. But when that is done there is, then, every assurance that an observer standing before either window will be annoyed by the lights designed to illuminate the display which faces the other window. Nevertheless, just that must be done if the display is to be satisfactorily illuminated. So it should be evident that the remedy is to be found in devising ways and means for shielding the light sources from the gaze of the observer rather than in dispensing with this or that source of light supply.

Dividing the Problem.

The best plan, therefore, is to divide the problem under two heads. That is to say, first, decide the location of light sources so as to supply adequate illumination to both halves of the display. Then devise means for shielding those sources from the gaze of the observer. The best method will be to make a diagram of your window and llocate the light sources where you think they should be. You may decide that it will be necessary to install a row of lights in a trough beneath each window. Put them in. They can be shielded from view just as readily as the overhead lights.

Where the angle from which the observer gets a view of the lamps is not too flat it frequently is only necessary to employ deep reflectors to prevent the lamps from being seen by all except those who ignore the display in order to stare at the lamps. Those problems which cannot be solved by use of deep reflectors usually can be successfully handled by use of baffle plates.

Use of Baffle Plates.

For our purposes of definition we may say that baffle plates are of two types, single and in series. The single baffle plate consists simply of a shield of metal or other material, of a size and shape admitting of its being so placed as to obstruct a direct view of the lamps. Baffle plates in series are placed picket-fence fashion before a row of lights, their success as an obstruction to a direct view of the lamps depending upon the distance apart of the plates, as well as the width of the plates. Anyone who is familiar with the construction of a lattice shutter will readily grasp the idea of the baffle plates in series.

The baffle plates should be painted the same color as the woodwork and finished in the same manner if possible. So treated, their presence will hardly be noted by the ordinary observer interested in looking at the display. And a little ingenuity in shaping and placing the plates will go far toward solving the problem arising in connection with the lighting of the corner window.

Types of Reflectors.

Having an understanding of the fundamentals, it is simply a matter of ingenuity and common sense to arrange the lighting correctly. The variety of reflectors is ample for all requirements. Broadly speaking, there are three general types of reflectors equal to solving the utilization requirements of any display window. They are cut at various angles and apply as follows: (1) For high windows of somewhat shallow depth, reflectors cut at an angle of 15 degrees direct the light from the lamp sharply downward, brightly illuminating the foreground of the display without spilling any of the light on the side wall. However, they permit enough light to reach the background to illuminate a display of average height. This type also is suitable for windows which are low and not too deep. But this reflector is not intended to direct the light to any great length toward the rear of the window. (2) The 30-degree reflector, on the other hand, is the proper one for either high or low windows of considerable depth. This type may be obtained in a variety of forms so that the background can be illuminated to almost any degree of intensity desired. They also serve to cut off the light at any desired point above the line of trim. (3) The 45-degree reflector is best for use in deep windows; it throws the light well back and to a considerable height up on the background. Frequently it is necessary to make use of all three types of reflectors in illuminating the window, combining them according to the requirements.

you are the proprietor. Whatever station you occupy, however humble your position, remember that, as a representative, the closer you come in contact with customers the surer you are to succeed. You should act the proprietor—be the proprietor, and serve those whom you are called on to serve, as he himself would serve them.

Business today revolves around the customer and the character and quality of the service rendered to the customer regulate the success of the business. This is true in all lines, wherever there is something to sell. It depends on the service which the business itself or the goods sold yield, whether the customer becomes an enthusiastic advertiser for the goods you sell, or is forever condemning the firm and its wares.

Someone has asked, "What constitutes good service?" Taking the retail florist's efforts for example, it means selling good quality stock, representing the goods to the prospect exactly as they are, so that the buyer will not have a wrong idea of what he is getting and expect too much. Especially is this true of the lower-priced flowers and it frequently leads to an unfortunate misunderstanding. Salesmen, in their zeal to close a sale, will sometimes exaggerate the value or the quality, with the outcome that the customer is disappointed and condemns the store.

But if certain common-sense rules are observed, then you may almost say that you are on the right track. Here are some fine points of success in the retail florists' business:

Appearance and stability.
Aggressiveness and progressiveness.
Forcefulness and carefulness.
Honesty and modesty.

It depends a great deal on how we look at our daily work as to how to perform it.

If we understand that besides making a living we are building a character, then we have made a great step forward.

getting odd jobs done about the store that has worked out most satisfactorily. Formerly, as he went about the store, he would notice little odd jobs that should be attended to, little things the members of the sales force should do when not engaged with anything more important. But often, if all the clerks were busy at the time, such a job would slip his memory. Consequently it was not done when it should have been, and as this manager could not spend all his time about the store, he was not always at hand when these little jobs might have been attended to. Now he has no more trouble. He has a box, which is divided into two compartments, fastened to the doorsill just outside the office door, and as he goes about the store he makes a note on a card of anything he finds that should be attended to. He drops the cards into one of the compartments of the box, and the clerks have been instructed to watch this box for things the manager wants done whenever they have a little time to spare.

A person who has a little time on his hands takes a card from the box. When he has completed the task he signs his name to the card and returns it to the box, depositing it in the other compartment.

Through this plan this manager gets the odd jobs done without taxing his memory with them; neither does he

Messrs. Ryan & Powers,
30 Center Street, Waterbury, Conn.

Gentlemen:

On February 2nd we sent you an order for flowers to be delivered in your city, value $15.00, leaving the selection to your good taste and judgment. The customer called on us today and was so well pleased with the way the commission was handled that he placed another order for flowers, of the same value, to be delivered tomorrow, February 14th, which we are enclosing herewith. Kindly take just as good care of this order, and oblige, Yours very truly, have to be on hand at the moment a clerk is at liberty in order to have it done. He is free to devote his time and attention to more important matters.

By having each one sign the card when he has completed a job, he can tell just which members of the force are most inclined to coöperate with the management, for there are always some who are inclined to "lay down on the job" if the boss isn't watching, letting the more willing ones do the work.

Those on the staff of this store are unconscious of the part this little system plays in their promotion, yet the manager is rather inclined to favor those who apparently find time to get more of these jobs done than the others and still keep their sales records up to the mark. The jobs are not always the most desirable, of course, and if one is inclined to be a shirker he will keep busy at some other trifling thing until others have done all the manager's special tasks.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Electros Going Up.

There has been a good demand for the new Easter and Mothers' day newspaper electrotypes illustrated in the January issue of the Journal of the S. A. F. Their use will link up well with the advertisements for these days appearing in the magazines. The electrotypes are designed so that a business card or other matter can be added to them by the newspaper compositors without injuring the general effect. Florists who have not availed themselves of the various electrotypes of the promotion bureau should send in their orders to the secretary without delay, as April 1 the electrotype founders will adopt a new scale of prices, due to the high rate of wages they are now called upon to pay. These prices will be in the neighborhood of 100 per cent in advance of the prices we are now paying, as we are buying upon a contract placed long ago which has allowed our prices to remain unchanged despite the fact that the foundry quotations have advanced within the last year.

Florists are also reminded that our series No. 2 lantern slides contains a slide for Easter. All who use the moving picture houses for their local advertising should have this series. Series No. 1 contains a slide for Mothers' day. All slides are in colors and there is room on each for a 3-line imprint, which we furnish.

stallation of billboard signs. Orders for several of these signs have been received recently and shipments are made from the factory as fast as the orders are received. Hundreds of florists have locations upon their establishments which would suit a billboard installation admirably. The cost of a sign, $50, should not stand in the way of an installation. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," exerts a tremendous power and when used in this form is of great advantage to the publicity campaign.

We are still waiting to hear from those florists who have not yet subscribed to the campaign fund. Their apathy is hard to understand. A movement destined to put money in their pockets, and already doing it, is not being supported by them. It is no lottery. It is an investment and good returns must surely result. One of our enthusiasts recently said, "Through this campaign the florists are doing what they should have done years ago, what other producers have been doing and are still doing—advertising their products. Some concerns are advertising for a market for their products before they build the establishments to manufacture them. The florists have

GENERATING ENTHUSIASM.

Edward Bulwer once said that the man who is capable of generating enthusiasm can't be whipped. This is being ably typified by our past-president, J. Fred Ammann, in his endeavor to do things that will benefit every grower in the United States and Canada and eventually help everyone connected with flowers and their development and sale.

Our publicity campaign gave Fred Ammann the inspiration; he saw the way we were receiving our funds for the campaign and saw also the future possibilities in the industry, if given proper support. Perhaps the first suggestion he received came from studying some of the advertising problems that confronted other businesses and the benefits which they enjoyed by using proper methods and meeting their obligations in a businesslike way. He was keen and ever alert to our shortcomings, and in taking note of the failings came to the conclusion that if the grower was to receive higher prices for his product, one of the first things to be done was to do enough advertising in a national way and back it up by the retailers in a local way. This would give us the right start and everybody affiliating himself with his own group would benefit greatly by this idea.

Here is a man who by past experience saw the possibilities of the future and is endeavoring to give the best that is in him for an object that will greatly benefit everybody that joins hands in the movement and who will eventually organize growers in every locality into local growers' associations wherever possible. The success of the plan is already assured.

Fred Ammann is the man to generate enthusiasm and, as Bulwer said, can't be whipped. He is made of the material we have been waiting for and his enthusiasm will help cure many of the ills

Flower Growers' Association—from which the big things in connection with flowers will emanate eventually. Those of us who have worked with him have the utmost confidence in him and his plan, and whenever the call comes to meet him and join in the organization, by all means, go. It will be the most profitable as well as the most instructive talk you can listen to. This is one of the big things that have been incidental to the publicity campaign.

Now comes another. How often and how pleasing it is to see and hear the many nice things which come from florists individually, as well as from clubs and organizations, in the generous welcomes to those who have been privileged to go about since the publicity movement started! It has opened a narrow channel into a wide stream, into which everyone can sail, all bent on a big mission, that of helping each one's neighbor, and in return getting twice as much as he puts in, thus meriting his own reward.

Now, to those who are following the results of our publicity campaign, there is little to be said; but to those who still feel that the campaign is unnecessary, the words of Oliver Wendell Holmes will suffice: "Success is the result of a mental attitude, and the right mental attitude will bring success in everything you undertake."

Your publicity campaign has the right mental attitude, but it needs your financial as well as moral support, and our efforts will be crowned when the florists generally join in the movement.

The Market.

During the last week the wholesale market has been in splendid condition in regard to the supply of cut flowers. Everything seasonable was obtainable. Since Lent began there has been an extra production of cut flowers, a slump in sales and a big downfall in prices. Social events of all kinds are few during Lent, especially this year, according to the leading retailers in the west end, but a revival in these events is expected after Easter. The demand for flowers for birthdays, for sick at the hospitals and for funerals has been excellent all through the year.

There are a great many fine roses coming in daily and only the extra fancy long Premier, Russell, Ophelia and Milady bring anything like top prices. In other grades the prices are below normal.

The same condition prevails as regards carnations. The increasing supply during the week brought fancy stock down as low as $6 per hundred, while in the lower grades the price was low in large lots.

Sweet peas almost became a glut on the market for the first time this year. The quality of the stock is extra fancy and the best were down as low as $3 per hundred, with short-stemmed stock at 50 and 75 cents per hundred, and all moved fairly well.

The supply of bulbous stock was large all week. There were extra fine Easter lilies, the first for some time, and fine callas. Tulips, Von Sions, jonquils, Paper Whites, Dutch hyacinths and good valley were more than the trade could consume any one day. The supply of daisies, mignonette, calendulas and freesias is large. There is always a heavy demand for greens in this market,

Club Meeting.

The March meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club, which was held Thursday afternoon, March 11, on the second floor of the store of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., was much better attended than was expected. The attendance numbered forty, including several lady members. While the men enjoyed their usual good cigars, the ladies were treated to candy.

President Hummert opened the meeting at 2 o'clock, with all the officers present. After the opening proceedings were disposed of, the chair called for reports of the various committees. Chairman Bourdet, of the publicity committee, in a lengthy report showed the good work his committee was doing and the results of the work, which were pleasing to all. H. C. Irish, superintendent of floriculture at the coming state fair, to be held at Sedalia, reported that from last reports the state board of horticulture had turned down the list of prizes submitted by him, which amounted to over $600, and had allowed only $175 in all. He said that it was now up to the Missouri State Florists' Association to apply for an increase.

upon the minutes of the meeting and a copy sent to the bereaved family.

An invitation from Schaeffer & Steitz, of Vandervoort's floral department, to hold the club's April meeting in Vandervoort's new auditorium was accepted and turned over to the trustees for action.

The committee on the applications of George Kuehner, Joseph Krager, Joseph Braun and Peter Pfunder reported favorably and their election followed. Applications for membership presented by George S. Walters, E. R. Wallace and T. Karmmer were placed in the hands of a committee consisting of H. Kingsley, W. C. Smith and Mrs. McNeil.

The amendment to change article 3, section 4, of the by-laws was read for the second time and adopted. As several changes had been made in the by-laws, a discussion arose as to the payment of dues, which resulted in a committee being appointed to reprint them and add to them all new amendments and a roster of the members of the club. The committee appointed was H. C. Irish, F. J. Fillmore, W. C. Smith and the secretary.

one more month to pay their dues or be dropped from the rolls of membership. The members approved the action of the officers in offering $50 for special prizes at the coming spring flower show. A rising vote of thanks was given the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. for the afternoon's entertainment. W. A. Rowe then started a discussion on how to bring the florists' profession and the amount invested in our business more fully before the public. In this J. F. Ammann, L. Jules Bourdet, H. C. Irish, N. Kingsley and F. J. Fillmore took an active part. The discussion will be taken up again at the next meeting.

The question box, too, brought out several good discussions, after which the meeting adjourned.

The next meeting will be held Thursday afternoon, April 8.

The St. Louis Retail Florists' Association held its meeting at Mission Inn, March 8, but, as usual, the meeting was poorly attended. The election of officers resulted in all the old officers being retained for another year. During the evening publicity, Easter prospects and high prices on cut stock since the first of the year were discussed. The proceedings were quite interesting and those who were present say that more again, but as yet is not active in business. He will, however, be in harness for the Easter rush.

Edward Buechel, of the Riessen Floral Co., has been confined to his bed for the last nine weeks. At last reports he was quite sick.

The Acme Flower Shop furnished several large decorations for new shop openings in the new Arcade building, in which the firm is located, and reports satisfactory business since the opening.

Counter trade is booming with the St. Louis Seed Co., the American Seed Co. and the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., with good prospects for a heavy season's business.

J. F. Ammann and H. Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill.; Gust Grossart and W. E. Ogle, of Belleville, Ill.; M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill.; George Madsen, of Alton, Ill., and Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., were visitors March 11 in the wholesale district and attended the club meeting in the afternoon.

Charles Hahn, manager of the east side branch of Grimm & Gorly, reports that trade has kept up well so far during Lent.

The Pieper Floral Co., the Bentzen Floral Co. and Mullanphy, Florists, on North Grand avenue, report good steady trade and are enthusiastic regarding Easter prospects.

A visit to several west end stores during the week found them all busy. At the store of H. Young & Son, on Maryland street, Mrs. Young reported that her son Raymond is now connected with one of the leading banks on the east side. I also noticed some fine orchids grown by Mr. Young in his conservatory. Miss M. Carroll's pretty place, on Euclid avenue, was filled with fine blooming plants and all hands were busy. At Joseph Witek's I was glad to greet Mr. Witek on his first week out since his spell of sickness. Everybody was busy, as usual. At F. H. Weber's I found the boss in good humor, with plenty of business before him, and Andrew Hoffmann, Jr., and Adolph Steidle busy executing a large batch of funeral work. At F. C. there were plenty of orders to work up, with the able assistance of Arthur Beyer. Mr. Weber is enthusiastic about publicity and also regarding Sunday closing, which he says many will adopt after Easter.

The Florists' Bowling League again had plenty of fun March 10, when the Carnations won the odd game from the Sweet Peas and the Roses defeated the Daisies. The Roses still have a lead coming more plentiful with the increased sunshine and the demand has been lessened by the decrease in sickness and deaths; consequently, the prices have been lower. Cut stock of all kinds has held up to holiday prices all winter, but it is scarcely likely that there will be any shortage the rest of this season. No doubt prices will be stiffer for Easter.

Various Notes.

William G. Haynes, opposite the Edson cemetery, is having many orders for funeral work. He states that he has had greatly increased sales of cut flowers for table use and other somewhat similar purposes recently and he attributes them to prohibition. He has been unsuccessful in his quest for geraniums, having had his checks sent back on several occasions.

James L. Kenney, of Central street, is using a large advertisement in the daily papers featuring potted plants, such as rubbers, ferns, begonias, etc. He is offering fine roses, sweet peas, carnations and marguerites and reports an excellent business.

Good Advice

Ship your flowers to us and you will never be disappointed with your returns.

We keep in close touch with the best buyers and are in a position to dispose of the better grades at top-notch prices.

You can depend on getting your returns promptly, too, when we handle your shipments.

Special opportunity for a couple of Good Rose Growers who are looking for best returns. Our present demand is greater than our supply.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

COLD weather has retarded calls for seeds.

PAPER for the fall catalogues is going to cost more than did that for the spring editions.

THE official roster of the H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga., is: President, H. G. Hastings; vice-president, H. W. Brown; secretary, R. F. Lyon; treasurer, W. F. Wootten.

CHARLES N. PAGE, formerly president of the Iowa Seed Co., ex-president of the American Seed Trade Association, has sold out his greenhouse interests at Denver and retired for a second time.

SOME of the factors that have tended to keep the price of timothy seed from soaring during the last two years to the same extent as that of red and alsike clover and alfalfa are the accumulation of stocks of timothy seed since the large crop of 1916, the increased demand for food crops and decreased demand for grass seeds and the failure of the export demand to meet the expectations of many concerns in the seed trade.

THOSE who are well posted on the bean growing industry say that a situation now exists in relation to the 1919 crop which has no counterpart in the history of the Turlock, Cal., district. Never before since they began growing the product there have the stocks in storage been reduced so low. A careful survey discloses that of the 1919 crop of the Lady Washingtons, the standard variety grown, there are only 1,000 sacks in the warehouses of the district—one large carload. Five thousand sacks of Blackeyes are being held by a San Francisco firm, but aside from this one lot there are only about 600 sacks—one small carload. Of the Mexican Reds there are only 600 sacks—one small carload—and of Teparies, 300 sacks. There are still some small holdings of 1918 and 1917 crops, but these are considered practically worthless.

CABBAGE SEED CROP DAMAGED.

The commercial cabbage seed crop in the Puget sound district has been severely damaged this winter by freezing before the plants had been covered. The total acreage reported harvested in this section in 1919 was 1,524 acres, and preparations were made for a similar acreage for harvest in 1920. Although some growers are reluctant to make definite statements as to the extent of the damage or possible number of acres they will be able to put out this season from the surviving plants, the indications are that about eighty-three per cent of the plants were destroyed and that only about 260 acres will be planted from the remaining seventeen per cent.

The cabbage plants for seed production on Long Island were buried in trenches and well prepared for the winter before hard freezing occurred and, although the winter has been a severe one, the plants are believed to be in good condition. The month of March is the most critical time in this section, however, and it is obviously impossible for growers to estimate the final dam-

WRONGLY WORDED WARNING.

Against Western Mail Order Firms.

A letter which may easily have unfortunate results for the trade was sent out February 3 to all the farm bureau county agents of New York state by M. T. Munn, assistant botanist of the New York agricultural experiment station, at Geneva, of which W. H. Jordan is director. In this letter, while it is rightly urged that the real evil of the untrustworthy mail order house which deals in seeds of poor and uncertain quality be called to the attention of buyers who otherwise might not be sufficiently discriminating, yet the vagueness of the terms employed would tend to prejudice such buyers against all mail order houses outside their own state. Attention has been called to this warning, as well as to ways in which such a letter can be misused, by W. F. Therkildson, formerly advertising and sales manager of the W. Atlee Burpee Co. and now manager of the agricultural division of the advertising agency of N. W. Ayer & Son.

Mr. Munn's letter to the county agents is as follows:

Last spring the county agent in each county rendered valuable service by warning farmers against purchasing seeds from certain mail order seed houses located in the middle west which offered inferior seeds for sale in this state. Again this season these houses and possibly one or two others are continuing this kind of deceptive business. They are quoting alluring prices and sending advertising samples to New York farmers. Their claims mean nothing and their samples are deceptive. They are doing business under the freedom of interstate commerce and are immune from the operation of New York state laws.

From the nature of the cases substantiated by analyses of the goods in our seed laboratory, we feel that every farmer should be warned against being taken in by such misrepresentations. No farmer should send outside the state for seeds unless he is dealing with an old house of undisputed reliability. We advise that the farm bureau agent be consulted before placing an order for seeds with any firm and Feeding Interstate Rivalries.

Mr. Therkildson received a circular from a New York state seedsman who inclosed a copy of Mr. Munn's letter, thus attempting to build up his own trade by arousing antagonism against all seed dealers outside of New York state, through the use of a letter written with a quite different object. It is just as unfortunate for a state official to exclude legitimate trade from his state by vague and misused warnings as to exclude it by an unduly severe quarantine, though his intentions may be of the best in each case.

In the following letter to Mr Munn, dated March 9, Mr. Therkildson called the state botanist's attention to the need of specific terms in such a warning:

There has just come to my attention one of your letters of February 3 addressed to farm bureau agents and county agents, in which you refer to the advertisements and claims of certain middle west mail order seed houses.

You are perfectly justified in sending out the advice you have, and no one knows it better than myself, for I was for many years advertising and sales manager of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., and also active in the affairs of the American Seed Trade Association.

However, the majority of the mail order houses in the middle west have the highest ideals and standards and, as two or three of these happen to be clients of N. W. Ayer & Son, we are naturally much interested in their protection and their rights. And I am writing you this letter to express my opinion that it would be wise for you to be specific in the names of the concerns.

Of course I know to whom you refer and I believe that most of the men in the seed business know to whom you refer, but the customers to whom the seedsmen must look for income are not familiar with the names of these concerns and consequently all seed houses outside of your state come into the same class. It is true that you qualify this in the last paragraph of your letter, but the tendency on the part of every mail order buyer, after reading your letter or being advised by the county agent, would be to distrust all such concerns unless specific names are mentioned. You can readily appreciate that this is manifestly unfair in the case of concerns which are doing a high-class, legitimate business.

This matter has also been brought to the attention of the officers of the American Seed Trade Association and of various other individuals who are in a position to see that the interests of reliable seed firms, in the middle west and elsewhere, receive proper protection.

CHECK AS SETTLEMENT.

A sale of seed corn furnished the basis of the suit of Frank vs. Frost, 174 Northwestern Reporter 911, decided by the Wisconsin Supreme court. The main point in dispute related to the legal effect of a check as a final adjustment of the transaction involved.

The plaintiff paid the defendant $110 as the price of seed corn to be delivered

Dreer's Famous American Asters

As usual, our Asters are American-grown, were carefully inspected when in bloom, and we feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality. For complete list, see our Wholesale Catalogue for 1920.

Astermums

This strain of Giant Comet Asters was first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and Chrysanthemum-like appearance created quite a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors.

White, Pink and Lavender, each 40 cents per trade packet; $2.00 per ounce.

Crego's Giant Comet Asters

Magnificent fluffy flowers, averaging over 5 inches across, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors of the highest quality.

King Asters

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.

Dreer's Late Branching Aster

Astermum Aster

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming. The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

		Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue.	A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White.	Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink.	An exquisite shade	.30	1.50

Lavender.	A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson.	Very rich	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed.	All the colors	.25	1.00

Dreer's "Peerless Pink" Aster

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink or Mary Semple. It has the same strong, sturdy habit of growth; comes into bloom a little earlier, bears freely almost globular flowers rarely under 4 inches across and frequently over 5 inches. The color is rich shell-pink, similar in shade but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

New Red Aster, "Sensation"

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit, about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

HENRY A. DREER, 714-716 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

to plaintiff on its proving to be at least ninety per cent good. The corn tendered failed to come up to the required test and there was some negotiation looking to the acceptance of it at a reduced price, but plaintiff never took possession of the corn, although it was left at a certain place for him.

The defendant, claiming that the matter had been adjusted under the negotiations referred to, sent the plaintiff a check for $44, bearing on its face the words, "For difference on seed corn and bags." The plaintiff retained the check for three months, without cashing it, and then offered to return it, demanding repayment of the full $110 paid by him in advance as the price of the corn to be delivered under the original contract. He then sued for the $110, and the Wisconsin Supreme court upholds his right to recover, as against a contention made by the defendant that retention of the check constituted a final settlement which could not afterwards be upset without mutual consent.

"Had the check been cashed," said the court, "and the money retained by plaintiff, there would have been force in the defendant's contention." S.

SOARING PRICE OF COWPEAS.

The present price at which cowpeas are being quoted by shippers and dealers represents an almost unheard-of valuation for this commodity.

The short crop of cowpeas in 1919, states the Market Reporter, of the Department of Agriculture, together with the small carry-over of the 1918 crop July 1, 1919, has resulted in a commercial supply this season which is little more than one-half that of last season. Although the production of cowpeas in 1919 was less than in 1918, the fact that the carry-over in seedsmen's hands July 1, 1919, was only 2,000,000 pounds, as compared with 9,800,000 July 1, 1918, doubtless is an equally important factor affecting the present commercial supply.

P. VOS & SON, P. O. Box 77 Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Taking these facts into consideration and granting that the law of supply and demand ordinarily controls prices, it might seem to some that an abnormally high price is inevitable. There is, however, another factor which logically should affect the price of cowpeas, and which should not be overlooked, namely, the supply of velvet beans available for seed purposes. It is true that velvet beans cannot be grown in many states where cowpeas are ordinarily grown, but it is also true that practically the entire acreage of velvet beans is to be found in those states having the largest acreage of cowpeas. In the latter area velvet beans bear practically the same relationship to the local system of farming as cowpeas.

Last spring the commercial supply of new-crop (1918 grown) cowpeas was not sufficient to supply the planting demand. Even with the large carry-over of old-crop cowpeas, most of which was sold for seed purposes, many farmers were unable to obtain cowpeas for planting, and the wholesale selling price advanced from $5.50 per hundred pounds in the middle of February, 1919, to $7.50 per hundred pounds the latter part of May. With reference to velvet beans, the commercial quantity of new-crop seed of good germination available last spring was negligible, and this commodity sold at around $8.50 per hundren pounds during the month of May, the highest price since velvet beans have been of commercial importance in the south.

The quality of the 1919 crop of velvet beans is good, and the commercial supply available for seed purposes this season is ample to meet all reasonable demands. At the usual rate of seeding, a given quantity of velvet beans has a planting capacity four times that of cowpeas. On this basis of the relative planting capacity of each, the combined commercial supply of cowpeas and velvet beans available for seed this year is about ten per cent larger than the commercial supply of these commodities last year. The ratio of the commercial supply of cowpeas to velvet beans, expressed in terms of the planting capacity of each at the usual rate of seeding, was, in 1918, 5 to 2 and in 1919, 10 to 3, while in 1920 it is about 3 to 5.

Seedsmen's average wholesale selling price for velvet beans February 28, 1920, was around $6 per hundred pounds for recleaned stock and for cowpeas about $11 per hundred pounds. This is about fifteen per cent higher for velvet beans and one hundred per cent higher for cowpeas than on the same date last year. Another comparison: On this date last year the average price of cowpeas was twenty per cent higher than that of velvet beans, while this year it is eighty-three per cent higher.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

F. W. Kelsey Nursery Co., New York, N. Y.—An illustrated folder, containing a special wholesale list of ornamental stock, both deciduous and evergreen. Seedlings and other small stock are included.

Farmer Seed & Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn.—An illustrated, 128-page catalogue. It is compactly printed and is comprehensive in both seed and nursery departments. Grains and other field seeds have special prominence in the book. The cover is printed in colors by the offset process.

Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.—An illustrated catalogue of "Star Brand" roses, cannas, perennials, shrubs, small fruits, miscellaneous plants, flower seeds, bulbs and garden requisites; a 52-page book of the unfailingly accurate and attractive "C. & J." type. The design on the front cover, showing a pink rose with the trade-mark star as a background, is both striking and tasteful. Perhaps it is scarcely necessary to add that roses and cannas are specialties.

Thomas J. Grey Co., Boston, Mass.—A well-printed catalogue; illustrated, 114 pages, in a neat black and white cover. Although seeds have first place in the book—first in order and in other respects—yet the plantsman's and nurseryman's lines are also well represented. Aquatics might be mentioned as a specialty. Notably large stocks of implements and supplies are listed. The first six pages are occupied by novelties and specialties in flower and vegetable seeds.

Allen, Sterling & Lothrop, Portland, Me.—"Sterling Quality" seeds, bulbs, roots, flowering and vegetable plants, implements and sundries; an illustrated, well-printed catalogue, in a decidedly tasteful gray-green cover. The lists of dairy and poultry supplies, and of tools and equipments for garden, farm and greenhouse, are particularly comprehensive; in fact, these classes of merchandise occupy about half of the total eighty pages in the book.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.—"Vick's Aster Book for Florists," a book of twenty good-sized pages, devoted entirely to asters. It is printed on enameled paper, is well illustrated and contains clear descriptions. "This," says the company, "is the age of the specialist. For many varieties of seed we contract with men who grow them better than we could. In asters we have specialized longer, introduced more varieties and grown more seed than any other seedsmen in America."

St. Joseph, Mo.—A 125-foot steel smokestack at the greenhouses of the Stuppy Floral Co., Ashland boulevard and Lovers Lane, was blown down March 4. Several sections of the establishment were wrecked and the damage to the stock is placed by Frank Stuppy, president of the company, at $15,000. About 1,100 rose plants and 900 palms were ruined by the cold, but by shutting off the connected houses about 80,000 other plants were saved.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

O. S. KLINDWORTH, 3032 Main street, Kansas City, Mo., is the successor to the Blue Valley Nursery Co.

THE California Nursery Co., of Niles, Cal., one of the largest nurseries in the state, has opened a depot in Oakland, Cal., and is extending its business into the metropolitan district of the bay section.

THE official roster of the Des Moines Nursery Co., Des Moines, Ia., is as follows: President and general manager, J. W. Hill; first vice-president, M. McFarlin; second vice-president, H. E. Teachout; secretary, Earl D. Needham; treasurer, D. L. Hill.

"WE are depending more every year on other forms of publicity supplementary to our catalogue, to increase sales among the class of prospective buyers who want stock but are not experienced enough to select their stock personally," states Ernest F. Coe, president of the Elm City Nursery Co., New Haven, Conn. And nurserymen everywhere are learning the sales power of printers' ink.

APPROXIMATELY 2,000,000 common barberry bushes were dug up and destroyed during 1919 in connection with the combined efforts of federal and state authorities to protect wheat against black stem rust, which can not survive unless it is able to spend one period in its life cycle on the leaves of the common barberry. For this work last year the federal government appropriated $150,000. The territory in which the fight was carried on comprises Colorado, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

CERTIFYING SALES.

By State or National Association.

The question, "Should the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association certify to sales made by its members?" really includes two questions: First, should any nurserymen's association certify the sales by its members? Second, should the state association be the body which certifies to such sales?

My answer to the first question would be in the affirmative, because by such certification we can most effectually combat the harm that has been done to the nursery business in general by the bad practices of a few unscrupulous men. These bad practices have thrown discredit on our trade and unless the nurserymen as a body clean up their house the government will do it for them. The public is certainly entitled to protection from some source and it is the duty of the government to furnish that protection wherever necessary.

Do not suppose that the nursery business has been singled out as specially in need of government control. The government has safeguarded the public from possible abuses in many other businesses. Banks are controlled for the safety of the depositors. Investment companies are under government supervision. Many professions and lines of business are required to take out licenses after passing rigid examinations. Among such are doctors, dentists, lawyers, insurance companies, architects, engineers and plumbers. Industries such as the packers, are rigidly inspected and then licensed for the benefit of the public.

Protection for the Purchaser.

Now the question arises as to what protection the purchaser is entitled to against possible abuses in the nursery business.

1.—He is entitled to the assurance that he is getting the variety of plant which he orders.

2.—He is entitled to be safeguarded against receiving plants that are diseased or infested with insect pests.

3.—He is entitled to receive plants which are furnished with sufficient roots and are handled with sufficient care to make them grow.

An address entitled, "Should the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association Certify the Sales Made by Members?" delivered by Alvin Nelson, of Chicago, at the convention of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association in Chicago.

PETERSON NURSERY
30 N. La Salle St. CHICAGO, ILL.

Certain states have passed laws intended to safeguard the purchaser in the particulars just mentioned, but the framers of those laws, in their eagerness to protect the public, have made them so drastic that nurserymen are unable to operate under them. It is believed, however, that, if the nurserymen in one of their own associations could furnish ample protection to the public, such drastic laws would not be made in the future; that those now on the statute books might be repealed, and, what is of greatest importance, that the confidence of the public would be strengthened and the planting of trees would greatly increase.

How shall we as nurserymen accomplish this? As the conditions are national in range and not local, it seems to me that it ought to be dealt with nationally and not locally. We are all members—or at least should be—of both our state association and our national association. I therefore believe that the state association ought not to enter this work, but that we ought to support heartily the movement for this purpose which is already being discussed in the national association.

Bonds and Sales Restrictions.

A suggestion has been made that the national association certify to the genuineness of every purchase from any of its members; to this I would add that it should certify that it will return the purchase price for any plant sold which is not true to name, or which is diseased in any way or has insufficient roots.

It might be objected that the association would be involving itself in a large financial obligation to so certify the sales of its members and I agree that it ought not to undertake this responsibility without previously having received a bond from each member, to make good any loss which may be incurred by the association on his business. If this is done, there ought not to be any great danger in making the experiment and certainly a national body could exploit by means of a publicity campaign this service to the public, in such a way that each member would receive full benefit from it. This can be done by the national body at far less expense than if each individual nurseryman attempted to do it for himself.

The objection has also been made that certifying to the genuineness of all sales would be a boon to the crooks in the nursery business at the expense of the honest nurserymen. This objection would be partly met by the bond which I suggest that the national body should require from each of its members to

It's time to think of what you will need in new Mums to recruit your collection, so as to cover the whole season in the various colors. These four new pink varieties will enable you to begin cutting pink as early as the other colors, and to cut continuously, which is important. Get a few of each variety early enough to take a cutting or two from each plant and reduce the first cost. We begin delivery early in March.

indemnify it against loss, but supervision should not end there. The officers of the association know full well who the crooks are and, as there are few of them, would be able to give them special supervision. If they continued to abuse the good name of the association, they could be dropped from membership. The mere dropping from membership, however, would not effect much if such outlaw concerns were able to buy stock from our members; so there would probably have to be an agreement, such as exists in many other trades, to sell stock at wholesale prices only to firms in good standing. This agreement, being clearly for the benefit of the public and not for the sake of profiteering, would surely be endorsed by our government. It is in line with the best practice in many other industries which have had to contend with similar conditions and it would thus make our industry thoroughly respected and put it on a firm business basis.

Should Be a National Reform.

I cannot think of any argument in favor of a state organization undertaking this service and there are many obvious reasons why it could not serve as well as a national organization. The object desired is to enforce square dealing and to assure the public that it will receive a square deal. In other words, we wish to reinstate all nurserymen in the good opinion of the public and it is no advantage to us to have all the nurserymen in our own state on the square if crooks from other states come in and by bad practices bring discredit upon the industry. We desire a nation-wide reform. It must be accomplished by a national association.

The whole object of the plan which I have suggested is to fix definitely the responsibility for certain acts on the right persons and it is readily admitted that this is a difficult thing to do. It may be that the whole scheme is impossible to carry out because of the difficulties involved; if so, some other plan must be devised. If no plan on these or similar lines can be found, we must fall back on government supervision. I would suggest that we do not wait until such supervision is thrust upon us, but instead devise a law which will accomplish the purpose of protecting the consumer and at the same time develop and strengthen the nursery industry.

Common sense tells us that the laws controlling other industries must have been drawn up by parties who knew all the details of the business to be controlled. For instance, laws on banking must have been drawn up by bankers, laws on insurance by insurance men, etc., and these industries have flourished more since such laws were passed than in the old days of wild-cat banking.

Grower to Consumer.

It matters little if we have to change our mode of doing business. If the business itself grows, we are sure to profit individually, even though we have to reconstruct our methods entirely. One plan that suggests itself is a law prohibiting the rehandling of fruit trees. There might be as many selling agencies as necessary for selling the trees to the ultimate consumer, but when the sale is made, the tree itself goes direct from the grower to the consumer. The consumer then knows whom to make responsible. This plan would involve advertising the name of the producer rather than the selling organization. There are many precedents for this and, from an advertising point of view, it has advantages. Practically all clothing is sold in this way. The names of various brands of clothing are advertised from one end of the country to the other and the stores selling those brands, although entirely independent of the manufacturer, still have the advantage of the advertising.

The point I wish to make is that if we have a problem we should study and solve it in one way or another and not wait to have a solution made by others. Nursery associations have for years had legislative committees. These committees, it seems to me, have been merely watchdogs for the purpose of opposing and modifying legislation, but it is now time for us to have a legislative committee which will propose constructive measures for the benefit, not only of the public, but of the nurserymen as well.

PARIS GREEN SUBSTITUTE.

Additional experience confirms the conclusion, reported last year by the bureau of entomology of the Department of Agriculture, that arsenate of lime may be used in all situations as a substitute for Paris green and that for pomaceous fruits—apples, pears and quinces—it may prove a satisfactory substitute for arsenate of lead when used with lime or fungicides containing lime. A less expensive substitute for nicotine sulphate also is being sought.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

The meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society Tuesday evening, March 9, was replete with interesting features which well repaid the unusually large number in attendance. An animated discussion resulted from the statement that an attempt had been reported to have the Rhode Island General Assembly withhold its annual financial assistance to the various horticultural and agricultural societies of the state. It was voted that the secretary of the society be instructed to communicate with the members of the general assembly from Newport county voicing the protest of the society against any restricting of such appropriations.

It was announced that the premium list for the summer show was about completed and would be sent out in a few days. An interesting address was made by John Hay, of Philadelphia, formerly of this city, which was well received.

The gardeners present were much interested in the exhibition of an Amorphophallus Rivieri, a central Asia plant which had been grown by Samuel Speers, gardener for William Brenton Greene. The plant, which is 5 years old, is blooming for the first time and many of those present had never before seen one of these curiosity plants in bloom.

Various Notes.

Thomas B. Galvin has transferred a lot of land with improvements at the corner of Walcott and Bateman avenues to Henry Cremin.

Because of the blizzard and gale Monday, March 8, it was impossible to travel the length of Bellevue avenue and several of the gardeners at the summer estates telephoned that they were snowbound. W. H. M.

This photograph was taken November 23, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Greenhouse Heating

FOR CARNATIONS IN CANADA.

Please tell me the proper number and arrangement of the pipes for a house 30x125 feet, with 3-foot concrete foundations and thirty-six inches of glass in the sides. I shall use hot water and want to give the house a temperature suitable for carnations. M. B.—Can.

The inquiry does not state the outside temperature for which the heating system must be planned, but, with an ordinary minimum outdoor temperature of 10 to 15 degrees below zero, it will be possible to maintain a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees in the house described by using five 2½-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns. One flow should be on each plate and the others on the middle and purlin posts. A coil of three returns should be on each side wall and under each of the three benches, or in the walks if solid beds are used.

With a well built house, it will be possible to keep up a temperature of at least 50 degrees even though the outside temperature may drop to 15 or 20 degrees below zero, by giving the fire a little extra attention.

I should recommend a boiler rated for at least 2,000 square feet of radiation and with eight square feet of grate.

FOR SUBZERO WEATHER.

I have a house 25x150 feet, with four feet of glass in the side walls and two feet of cement above the ground level. The east end is of glass. What size of hot water boiler is required to heat this house in our climate, which sometimes is 25 degrees below zero? I want to maintain a heat of 65 degrees in the first fifty feet and 52 degrees in the back of the house. The shed is at the north end of the house. Could you tell me the amount and the size of pipe required and the best layout for heating?

J. M. G.—Can.

It is stated that the front of the house is to be heated to 65 degrees and the back to 52 degrees. It is doubtful which end of the house is the front and which is the back, but we will consider the front to be that next to the boiler room.

To provide the temperature mentioned under the climatic conditions stated will require a large amount of radiation. If 50 and 60 degrees could be taken as a minimum, a considerable reduction might be made.

It is advisable to use a hot water boiler rated for 2,800 square feet of radiation, which will require a grate about 30x48 inches. The chimney should be fifteen inches in diameter and thirty to thirty-five feet in height.

For radiation use four 3-inch flow pipes, placing one on each plate and one upon each row of purlin posts, giving them a slight fall. There should be four 2-inch pipes in each of the four coils. This will give 52 degrees. For the additional 13 degrees in the north section, run a 3-inch flow under the ridge as far as the partition and connect it with four 2-inch returns under the middle bench and run them back to the north end of the house.

Of the other returns, place four upon each side wall and the others under the purlins. Unless the top of the heater

Uniform Heat for Flowers

Prize-winning stock—the kind which takes honors consistently year after year—is usually grown by the man who has spent a lifetime scientifically studying his work.

But even the most skillful veteran finds help in the convenience and dependability of the Morehead Back-to-Boiler System.

He knows that with this inexpensive equipment installed in his plant he can always be sure of a uniform growing temperature—that he will never again be bothered with a messy steam pump.

Easily attached to your present boiler room apparatus, the "Morehead" System

Eliminates Sluggish Circulation In Your Steam Lines

at once—and thereby gives you absolute control of temperature in your greenhouses the whole year 'round.

The condensation itself is immediately returned to the boilers as feed water while it is pure and hot—thus saving a large per cent of your fuel.

To get pictures and data which show how other florists are using the "Morehead" System to help grow prize-winning stock, simply write for your free copy of the latest Back-to-Boiler Book. Tell us your conditions and our engineers will advise you (without obligation) how to overcome your present difficulties.

ber of feet to where the first supply is below the level of the greenhouse floor, the returns, especially those on the walls, should be carried as high as possible.

USING TWO BOILERS.

I have two houses, one 22x120 feet and one 22x110 feet, running north and south. There is no gable on the north end, where the boiler house is. On the south end the glass is six feet from the ground. The east side has two feet and the west side three feet of glass above four feet from the floor. The ridge is thirteen feet high. I use a hot water system and have two boilers, one with a grate 24x36 inches and one with a grate 24x48 inches. They are connected and stand on the floor. The houses drop three or four feet from the south to the north end. The pipes run uphill to the south end and the returns from the south to the north end, as the north end is the lower. I should like to keep a heat of 55 degrees in zero weather, but so far I have not been successful.

How large should the smokestack be?

A 2½-inch main runs across both houses and from this I have six 2-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns and also two 1¼-inch flows and four 1¼-inch returns. The flows are two feet above the boiler, going up, and the returns are level with the boiler inlets. As the boilers have a 4-inch outlet and inlet, I used 2-inch pipe direct to and from the boilers.

My main return, 2½-inch, also runs across the houses, but is reduced to 2-inch at the boilers. All the pipes are hanging on the three rows of posts, because I have all solid beds. I have two return mains, one 2-inch and one 2½-inch. The returning water is too slow.

H. B.—Mo.

Although it is not stated, I infer that the houses are connected and that one house has two feet of glass in its east wall and the other has three feet in its west wall.

It is doubtful about the number of return mains. In one place the inquiry speaks of a 2½-inch return and in another it states that there are two return mains, one of which is 2-inch. If there is but one 2½-inch flow pipe for the two houses, this accounts in part for the difficulty; even one 2½-inch flow pipe for each house would not be sufficient. I should use at least 3-inch flows and should run one to each house. It would even be better to use 3½-inch or 4-inch flows, especially if it is a num-

Wilks Self-Feeding Hot Water Boiler

For Economy, Durability, Dependability

Install a WILKS and Forget Your Troubles

No night fireman required—as the magazine or coal chamber holds sufficient fuel to keep fire 10 to 12 hours without attention. Best made for a small greenhouse.

S. WILKS MFG. CO., So. Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 28th, 1920.
3523 Shields Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs: Received your boiler O. K. As for the boiler, it is all you claim for it and more. Would not trade it for six like the cast iron one I had before it. When it comes to keeping heat over night, it's right on the job. During our coldest weather here this winter (7 below) it kept the house at 55 degrees, and did it easy on slack and nut mixed.

Thanking you again for past favors, I remain,

Your truly,

pipes are taken off. The main returns should be of the same size.

For each house I should use three 2½-inch overhead flow pipes, running one below each purlin and the other below the ridge. If possible they should run downhill, with a slope of one foot in twenty feet. There should be at least seven 2-inch returns in each house; one more return in each house would be desirable if they are much exposed. While I do not like to use 1¼-inch pipe for houses over 100 feet in length, three 1¼-inch returns may be substituted for three 2-inch ones. It will be possible to carry two of the returns in each house on the sides of the beds or on the purlin posts.

It is a mistake to carry the return pipes on a level with the return inlets. It is preferable to sink the boiler so that it will be below the level of the returns, although when the flows are overhead and the returns are carried well up on the walls and purlin posts, a fairly good circulation can be secured.

The two small boilers are amply large enough to heat the houses to 50 degrees. These require a chimney fifteen inches in diameter and thirty-five feet high.

houses. Carnations are arriving in better condition, both as to keeping qualities and strength of stem. The color has improved as the result of several weeks of sunshine and local growers are supplying almost enough to stop outside buying of orders. The cut of orchids is still less than recent averages, but enough to fill all orders comfortably.

There has been a steady increase in the supply of lilies of the valley. Gardenias are still scarce and high. There are more than enough lilies in the local territory to care for the expected Easter demands, but it is doubtful if more than half of the stock will be blooming by that time. The brighter shades of tulips and hyacinths have been selling freely and it is these offerings which have done a great deal to keep potted stock among the sales leaders. The double tulips in pink and the singles in red have been used heavily in baskets. Mignonette has been another big seller. Several dealers have featured potted cinerarias recently to good effect. Jonquils are in large supply. These have sold more freely as cut flowers during the last fortnight. The Japanese growers are reported to have determined on the minimum prices which they will charge and there is some talk among the florists of taking similar action to protect themselves by deciding on what would be a fair price and ordering from California in case the local growers do not meet this figure. The local Japanese growers probably will supply about half of the crop and no trouble is anticipated with the other growers. P. T. C.

WHY?

A. H. HEWS & CO., INC

Cambridge, Mass.

Mention The Review when you write.

ATTENTION, MR. GROWER!

KOST SOIL PULVERIZER

WHY do you throw away your coal ashes, when by using them in your soil you grow better crops?

There are plant food elements in coal ashes; ashes also help to keep the soil sweet; there are elements in ashes that dissolve plant food elements in the soil otherwise dormant.

Ashes act as a solvent to the soil, keep the soil porous and fresh from stagnation.

Don't waste your clinkers and ashes, spread them on your land to grow better carnations in your fields; your asters also need good light soil.

The leading growers use their coal ashes. Max Grohman of North Tonawanda, N. Y., Begonia Lorraine, Cincinnati and Cyclamen specialist, once one of the leading growers for Thomas Rowland, Boston, Mass., uses all his ashes; Mr. Carl Grohman, grower to S. A. Anderson, Buffalo, N. Y., another famous grower, uses all his ashes; J. F. Anderson, Short Hills, N. J., prominent fern specialist, uses all his ashes in his fern soil; The Lansdale Mushroom Co., Lansdale, Pa., who supply all the leading hotels with cucumbers, melons, tomatoes and mushrooms, grind all their clinkers and ashes for their soil.

Now, Mr. Grower, get our pulverizer for clinkers and ashes. We have a grinder that we are proud of—it is "fool proof," it grinds up sods, clam-shells and soft limestone. It keeps two to three men busy shoveling in as fast as they can. Don't fail to spread all your ashes on your soil, for it helps the crops and acts as a solvent on other plant food elements in the soil.

Mr. Grower, why throw your money away, by not using your clinkers and coal ashes?

This pulverizer was designed and made to grind up the soil and sods, also fertilizers that come in bulk from the sheep ranches direct to the grower in carload lots. It can be used for many other purposes, and the grower will surely be benefited in many ways. The pulverizer has not only many uses, is a big labor saver and a money maker, but is also a better crop producer and a saver in fertilizers. By using up all your coal ashes and clinkers, this alone will save you a lot of money.

As production and conservation are the great roads to success, we would ask you, Mr. Grower, to write us by return mail about this very reasonably priced pulverizer. Price $150.00.

Guaranteed to do the work intended to do. Write us today—

The new executive committee is composed of the following: Mrs. Bessie Boston, of San Mateo; Mrs. Jesse Seal, of San Francisco; Pierson Burbrow, of Alameda, and T. A. Burns, of San Francisco. The association set September 2 to 4 for the annual show. It will be held, as usual, at the Palace hotel.

Weddings are not numerous at present, but A. O. Stein's shop had the decorating contract for an attractive home ceremony last week. The entire house was turned into a bower of pink and white fruit blossoms, with the altar of white brocade flanked on either side by masses of double peach blossoms. A horseshoe table, seating sixty-five persons, was decorated with variegated spring blossoms, carrying out the idea of the season in a simple but exceedingly attractive manner. The maid of honor carried a fan of Aaron Ward roses, while two bridesmaids carried fans of pink sweet peas and two carried similar fans decorated with lavender sweet peas. The bride's bouquet was a shower of white orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Copeland states that her shop on Sutter street is being kept busy these days with decorations for local clubs, etc. She also had a number of orders in connection with the recent funeral of Mrs. E. S. Hopkins.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have been more or less busy with funeral work in addition to their regular business. Large quantities of orchids, lilies of the valley, etc., were ordered here for both the Hopkins funeral and that of the late

Joseph's Grant avenue shop is getting ready for a big Easter season. Mr. Joseph says that bon voyage baskets are selling fast, as the traveling season is just beginning. These baskets are a well known specialty of the shop and sell at from $7.50 to $25 each. They contain seasonable fresh fruits, preserves, imported chocolates, candy and glazed fruits and are decorated in various artistic ways.

The trade learned with sincere regret of the death of Alfred Cuneo, who was connected with the Art Floral Co. as special decorator during the last year or two. Prior to that Mr. Cuneo was employed by Joseph's. He died early last week after an illness of several weeks. He is survived by his widow and one small daughter.

G. W. Phillips, formerly with the Hollywood Gardens, of Seattle, Wash., is now with the Art Floral Co., taking the late Mr. Cuneo's place.

The new store of Avansino Bros. opened at 257 Geary street March 3 and Mr. Avansino reports an excellent start. Associated with him in the business is "Bab" Pagano, formerly with Pelicano, Rossi & Co. The shop is attractively fitted up in a pale shade of gray. Generous windows allow good display facilities and an excellent stock of both cut and potted flowers has been put in.

George Duffy, after visiting in Honolulu for several weeks, is back at the Palace stand of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. Bert Harris, who was employed by that firm for the last year, has left his post at the Palace. Eugene Frediani has been transferred from the Palace stand to the Powell street store. DIETSCH

Character Greenhouse Materials

For nearly forty years this house has catered continuously to the Florists' Trade of America.

Jealous care of its good name and of the quality of its construction materials has made the trademark "DIETSCH" of equal rank with "STERLING" as a mark by which established worth may be recognized.

You might as well be protected by it, for Dietsch construction material costs no more than other good material.

the local trade for a number of years and her presence will be missed.

J. A. Axell is handling an excellent cut of lilies of the valley just now. He states that the shipping is keeping up quite well. He is still sending good quantities of spring flowers out of town.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is cutting a big rose crop and is shipping much of the stock. The San Lorenzo nurseries are sending in from 30,000 to 40,000 daffodils each day now, supplying the market with a fine grade of stock.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is shipping quantities of daffodils and other spring flowers, including freesias and anemones. This firm expects to have a large stock of Easter lilies on hand for the season.

Domoto Bros. are getting their Easter stock in readiness. An excellent supply of pink rhododendrons and Easter lilies, both cut and potted, will be moved from the nurseries shortly. Mr. Domoto states that orders in advance are numerous this year.

Large quantities of good roses are being shipped by Enomoto & Co. now and also large orders of spring flowers. Mr. Enomoto reported that shipping business is holding up exceptionally well. He mentioned among other things a strong demand from the east for woodwardia ferns.

Sam Matraia is now connected with C. Kooyman & Co.

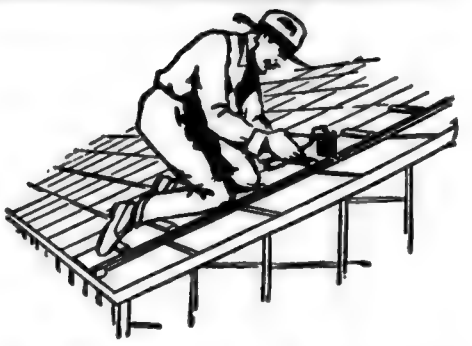
Asbestfalt



An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

$1.25 per gallon. Why pay more?

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

Pat. Oct. 30, 1919.

Mr. John Sharper, of Oxon Hill, Md., writes:

"I have been working in greenhouses for 23 years and every house I worked in was built with wooden gutters which leaked like a riddle. Now that I am in business for myself and have wooden gutters in my houses, some of the old ones leak. Since using your patent LEAK-PROOF locked gutter on my new houses it sure has helped me make better returns with my flowers, for now I can use the space under the gutter with no fear of them leaking."

We are the patentees and sole manufacturers of this LEAK-PROOF gutter which is giving so much satisfaction.

GREENHOUSE MATERIAL GREENHOUSE HARDWARE

PAINESVILLE, O.

Springtime is here and the busy season has opened with a rush. The demand for greenhouse and nursery stock is much heavier than usual, but the big problem is help, which is becoming scarcer every day. One large nursery firm is building a camp and is about to bring colored help from the south to relieve the situation.

The Storrs & Harrison Co. has finished sending out its spring wholesale list.

The Carl Hagenburger Co., of Painesville, and Merkle & Son, of Mentor, O., have excellent Easter stock and are booking orders.

C. C. Hallinan has recently purchased more land to be used in growing perennials, etc.

The Wayside Gardens, Mentor, O., have been busy for the last two weeks sending out their trade catalogue to customers.

Martin Kohankie has acted in the capacity of first aid for automobilists who got snowbound opposite his land on Mentor avenue.

R. A. Hacker, who makes a specialty of propagating hard-wood cuttings and growing transplanting stock, intends to increase his output to double its present volume this coming season in order to meet the demands in this line.

H. J. Kohankie & Son have purchased the celery and greenhouse business owned by Ruhling & Son, known as the Riverview Gardens.

Rabbits did considerable damage to trees and shrubs last winter, due to the fact that the ground was covered with snow most of the time. T. J. M.

Little Rock, Ark.—The greenhouse of Mrs. William Gallagher, 3112 Asher avenue, was damaged by fire March 1.

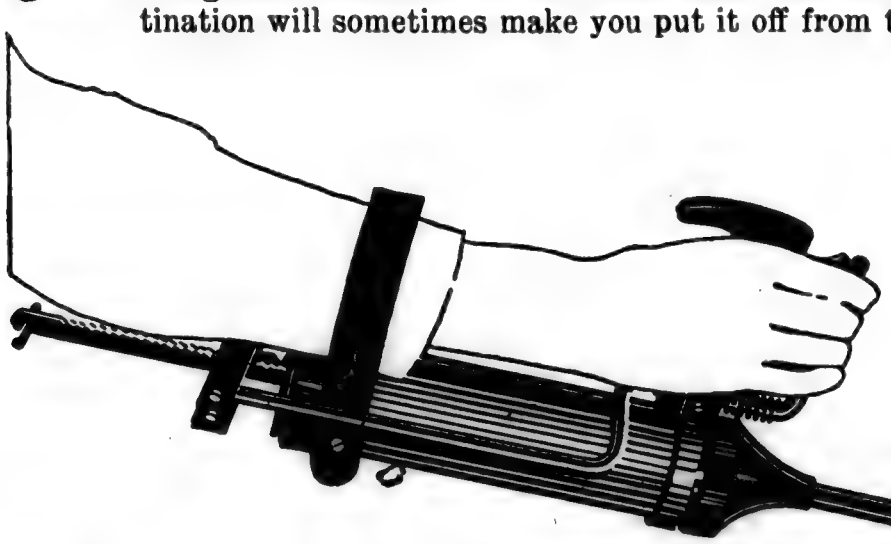
Permanite



(Trade-mark registered U. S. Patent Office.)

A Stitch in Time Saves Nine

Take that button on your coat, for instance; if it is loose and you let it go at that, the chances are that it will be off and gone before you know it.

Result—a button gone and time gone as well.

It's the same with a Greenhouse; you know it needs repairs here and there, you know that a few gallons of PERMANITE would make that old house better than new, but old Doc Procrastination will sometimes make you put it off from time to time.

Result—a leaky house, a lot of new sashbars, a lot of time gone to waste and probably a lot of valuable stock gone, too.

Be wise—think of the old proverb and order your supply of PERMANITE today SURE.

Yours for a Tight House

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL

It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 3½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100, delivery May and later. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

CYCLAMEN

Scarcity of extra choice Cyclamen seed will put price still higher the coming season. So you will have it on hand for July or later sowings, buy now. We have a few thousand dependable seeds of our choice strain on which we build our reputation. One year old seed germinates quicker and more even, so you won't take a risk. Separate colors, Christmas Red, Defiance, dark and light salmon, dark blood, and bright red, $2.00 per 100, $15.00 per 1000. Hardy outdoor grown seedlings of same strain, March delivery, postpaid, guaranteed perfect arrival, $7.00 per 100, $67.50 per 1000. Cultural directions with the order. Cash please.
C. Winterich, St. Petersburg, The Sunshine City, Fla., formerly of Defiance, O.

CYCLAMEN.

I can still offer about 20,000 transplanted seedlings, in the various shades and colors of one of the best commercial strains, at $8.50 per 100, $75.00 per 1000. Order quick as I sold about 15,000 the past week. For later delivery, May to August, 3-in. at $25.00 per 100, $240.00 per 1000; July to Sept. delivery, 4-in., at $40.00 per 100, $375.00 per 1000. It might be well to place order now as both the 3 and 4-in. sizes may advance in price as season advances.

NONE BETTER.

We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

'Way down in Georgia

ALBERT C. OELSCHIG.

CARL H. OELSCHIG.

When A. C. Oelschig & Sons, of Savannah, Georgia, wanted to standardize its plant, its managers called in the logical company to do the work—the AGMCO.

In going over the plant the AGMCO engineers found that it would be necessary to build every type of AGMCO house to finish out the range, and so the work of adding to or extending almost every make of greenhouse is now going forward.

The managers of A. C. Oelschig & Sons have given other makes of greenhouses a thorough trial, and they have studied AGMCO designs, construction and performance thoroughly, weighing them against the designs, construction and performance of other houses. And the result?

Well, the AGMCO has the contract to finish and standardize the range.

Get the point?

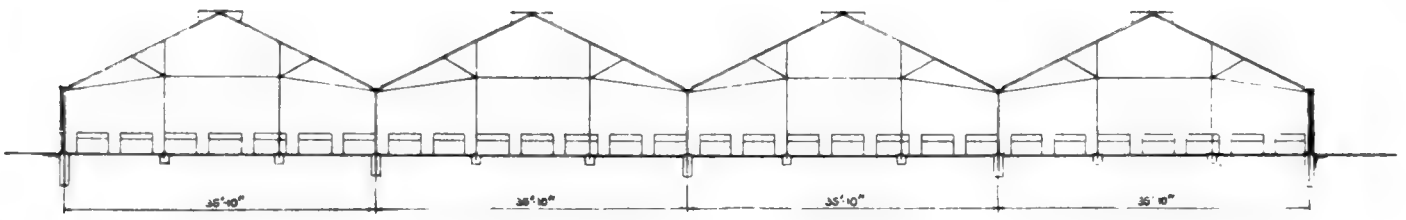
After thorough and intelligent investigation he gave the contract to us. Why?



Early this year Mr. Roy P. Bohlander gave us the contract to furnish and erect for him four 35 ft. 10 in. x 150 ft. greenhouses complete, ready to wheel soil into the benches.

After investigating the various construction companies, he placed his order with us because he saw, upon visiting our factory, that we were really equipped in every way to handle a job of his kind, many times over. He found out that our salesmen and engineers knew what they were talking about. That we had not only theories and ideas, but years of experience to back up all of our acts.

He found that our prices were reasonable and consistent with the high value of goods and service rendered. He found lots of other reasons, all of which we will be glad to give to you if you will give us the chance.

Greenhouse Builders

Jos. Hill Builds

This is just to confirm the rumor that The Jos. Hill Company of Richmond, Indiana, has ordered another big Lord & Burnham house, as a home for 16,000 Rose Premier.

Have asked The Review to let us have two pages next week so we will have room enough to both tell and show you just the things you want to know about the range in general and this new house in particular.

So if you don't see our usual Ad on this page next week, just look a bit further and you will find it.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Owing to the very great increase in price of all materials used in packing of plants, we find it necessary to make a small charge for same, as follows, much lower than the percentage plan:

Full size cases.....$1.50 each
Three-quarter size cases..... 1.00 each
Small size cases..... .50 each

Would suggest taking plants in paper pots whenever possible. It is a big saving in both packing and express charges.

TERMS:

Cash with Order—Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. Remittances—Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. Shipping Instructions—Give your name, post office, county and state, and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment, and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. Correspondence—We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. Errors—Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. Where we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PLANS FOR BUILDING CONCRETE BENCHES

The perennial interest in concrete benches is stronger than ever in these times of high prices of lumber and other materials. The simplicity of the plans employed by the grower who explains them below made a quick appeal when presented in brief by him in The Review a short time ago.

By FRED W. ARNOLD.

RENEWED interest has been shown of late by the trade in the practicability of concrete benches, which has been the subject of a good deal of discussion from time to time before. I have been growing carnations, chrysanthemums, violets, etc., in benches of concrete for five years. The stock produced has been excellent in quality and there has been absolutely no expense for repairs. The expense of construction, after the forms have been made, is less per running foot than for cypress benches and the forms themselves may be used repeatedly.

One Cast in Six Hours.

In casting my benches, I use a form of simple construction and set it without the aid of a single stake or support. Three men can take the form from one bench, 5x150 feet, and erect it for another in one day, after digging out for the feet of the bench, and five men and a mixer can cast the bench in one day; we cast one in six hours. In order that others may have as little trouble as possible in constructing concrete benches for themselves, I am describing in detail the method which I have found most successful, giving figures for a bench twenty-four inches high, five feet wide and fifty feet long. The dimensions can easily be changed to fit any size of bench.

For every 4-foot section of bench, procure from the lumber mill the following:

Eight pieces, ⅞x6x18 inches, for legs.

Two pieces, ⅞x6x60 inches, for sides of crossbeam.

One piece, ⅞x5x38 inches, for bottom of crossbeam.

Two pieces, ⅞x8½ inches, ten inches wide at the top and seven inches wide at the bottom, for ends of crossbeam.

Six pieces, ⅞x10x39½ inches, and two pieces, 2x2x62 inches; these eight pieces for the bottom form.

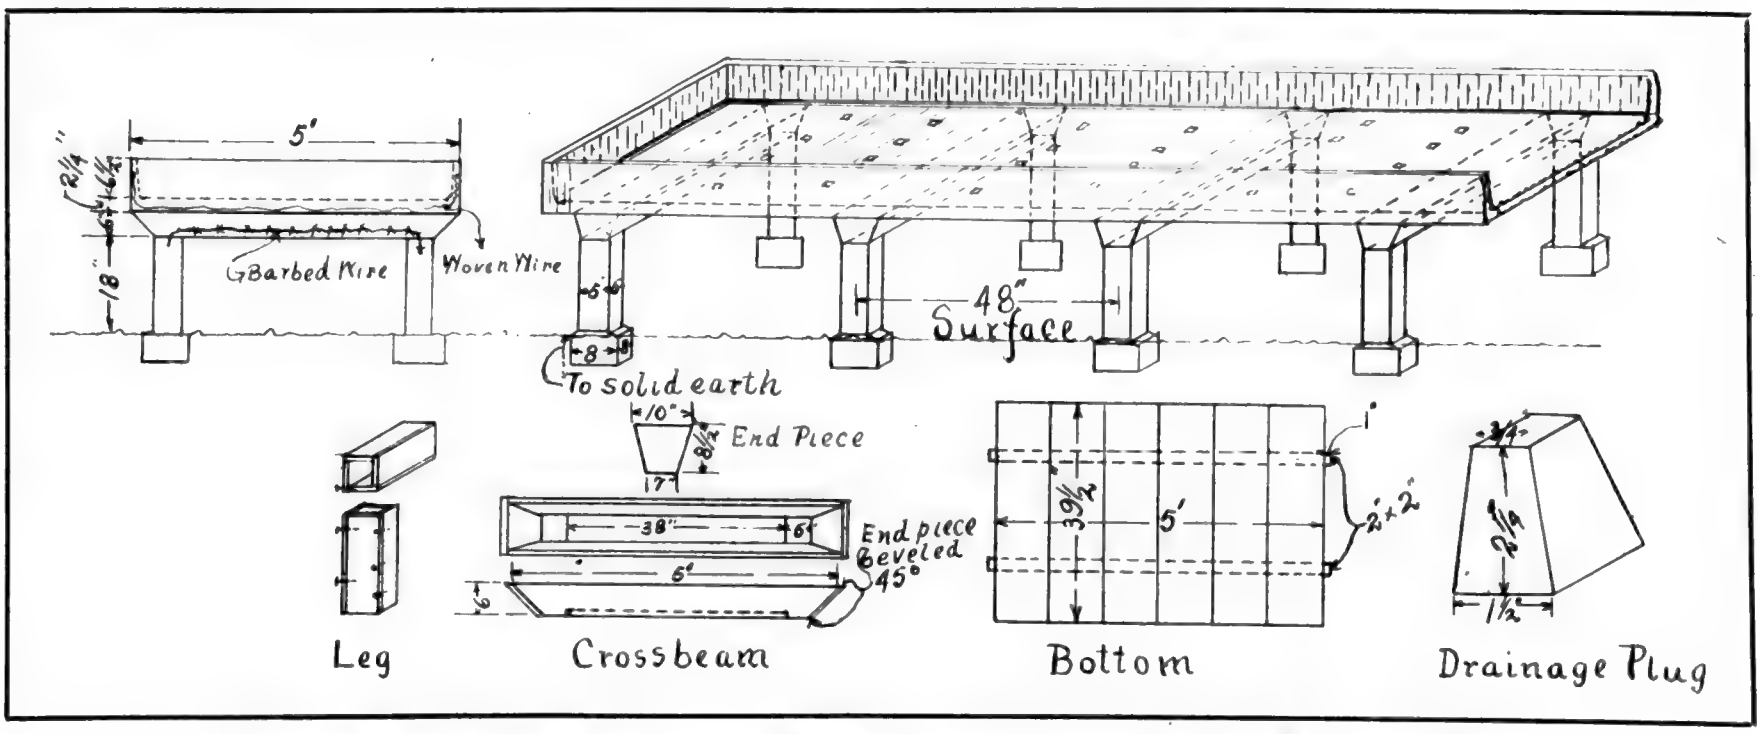
A 50-foot bench will require thirteen sets of legs and crossbeams and twelve full sections of bottom forms. Also procure from the lumber mill:

Two pieces, ⅞x12x60 inches, for the sections at the two ends of the bench.

110 lineal feet, ⅞x9½ inches, for outside forms for sides.

110 lineal feet, ⅞x6½ inches, for inside forms for sides.

Six pieces, ⅞x1½x60 inches, to be used as stay braces across top of side forms every eight feet.



Nailing Together.

Now nail firmly together two of the leg pieces, side to edge, using three 8-penny nails, and half nail two of these pairs together, making a box 5x5x18 inches and open at both ends. To half nail, leave about three-eighths of the nail exposed, so that it can be withdrawn with a claw hammer or bar. Cut the ends of the crossbeams at an angle of forty-five degrees, so that when the legs are placed they will be six inches under the bench, safe from the toes of anyone later working at the bench. A glance at the drawing presented on this page will make this and similar points clear.

The fact that the end pieces for the crossbeam form are ten inches at the top and seven inches at the bottom will make the sides of the crossbeam beveled downward one and one-half inches in six inches. Nail the bottom of the crossbeam form to one side, centers corresponding; nail the end pieces to this side; half nail the other side to the bottom, and half nail the ends to the last side. Ten inches from either end of the bottom boards nail the 2x2 pieces and see that this bottom sheet is square; the bottom squares will come loose more easily if beveled to correspond to the sides of the crossbeam forms.

Base on Solid Ground.

When all the forms are ready, stretch a line along where one side of the bench is to come, but seven-eighths of an inch lower than the under side is to be when completed. Allowing one foot for the overhang of the end of the bench, fix the location of the feet and dig down until solid ground is reached, whether four inches or four feet. Fill these holes with concrete made of one part cement, three parts sand and five parts cinders. Tamp well and set leg forms on these footers. Place beam form on leg forms so that the opening in the bottom of the beam form comes over the opening of the leg forms, giving a little room for the bottom of the beam form to clear the finished leg when the forms are being removed. Do not nail the leg forms and beam form together, as the weight will hold them.

Having in place two sets of these leg and beam forms, which should be level across the bench, place a bottom form on them, allowing one-quarter of an inch from the end of the bottom form to the inside of the beam form; nail the bottom form to the beam forms with 4-penny nails. After enough sections are placed to take a length of side forms, half nail the side forms to the edge of the bottom forms, using two 8-penny nails to each section and nailing over the 2x2 sill. Proceed in this way to the end of the bench, splicing the side forms by nailing lightly a piece of board over each joint on the outside.

Casting the Bench.

We are now ready to cast the bench. Screen cinders through a screen made of 1-inch mesh wire netting. Use one part cement, two parts sand and four parts cinders. Mix the concrete to a pasty consistency, but do not "drown." Wheel it right over the form, which can easily support that weight, using boards for wheeling planks over the beam forms. Fill the leg forms by tamping with a sharpened broom handle or something similar. Put about one inch of concrete in the bottom of the beam form and put in two pieces of barbed wire long enough to reach from leg to leg and down in the legs two or more inches. Fill up the beam form and proceed to half the length of the bench.

Place woven wire netting six feet wide for a 5-foot bench over the forms that are filled, so that it extends six inches up the sides and ends. Wheel in the concrete as before, shoveling it out, placing it and tamping and troweling as you go. We use for a tamper a block 2x8x10 inches, with a handle stuck in a hole in the center.

Do not forget to insert the drainage plugs as the work proceeds; they are made by taking a 1½x1½ strip, tapering it with a sharp hatchet to ¾x¾ and sawing off at a length of two and one-quarter inches. They also act as guides for the thickness of the bottom. Place eight to a section, an equal distance apart.

Clean the Forms for Later Use.

After finishing the bottom, half nail the ⅞x1½ cross braces at intervals of eight feet and place the inside forms, half nailing them to the brace strips and bracing the bottoms with any light stuff to hold them in position. We make the sides one inch thick at the top and one and one-half inches at the bottom. It is sometimes necessary to tack light strips across between the long braces to keep the sides straight. Use the same proportion in the concrete as before, but screen the cinders through a ¼-inch mesh. If the same proportion is not kept in making the concrete, the sides and bottom will not set alike and will crack. We put the concrete in flats and fill the sides with a mason trowel, using a piece of board for a guide or backstop; tamp with the trowel and tap side forms to insure close work. Finish a bench as far as you go the same day, as the "set" will be better.

Next day, remove the inside forms and with a mason trowel mold in the angles at the sides and bottom with a mortar consisting of two parts cement and three parts sand, filling any defect in the cast. After thirty-six hours remove the outside side forms and then the leg forms, when the crossbeam forms will easily drop away. As soon as the forms are cleaned, they are ready to be set up again for another bench. Remove the drainage plugs by tapping on the top with a hammer. Any imperfections may be filled with cement mortar and the sides may be made smoother by applying with an old broom a whitewash made of one part cement and one part sand. Keep wet for three or four days and use care if the bench is filled with soil before ten days.

Cinder Aggregate Better than Gravel.

If a pipe is to be hung under the center of the bench, insert a 1x1x8-inch piece to which it may be nailed, in the center of the crossbeam. A pipe may be hung on the side of the legs by using spikes or twisting a wire around the leg. Where purlin supports occur, it is well to arrange to have them come in the leg or beam forms, which is done by changing the length of the bottom forms. When the forms have been taken off, always clean and put them away and they will make all the benches that are needed for some time to come. Ten barrels of cement will build a bench 5x150 feet. The cinder aggregate makes a tougher, more porous and more nearly frost-proof job than does gravel, as well as being much cheaper.

NEW YORKERS WRITE.

Members of the horticultural trade in New York state are being urged to write to Assemblyman Arthur Cowee at Albany, N. Y., in support of the bill introduced by him March 8 in the state assembly for an appropriation for a horticultural building at the fair grounds at Syracuse. This structure has for a long time been desired by the various interests concerned in New York and if enough pressure is brought to bear it is thought this bill may succeed in obtaining it for them. Mr. Cowee, being a gladiolus specialist, is interested himself as well as in behalf of the trade and desires letters from others to indicate to the assembly the strength of his support. His bill reads as follows:

An act making an appropriation for the construction of a horticultural building at the state fair grounds, Syracuse, N. Y., and for the improvement of the said grounds:

The people of the state of New York, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The state fair commission is hereby authorized and empowered to execute all necessary contracts in behalf of the people of the state of New York for the erection, construction and equipment of a horticultural building for the exhibitions of fruits, flowers, vegetables, seeds, bee and honey products, farm produce and nursery stock, said building to be erected on the state fair grounds at Syracuse, N. Y., at a cost not to exceed $500,000.

Sec. 2. The necessary expense incurred for the purpose of securing information as to methods of exhibiting these products and such soil survey, borings and test pits and the compensation of experts in connection with the drafting of plans and specifications shall be included as part of the cost of the building and be paid from the appropriation therefor.

Sec. 3. The sum of $500,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for the erection, construction and equipment of such building and all other expenses incurred under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 4. This act shall take effect immediately.

UNITED ACTION

LEAD QUARANTINE PROTEST.

Plan Meeting in May.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has sent a letter to trade organizations all over the United States urging united action in protest against Quarantine No. 37.

The resolutions adopted by the trustees of the organization state their belief that the quarantine is unnecessary, detrimental to horticultural progress and perhaps beyond the intent and scope of the act of Congress which authorized the quarantine.

It is their belief, therefore, that a meeting of the various horticultural interests should be held and they have requested each organization to appoint a delegate to represent it officially at such a meeting, to be held in May in a central city of the country.

The headquarters of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society are in Horticultural hall, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston. The officers are: President, William C. Endicott; secretary, William P. Rich; treasurer, Walter Hunnewell.

Text of Letter.

The letter embodying the trustees' resolutions and requesting the appointment of delegates for the meeting in May reads as follows:

The trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society are of opinion that the drastic regulations of the Federal Horticultural Board imposed under Quarantine 37 should be substantially modified. They believe that the restrictions enforced by this quarantine are very largely unnecessary and detrimental to horticultural progress in the United States.

It is, moreover, a question whether the Secretary of Agriculture in ordering such drastic quarantine may not have exceeded both the intent and the scope of the act of Congress authorizing plant quarantine.

The trustees of this society believe that a meeting of all the different horticultural interests in the United States should be held to consider Quarantine 37, and to take such action as may seem necessary to secure its amendment: and they request that your organization appoint a delegate to represent it officially at such a meeting, to be held during the month of May in a central city of the United States.

The trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will thank you to advise them of what action you may take.

Action Already Taken.

The Garden Club of America, at its spring meeting at the Colony Club, New York, March 17, when over 350 ladies were present, passed resolutions condemnatory of the F. H. B. and Quarantine No. 37 with much enthusiasm and absolute unanimity. It was voted to support the resolutions adopted by the directors of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society regarding the quarantine, and delegates were appointed to meet with delegates from numerous other organizations in New York city on or about May 26 to decide on concerted action regarding the quarantine. J. Edward Moon, president of the American Association of Nurserymen; W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., and John C. Wister, president of the new American Iris Society, who were the speakers at the meeting, each referred to the quarantine and severely criticized it.

At a largely attended conference of the National Association of Gardeners, held at the Engineering building, New York, March 18, resolutions were unanimously adopted pledging the support of the society to efforts being made to modify Quarantine No. 37. It was voted, on motion of W. N. Craig, to cooperate with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and other organizations and to send delegates to a conference to be held in New York city in May to consider the best ways and means of changing the exclusion act.

CALL OFF COAL CONTROL

WILSON LIFTS COAL LID.

Accepts Majority Commission Report.

Removal of government regulation of the coal industry and fuel prices makes certain a rise in cost of coal beginning with the new coal year, April 1.

President Wilson announced, March 23, his acceptance of the majority report of the coal commission as binding on the bituminous coal mine operators and miners. In a public letter he called upon the operators and miners to summon their joint conference, to put the findings into effect as soon as possible.

At the same time the President withdrew government control of the price of bituminous coal, so that the twenty-seven per cent wage advance for miners, recommended by the report, might be absorbed in the price the consumer would pay after April 1. The commission estimated this wage advance at $200,000,000 a year.

No Price Fixing in Peace Time.

The majority report does not touch upon the question of future coal prices, as being without its jurisdiction. The minority report states that "it seems apparent that the additional thirteen per cent now called for should be taken care of by the operators." On this point the President says:

"There is at present no provision of law for fixing new coal prices for peace time purposes and unless and until some grave emergency shall arise which in my judgment has a relation to the emergency purposes of the Lever act, I would not feel justified in fixing coal prices with reference to future conditions of production.

"I am aware that at present, as a result of the shortage created by the coal strike and of the consequent interference with transportation, as a result also of the unexceptionally unfavorable winter, the demand for coal continues active. I desire to impress upon the coal operators the extreme importance not only of their complying to the full extent with the laws against combinations in restraint of trade and against profiteering but also of their exerting themselves affirmatively to prevent exacting of unreasonable prices for coal.

Warns Against Profiteering.

"I am sure the public fully appreciates the desirability, where practicable, of leaving commercial transactions untrammeled, but at the same time I am satisfied the public will find ways to protect itself, if such liberal policy shall appear to result in unreasonably high prices."

The President wrote the operators and miners that it was "essential to the public welfare that the agreements be concluded at the earliest date practicable, so that the uncertainty as to the fuel supply may be ended and that the consumers may be able to make contracts for their coal supply."

The executive order withdrawing government control of prices removes virtually all government control of coal, placing the fuel administration in virtually the position it held before the miners struck November 1.

Main Features of Award.

The report proposes a three months' winter storage supply for the government, public utilities, railroads and domestic consumers, beginning July 1 each year, that the interstate commerce commission propose lower rates for coal shipments during that period, that steps be taken to minimize the car shortage and that the federal reserve board permit federal reserve banks to favor as eligible for rediscount paper drawn against coal in storage.

The outstanding features in the decision of the majority of the commission (Henry M. Robinson, representing the public, and Rembrandt Poole, representing the operators) are as follows:

An increase of wages to tonnage workers of twenty-seven per cent over the wages in effect Ocotober 31, 1919, including the fourteen per cent increase already granted. This amounts to approximately $96,000,000 a year more than the Garfield award and $200,000,000 a year more than the wages last October.

The 6-hour day and the 5-day week are not granted; the 8-hour day is retained.

In refusing the demand of the miners for a 30-hour week, the majority of the commission said that, if the work day were shortened by one hour, it would be equivalent to an additional cost of more than $100,000,000.

The President's action means that the coal dealers can ask what they like for coal and that an increase of approximately twenty-five per cent in miners' wages must be assimilated by the consumer.

NEW THREAT OF COAL STRIKE.

Just as the government finished its work in preparation for prosecuting more than a hundred operators and miners of the central competitive district charged with a nation-wide coal conspiracy in violation of the Lever act, the alarming report came this week from the mine workers' headquarters and from officers of the operators that the door has been thrown open for another tie-up of the bituminous coal fields which may prove more paralyzing to the industrial world than the strike of last fall.

It is pointed out by mine leaders that the present contract in force between the operators and miners expires March 31 and that unless a new contract is arranged before that time the nation will face a general shutdown then.

Experience shows that without a contract in force the miners will not return to work.

President Wilson's plan of having the operators and miners work out their contracts for the new coal year beginning April 1 is said to be in direct contrast with the basis upon which many of the indictments of the 125 operators and miners named were drawn, and that such a conference would be another violation of the Lever act, provided the present indictments bring about convictions.

Information among the operators and workers' officials is that the prosecution is proceeding upon the hypothesis that all joint conferences to negotiate wage contracts have been and are illegal since the passage of the Lever act, August 10, 1917.

All of this, operators point out, sizes up the pinch in which they find themselves in spite of President Wilson's request to get together on the majority report of the coal strike commission, which in itself gives presidential sanction to the collective bargaining principle.

PROPOSE COAL DIRECTOR.

A remedy for the coal situation growing out of war conditions has been proposed in a bill introduced in the Senate by Senator Frelinghuysen. The aim is to provide complete means of publicity through a federal coal commissioner, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, with a salary of $10,000 a year and a bureau of officials and employees able to cope with the work necessarily involved in the plan. This coal commissioner would be empowered to investigate production, distribution, storage and sale, and to require from producers, operators and miners every form of information involved in the industry. The organization, the management, the practices, all come under his jurisdiction. Retail dealers and consumers also are to be required to give the coal commissioner all required information as to the conditions of the trade. The wages and working conditions, terms of employment, living expenses and all similar questions on the miners' side are also embraced in the powers of the commissioner.

The interstate commerce commission, the federal trade commission and all departments of the government are required to coöperate with the coal commissioner in getting out the needed information, and the commissioner is by law required to publish the results of his investigations. He also would have the power to prescribe statutory standards for various kinds of coal, to establish zoning systems and to report to Congress annually from and after April 1, 1921, so that needed legislation might be had to correct evils at any point in the industry.

In explaining the purposes of the measure, Senator Frelinghuysen said such a commissioner could direct the storage of large quantities of coal in various localities during the summer to forestall shortage in the winter. The position of coal commissioner, he said, was to last only five years. Senator Frelinghuysen said he had been informed that the adoption of such a plan as his measure contemplates would result in a saving of $1,000,000,000 a year to the people of the United States.

Mr. Frelinghuysen also introduced a bill to repeal the Lever food and fuel control act in so far as it relates to coal.

FREIGHT UP ONE HALF?

Twenty-five per cent was the general estimate of the probable increase in railroad freight rates, but now that the representatives of the labor unions have presented demands for wage raises that total $1,100,000,000 the trade may face a jump in freight cost of fifty per cent.

The national wage conference which met in Washington Monday, March 22, composed of seventeen labor union leaders and fifteen railroad managers, were confronted with a statement of the combined wage demands of the railroad workers totaling over a billion dollars. The increases asked before the return of the roads to private control were postponed by the government, with promise of later consideration. On the strength of those promises the unions withdrew threats to strike. Now the wage demands are put up directly to the roads.

At the same time that the national wage conference convened the interstate commerce commission opened hearings to determine the rates necessary to provide for the $1,030,000,000 in wage increases granted by the government in the last two years. To enable the roads to earn the minimum of five and one-half per cent allowed by law, it was thought an increase of about twenty-five per cent would be needed. Now that wage demands more than equal to those granted in the last two years are presented in addition, it is possible that the increase will have to be double that amount.

The decision of the interstate commerce commission in regard to the new rates must be made by September 1, when the government's guarantee to the roads expires. Whether the new rates will go into effect before that time no one predicts; it is not likely that the rise will come much before that date. September 1, however, the trade will pay considerably more for transporting coal, fertilizer, bulbs and other freight shipments.

CORN BORER BAN

AFFECTS FOUR STATES.

Prevents Interstate Shipments.

Despite the sturdy opposition of the New England growers, both at Boston and at the Department of Agriculture's hearing at Washington, the quarantine for the corn borer was issued March 15 by the new secretary of agriculture, as was stated in the telegraphic report which appeared in last week's issue of The Review.

This order, however, is not so drastic as the embargoes placed in Illinois and Michigan. The florists' products affected are "cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia except the bulbs thereof, without stem." It will be noted that gladiolus corms and dahlia roots, if without stems attached, are permitted to be shipped under the federal order.

Infested Areas.

This quarantine only affects four states, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania. Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut and Maine, which were legislated against by Illinois and Michigan, are not affected by the federal quarantine. Moreover, shipments are forbidden only from areas designated in the supplemental regulations as infested. Flowers and plants may be shipped from points in these four states not named as infested. The infested areas are stated to be as follows:

Massachusetts: Barnstable, Bourne, Brewster, Dennis, Eastham, Falmouth, Harwich, Orleans, Provincetown, Sandwich, Truro, Wellfleet and Yarmouth, in Barnstable county; Amesbury, Andover, Beverly, Boxford, Danvers, Essex, Georgetown, Gloucester, Groveland, Hamilton, Haverhill, Ipswich, Lawrence, Lynn, Lynnfield, Manchester, Marblehead, Merrimac, Methuen, Middleton, Nahant, Newbury, Newburyport, North Andover, Peabody, Rockport, Rowley, Salem, Salisbury, Saugus, Swampscott, Topsfield, Wenham and West Newbury, in Essex county; Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Billerica, Burlington, Cambridge, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Concord, Dracut, Everett, Framingham, Lexington, Lincoln, Lowell, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Natick, Newton, North Reading, Reading, Somerville, Stoneham, Sudbury, Tewksbury, Tyngsboro, Wakefield, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, Weston, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, in Middlesex county; Avon, Braintree, Brookline, Cohasset, Holbrook, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Wellesley and Weymouth, in Norfolk county; Abington, Brockton, Duxbury, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Hull, Kingston, Marshfield, Middleboro, Norwell, Plymouth, Pembroke, Rockland and Scituate, in Plymouth county; Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop, in Suffolk county.

New Hampshire: Kingston, Plaistow and Seabrook, in Rockingham county.

New York: Albany, Cohoes, Colonie and Guilderland, in Albany county; Johnstown and Perth, in Fulton county; Amsterdam, Florida and Mohawk, in Montgomery county; Brunswick, North Greenbush and Troy, in Rensselaer county; Ballston, Charlton, Clifton Park, Galway, Malta, Milton, Saratoga Springs and Stillwater, in Saratoga county; Glenville, Niskayuna, Princetown, Rotterdam and Schenectady, in Schenectady county; Esperance, in Schoharie county; Dayton, Perrysburg and Persia, in Cattaraugus county; Hanover, Pomfret and Sheridan, in Chautauqua county; Brant, Collins, Cheektowaga, Eden, Evans, Hamburg and North Collins, in Erie county.

Pennsylvania: North Girard, in Erie county.

Certificates to be Issued.

From points within the infested area shipments may be made if the plants have been inspected by the Department of Agriculture and certified to be free from the corn borer. The regulations provide also that a permit may be issued, good until revoked, if premises are found to be clean and free from the corn borer. This was a point urged by the growers who attended the Washington hearing, evidently with effect. Thus, a grower within the infested area, if he keeps his premises clean of weeds and growths which harbor the corn borer and allows the pest no foothold on his property, may be allowed to ship plants. All he needs to do is to attach a copy of the permit to each shipment.

Regulations on Inspection.

The regulations in regard to inspection read as follows:

Corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or when used as packing; cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof, without stems, shall not be moved or allowed to move interstate to any point outside the infested area quarantined for the corn borer unless and until such plants and plant products have been inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture and certified to be free from the corn borer. In the case of any of the articles enumerated in this regulation where absolute freedom from infestation can not be determined by the inspector of the Department of Agriculture, certification will be refused.

Every car, box, bale or other container of plants and plant products of which inspection is required by these regulations shall be plainly marked with the name and address of the consignor and the name and address of the consignee and shall bear a certificate showing that the contents have been inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture and found to be free from corn borer infestation.

The inspection certificates in the case of carload and other bulk shipments shall accompany the waybills, conductors' manifests, memoranda, or bills of lading pertaining to such shipments.

Certificates of inspection will issue only for plants and plant products which have been actually inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture; provided, that when in the case of individual premises or districts within an infested area in any of the quarantined states it shall be determined by competent inspection that the corn borer does not infest any of the cultivated products grown in such premises or districts and that said premises or districts have been maintained in such condition of freedom from weeds or vegetable growths other than the cultivated products designated as to prevent possibility of occurrence of the corn borer through such agencies, a permit may be issued (valid until revoked) by the inspector of the Department of Agriculture stating that such premises or districts have been inspected and found free from the corn borer and free from weeds or other extraneous vegetation capable of harboring the corn borer, and authorizing the shipment from said premises or districts of any of the articles subject to this quarantine grown therein. Copies of such permits shall be attached to small packages, or in the case of bulk shipments, to waybills, conductors' manifests, memoranda, or bills of lading pertaining thereto, and may be accepted by transportation companies in lieu of certificates of inspection.

Persons intending to move or allow to be moved interstate plants and plant products for which certificates of inspection are required by these regulations will make application therefor as far as possible in advance of the probable date of shipment. Applications should show the nature and quantity of the plants or plant products which it is proposed to move, together with their exact location and, if practicable, the contemplated date of shipment. Applicants for inspection will be required to assemble the articles to be inspected and so to place them that they can be readily examined. If not so placed, inspection may be refused. All charges for storage, cartage and labor incident to inspection other than the services of inspectors shall be paid by the shipper.

It will be seen that sufficient leeway has been allowed in the quarantine to permit growers who maintain their establishments free from the corn borer and from conditions which might lead to its harboring, to make shipments of cut flowers and plants as hitherto. New England and New York growers, particularly of gladioli, dahlias and chrysanthemums, will breathe a little easier after perusal of the regulations governing the quarantine.

NEW YORK SHOW CLOSES

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Well Attended Throughout.

Wednesday, March 17, was carnation day at the international flower show in New York, but it did not bring out a particularly large number of exhibits from the commercial growers; the flowers shown, however, were of excellent quality. There were no stagings Thursday. Friday was sweet pea day, when commercial growers also made a poor showing. The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, had a quite creditable exhibit entered in the class covering the display arranged for effect and easily won the first prize. In many classes no entries were made.

Keen competition was evident in the second big contest for supremacy in the class for a display of cut roses covering 300 square feet. Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., put up his second grand exhibit, in itself no small task, since nothing but the finest flowers, produced from two pinches, would be suitable for staging in this class, where the stock is judged almost to the weighing point, but the first honors went to a newcomer in the exhibition field, the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J. The management of the show is to be congratulated upon being able to secure a filling of two such classes within a day or two of each other, especially when, without them, there would have been a noticeable thinness in the rose section. In the opinion of the public, a view of these exhibits alone was worth the price of admission.

The attendance throughout the show was good and the committee has no anxiety in regard to the outcome financially.

Carnation Awards.

While S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., achieved a great success Wednesday with his superb Laddie carnations, C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., was also well represented, as shown by the following list of awards to commercial growers:

One hundred white—F. B. Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y., first; C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., second.

One hundred light pink—Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., first; Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., second.

One hundred dark pink—C. S. Strout, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., second.

One hundred red or scarlet, to cover all shades generally included in those colors—Springfield Floral Co., first; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., second.

One hundred crimson, to include all shades known as crimson or maroon—C. S. Strout, first.

One hundred white, variegated—Curt Thimm, Roslyn, N. Y., first; C. S. Strout, second.

One hundred yellow or yellow variegated—C. S. Strout, first.

One hundred Laddie—S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., first; C. S. Strout, second.

Fifty any new variety not in commerce—Herman Schwarz, Central Park, L. I., silver medal.

Display of carnations, covering 150 square feet of space and containing not less than 1,000 nor more than 1,500 blooms—Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., first.

Sweet Peas.

The awards made to commercial growers for displays of sweet peas were as follows:

One hundred sprays, bicolor—M. Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y., first; Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., second.

One hundred sprays, white—M. Graf, Elmsford, N. Y., first.

One hundred sprays light lavender—M. Graf, first.

One hundred sprays pink or salmon—M. Matheron, first.

Display of sweet peas covering 100 square feet, arranged for effect—W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, first; Herman Mamitsch, second.

Cut Rose Display.

In judging the displays of cut roses exhibited by commercial growers, the quality of bloom, artistic arrangement and general effect were considered. The awards were as follows:

Display of cut roses covering 300 square feet and containing not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms—Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., first; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., second; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., third.

Prize-Winning Private Growers.

The following private growers were among the prize-winners, in addition to those mentioned in The Review of March 18: J. W. Smith, gardener for Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn.; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y.; J. Sisley, gardener for Mrs. Paul Moore, Convent Station, N. J.; L. Hubbard, gardener for Spencer Eddy, Manhasset, N. Y.; E. Lawrence, gardener for Mrs. A. Schlact, Saugatuck, Conn.; F. K. Whitehouse, gardener for Mrs. Holbrook, Stamford, Conn.; Charles J. McCormack, gardener for Countess Von Holstein, Edge Hill, Pa.; Frank W. Sargeaunt, gardener for Walter Jennings, Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., and William Kleinheinz, gardener for Jos. E. Widener, Ogontz, Pa.

NEW YORK FLORISTS DINE.

Annual Club Banquet.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Biltmore, Wednesday evening, March 17, was a great success. Those sitting down to tables numbered 472, the largest number ever in attendance at such a function of the club. The party assembled in the reception rooms and proceeded to the grand ballroom, where the dinner was served. After the dinner, the tables were removed from the center of the floor and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

With the exception of short addresses from Park Commissioners Gallatin and Harmon, who were present as guests and

Mr. Frelinghuysen also introduced a bill to repeal the Lever food and fuel control act in so far as it relates to coal.

FREIGHT UP ONE HALF?

Twenty-five per cent was the general estimate of the probable increase in railroad freight rates, but now that the representatives of the labor unions have presented demands for wage raises that total $1,100,000,000 the trade may face a jump in freight cost of fifty per cent.

The national wage conference which met in Washington Monday, March 22, composed of seventeen labor union leaders and fifteen railroad managers, were confronted with a statement of the combined wage demands of the railroad workers totaling over a billion dollars. The increases asked before the return of the roads to private control were postponed by the government, with promise of later consideration. On the strength of those promises the unions withdrew threats to strike. Now the wage demands are put up directly to the roads.

At the same time that the national wage conference convened the interstate commerce commission opened hearings to determine the rates necessary to provide for the $1,030,000,000 in wage increases granted by the government in the last two years. To enable the roads to earn the minimum of five and one-half per cent allowed by law, it was thought an increase of about twenty-five per cent would be needed. Now that wage demands more than equal to those granted in the last two years are presented in addition, it is possible that the increase will have to be double that amount.

The decision of the interstate commerce commission in regard to the new rates must be made by September 1, when the government's guarantee to the roads expires. Whether the new rates will go into effect before that time no one predicts; it is not likely that the rise will come much before that date. September 1, however, the trade will pay considerably more for transporting coal, fertilizer, bulbs and other freight shipments.

CORN BORER BAN

AFFECTS FOUR STATES.

Prevents Interstate Shipments.

Despite the sturdy opposition of the New England growers, both at Boston and at the Department of Agriculture's hearing at Washington, the quarantine for the corn borer was issued March 15 by the new secretary of agriculture, as was stated in the telegraphic report which appeared in last week's issue of The Review.

This order, however, is not so drastic as the embargoes placed in Illinois and Michigan. The florists' products affected are "cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock, and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia except the bulbs thereof, without stem." It will be noted that gladiolus corms and dahlia roots, if without stems attached, are permitted to be shipped under the federal order.

Infested Areas.

This quarantine only affects four states, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania. Rhode Island, Vermont, Connecticut and Maine, which were legislated against by Illinois and Michigan, are not affected by the federal quarantine. Moreover, shipments are forbidden only from areas designated in the supplemental regulations as infested. Flowers and plants may be shipped from points in these four states not named as infested. The infested areas are stated to be as follows:

Massachusetts: Barnstable, Bourne, Brewster, Dennis, Eastham, Falmouth, Harwich, Orleans, Provincetown, Sandwich, Truro, Wellfleet and Yarmouth, in Barnstable county; Amesbury, Andover, Beverly, Boxford, Danvers, Essex, Georgetown, Gloucester, Groveland, Hamilton, Haverhill, Ipswich, Lawrence, Lynn, Lynnfield, Manchester, Marblehead, Merrimac, Methuen, Middleton, Nahant, Newbury, Newburyport, North Andover, Peabody, Rockport, Rowley, Salem, Salisbury, Saugus, Swampscott, Topsfield, Wenham and West Newbury, in Essex county; Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Billerica, Burlington, Cambridge, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Concord, Dracut, Everett, Framingham, Lexington, Lincoln, Lowell, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Natick, Newton, North Reading, Reading, Somerville, Stoneham, Sudbury, Tewksbury, Tyngsboro, Wakefield, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland, Weston, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn, in Middlesex county; Avon, Braintree, Brookline, Cohasset, Holbrook, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Wellesley and Weymouth, in Norfolk county; Abington, Brockton, Duxbury, Hanover, Hanson, Hingham, Hull, Kingston, Marshfield, Middleboro, Norwell, Plymouth, Pembroke, Rockland and Scituate, in Plymouth county; Boston, Chelsea, Revere and Winthrop, in Suffolk county.

New Hampshire: Kingston, Plaistow and Seabrook, in Rockingham county.

New York: Albany, Cohoes, Colonie and Guilderland, in Albany county; Johnstown and Perth, in Fulton county; Amsterdam, Florida and Mohawk, in Montgomery county; Brunswick, North Greenbush and Troy, in Rensselaer county; Ballston, Charlton, Clifton Park, Galway, Malta, Milton, Saratoga Springs and Stillwater, in Saratoga county; Glenville, Niskayuna, Princetown, Rotterdam and Schenectady, in Schenectady county; Esperance, in Schoharie county; Dayton, Perrysburg and Persia, in Cattaraugus county; Hanover, Pomfret and Sheridan, in Chautauqua county; Brant, Collins, Checktowaga, Eden, Evans, Hamburg and North Collins, in Erie county.

Pennsylvania: North Girard, in Erie county.

Certificates to be Issued.

From points within the infested area shipments may be made if the plants have been inspected by the Department of Agriculture and certified to be free from the corn borer. The regulations provide also that a permit may be issued, good until revoked, if premises are found to be clean and free from the corn borer. This was a point urged by the growers who attended the Washington hearing, evidently with effect. Thus, a grower within the infested area, if he keeps his premises clean of weeds and growths which harbor the corn borer and allows the pest no foothold on his property, may be allowed to ship plants. All he needs to do is to attach a copy of the permit to each shipment.

Regulations on Inspection.

The regulations in regard to inspection read as follows:

Corn and broom corn, including all parts of the stalk, celery, green beans in the pod, beets with tops, spinach, rhubarb, oat and rye straw as such or when used as packing; cut flowers or entire plants of chrysanthemum, aster, cosmos, zinnia, hollyhock and cut flowers or entire plants of gladiolus and dahlia, except the bulbs thereof, without stems, shall not be moved or allowed to move interstate to any point outside the infested area quarantined for the corn borer unless and until such plants and plant products have been inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture and certified to be free from the corn borer. In the case of any of the articles enumerated in this regulation where absolute freedom from infestation can not be determined by the inspector of the Department of Agriculture, certification will be refused.

Every car, box, bale or other container of plants and plant products of which inspection is required by these regulations shall be plainly marked with the name and address of the consignor and the name and address of the consignee and shall bear a certificate showing that the contents have been inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture and found to be free from corn borer infestation.

The inspection certificates in the case of carload and other bulk shipments shall accompany the waybills, conductors' manifests, memoranda, or bills of lading pertaining to such shipments.

Certificates of inspection will issue only for plants and plant products which have been actually inspected by the United States Department of Agriculture; provided, that when in the case of individual premises or districts within an infested area in any of the quarantined states it shall be determined by competent inspection that the corn borer does not infest any of the cultivated products grown in such premises or districts and that said premises or districts have been maintained in such condition of freedom from weeds or vegetable growths other than the cultivated products designated as to prevent possibility of occurrence of the corn borer through such agencies a permit may be issued (valid until revoked) by the inspector of the Department of Agriculture stating that such premises or districts have been inspected and found free from the corn borer and free from weeds or other extraneous vegetation capable of harboring the corn borer, and authorizing the shipment from said premises or districts of any of the articles subject to this quarantine grown therein. Copies of such permits shall be attached to small packages, or in the case of bulk shipments, to waybills, conductors' manifests, memoranda, or bills of lading pertaining thereto, and may be accepted by transportation companies in lieu of certificates of inspection.

Persons intending to move or allow to be moved interstate plants and plant products for which certificates of inspection are required by these regulations will make application therefor as far as possible in advance of the probable date of shipment. Applications should show the nature and quantity of the plants or plant products which it is proposed to move, together with their exact location and, if practicable, the contemplated date of shipment. Applicants for inspection will be required to assemble the articles to be inspected and so to place them that they can be readily examined. If not so placed, inspection may be refused. All charges for storage, cartage and labor incident to inspection other than the services of inspectors shall be paid by the shipper.

It will be seen that sufficient leeway has been allowed in the quarantine to permit growers who maintain their establishments free from the corn borer and from conditions which might lead to its harboring, to make shipments of cut flowers and plants as hitherto. New England and New York growers, particularly of gladioli, dahlias and chrysanthemums, will breathe a little easier after perusal of the regulations governing the quarantine.

NEW YORK SHOW CLOSES

INTERNATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Well Attended Throughout.

Wednesday, March 17, was carnation day at the international flower show in New York, but it did not bring out a particularly large number of exhibits from the commercial growers; the flowers shown, however, were of excellent quality. There were no stagings Thursday. Friday was sweet pea day, when commercial growers also made a poor showing. The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, had a quite creditable exhibit entered in the class covering the display arranged for effect and easily won the first prize. In many classes no entries were made.

Keen competition was evident in the second big contest for supremacy in the class for a display of cut roses covering 300 square feet. Frank R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., put up his second grand exhibit, in itself no small task, since nothing but the finest flowers, produced from two pinches, would be suitable for staging in this class, where the stock is judged almost to the weighing point, but the first honors went to a newcomer in the exhibition field, the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J. The management of the show is to be congratulated upon being able to secure a filling of two such classes within a day or two of each other, especially when, without them, there would have been a noticeable thinness in the rose section. In the opinion of the public, a view of these exhibits alone was worth the price of admission.

The attendance throughout the show was good and the committee has no anxiety in regard to the outcome financially.

Carnation Awards.

While S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., achieved a great success Wednesday with his superb Laddie carnations, C. S. Strout, of Biddeford, Me., was also well represented, as shown by the following list of awards to commercial growers:

One hundred white F. B. Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y., first; C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., second.

One hundred light pink Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., first; Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., second.

One hundred dark pink C. S. Strout, first; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., second.

One hundred red or scarlet, to cover all shades generally included in those colors Springfield Floral Co., first; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., second.

One hundred crimson, to include all shades known as crimson or maroon C. S. Strout, first.

One hundred white, variegated- Curt Thimm, Roslyn, N. Y., first; C. S. Strout, second.

One hundred yellow or yellow variegated C. S. Strout, first.

One hundred Laddie—S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., first; C. S. Strout, second.

Fifty any new variety not in commerce Herman Schwarz, Central Park, L. I., silver medal.

Display of carnations, covering 150 square feet of space and containing not less than 1,000 nor more than 1,500 blooms Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., first.

Sweet Peas.

The awards made to commercial growers for displays of sweet peas were as follows:

One hundred sprays, bicolor M. Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y., first; Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, N. Y., second.

One hundred sprays, white M. Graf, Elmsford, N. Y., first.

One hundred sprays light lavender M. Graf, first.

One hundred sprays pink or salmon M. Matheron, first.

Display of sweet peas covering 100 square feet, arranged for effect W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, first; Herman Mamitsch, second.

Cut Rose Display.

In judging the displays of cut roses exhibited by commercial growers, the quality of bloom, artistic arrangement and general effect were considered. The awards were as follows:

Display of cut roses covering 300 square feet and containing not less than 500 nor more than 1,000 blooms Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., first; F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., second; A. N. Pierson, Inc. Cromwell Conn., third.

Prize-Winning Private Growers.

The following private growers were among the prize-winners, in addition to those mentioned in The Review of March 18: J. W. Smith, gardener for Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn.; George Ferguson, gardener for Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y.; J. Sisley, gardener for Mrs. Paul Moore, Convent Station, N. J.; L. Hubbard, gardener for Spencer Eddy, Manhasset, N. Y.; E. Lawrence, gardener for Mrs. A. Schlact, Saugatuck, Conn.; F. K. Whitehouse, gardener for Mrs. Holbrook, Stamford, Conn.; Charles J. McCormack, gardener for Countess Von Holstein, Edge Hill, Pa.; Frank W. Sargeaunt, gardener for Walter Jennings, Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., and William Kleinheinz, gardener for Jos. E. Widener, Ogontz, Pa.

NEW YORK FLORISTS DINE.

Annual Club Banquet.

The annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Biltmore, Wednesday evening, March 17, was a great success. Those sitting down to tables numbered 472, the largest number ever in attendance at such a function of the club. The party assembled in the reception rooms and proceeded to the grand ballroom, where the dinner was served. After the dinner, the tables were removed from the center of the floor and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

With the exception of short addresses from Park Commissioners Gallatin and Harmon, who were present as guests and spoke of the delight to be obtained from a close association with flowers and plants, there were no formal addresses. President A. M. Henshaw welcomed the guests and acted as toastmaster, a toast being given to President Wilson at the opening of the dinner, followed by the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Appreciation Shown in Silver.

Opportunity was taken at the close of the dinner to present a handsome tea service of solid silver to Philip F. Kessler, in recognition of his services as president of the club last year. William H. Siebrecht, Jr., made the presentation speech in behalf of the club, to which Mr. Kessler replied most feelingly, assuring his fellow members that they could count upon his support and assistance in anything directed toward the good of the club.

There was a large list of invited guests, almost all of whom were visitors from other cities and towns. The dance program included the usual elimination dance and entertainment was furnished by professional singers. J. H. P.

GROWER SEES NEW YORK SHOW.

Roses Stand Out.

When compared with some of the exhibitions held in the Grand Central Palace in pre-war times, the 1920 display in the matter of mere bulk was somewhat inferior to its predecessors. Large-sized material, such as palms, bay trees, tree ferns, azaleas, rhododendrons, acacias, forced deciduous shrubs and stove and greenhouse plants, was far less plentiful. Of azaleas and rhododendrons hardly any were shown and even of French hydrangeas there were few. The rose gardens, groups of flowering plants, bulb gardens and cut flowers of all kinds were remarkably fine. The numerous trade booths were extremely attractive and a whole show in themselves. Cyclamens were few in numbers and poor in quality. Cinerarias of the stellata type were good, but those of the grandiflora type were inferior. Primulas were excellent and some fine schizanthus in tubs, trained specimens, were noted. Orchids were fewer in numbers than usual at New York, due to the superior attractions offered at Boston a week later.

Never were more magnificent groups of roses shown than here. In a close competition the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J., led three competitors with superb vases, finely arranged by A. T. Bunyard, of Columbia, Premier, Russell, Hadley, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Ophelia. A close second was the F. R. Pierson Co., of Tarrytown, N. Y. The vase of Francis Scott Key here was grand, as were Columbia, Beauty, Sylvia, Premier, Russell, Hoosier Beauty and Cecile Brunner. Had this group contained a vase of white roses, decisions might have been reversed. The rose garden of A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn., was beautifully designed and an admiring crowd constantly surrounded it. The one of the F. R. Pierson Co. was a close second. Of the new roses, Mrs. J. H. Dunlop showed up grandly, as did also Mme. Butterfly, Crusader, Premier and others.

Carnation Novelty.

The new carnations of H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., created a sensation with their mammoth Malmaison-like flowers. The originator claims that they are true winter bloomers. They have practically no calyx at all and have an artificial, paper-like appearance. The public were, however, buying them at $5 per plant!

Laddie and Maine Sunshine showed up well among carnations. The latter again demonstrated its remarkable keeping qualities.

The sweet pea display March 19 was a superb one, especially the grand collection from the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia. Mrs. Kerr, a lovely apricot-colored variety, was the center of attraction. Other beautiful sorts were Fairy Queen, Fairy, Lavender King, Albatross, Princess, Zephyr, Glitters and Exquisite.

Out of some delightful table decorations, one by John Canning, of Ophelia roses, Delphinium Belladonna and yellow hardy alyssum, with corsages of forget-me-nots and blue pansies, was especially pleasing. A. T. Bunyard had a fine table, not in competition, in which Prunus triloba, Acacia pubescens, Shirley poppies and Trollius europæus were used. Another table, by Max Schling, of Acacia pubescens and blue pansies, was also much admired.

Private Growers Show Well.

Well worthy of admiration were the fern groups of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, and the F. R. Pierson Co. and the delightful bulb garden of John Scheepers & Co. John Canning, superintendent for Adolph Lewisohn, had fourteen large truck loads of plants and was the heaviest prize winner in the show. His large group of Nemesia Suttonii was an eye-opener to many, and his beautifully arranged group of flowering and foliage plants was finely balanced and showed exquisite taste. Such plants as polyanthus, salpiglossis, Primula malacoides, lilies, acacias, phalænopsis, Oncidium splendidum, rose and richly colored crotons were used.

Worthy of note was the grand collection of camellias in forty-eight varieties from Thomas Proctor, superintendent for W. R. Coe, Oyster Bay, L. One variety, Tutcheria spectabilis, has flowers nine inches across and some beautiful single and double varieties were included. A gold medal was awarded this meritorious collection.

Cymbidiums Led Orchids.

Among the orchids cymbidiums held the place of honor usually occupied by cattleyas. Some beautiful varieties shown by Joseph Manda and others included Beatrice, Mayra, Capella, Castor, Sybil, Sybil alba, Primrose, Wiganianum, Gottianum, Alexandra, Diana and Pollux. Brassocattleya Mavehona, a lovely, pure white variety from the Joseph A. Manda Co., East Orange, N. J., received a gold medal. It was named by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, the word meaning, in Cheyenne Indian language, The Princess. Cattleya Brenda, pure white, and Brassocattleya Leemanniæ were other much admired orchids.

The exhibition was effectively arranged and plants and flowers showed excellent keeping qualities. Considering climatic conditions, difficulties of labor and transportation and other drawbacks, the show was a remarkable one and the crowds of visitors which came in a steadily growing stream as the show advanced made it a pronounced financial success.

W. N. C.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

AT THE NEW YORK SHOW.

An invalid was being wheeled about the exhibition. "If I only had that wheel chair," remarked a member of the fair sex, "I could spend the whole day amid these lovely flowers. Yet how much happier one should feel that one can flit from flower to flower, so to speak, of one's own free will, enjoying to the full extent this wonderful display!"

From a commercial viewpoint it was conceded to be unsurpassed in quality, even if the entrees were not so numerous as heretofore. High culture is the cause and had Old Sol been more sociable, the effect would be hard to calculate.

"Truly an inspiration!" was the opinion of George Burgevin, of Valentin Burgevin's Sons, of Kingston, N. Y., referring to the fine showing of roses and in particular to the vase of the new Canadian rose, Frank W. Dunlop. When one considers the growing season, these roses are remarkable and well worth a special trip alone to see them.

"I wish that our carnations were like this fine collection," said Conrad Gindra, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., while inspecting an exhibit of those flowers. "It is a feast for sore eyes. But I think that ours will be in fine shape for Easter and we expect an excellent business."

"Next to booking an order for one of our boilers," said Fred Lautenschlager, "it is pleasing to hear the encomiums on the Kroeschells already in use."

C. F. Baker, of Utica, N. Y., said that he had never seen finer bulbous stock and was particularly interested in Narcissus Giant Van Waveren, extolling its beauties with many adjectives and saying that he was going to be the first to introduce it to the people of Utica.

John Lawrance, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., was among those from out in New York state who felt fully repaid for the trip and said that he is having the best business he ever had and his stock for Easter is in excellent shape.

"Atlantic City is a veritable bonanza for the florist," said W. Edwards, of the Edwards Floral Hall Co., of that city, who was recently appointed state representative of the F. T. D. for the state of New Jersey.

"We are determined that Montreal shall have an international flower show in the early future," said W. Hall, of Hall & Robinson, of that city. He also said that a finer collection of Dutch bulbous stock could hardly be accumulated, but he thought that they should be staged at about eighteen inches from the floor instead of thirty-six inches, as they were, because he thought that the effect would be much better, as the plants should be looked down upon and not through.

F. X. Dienst, of Middletown, N. Y., observed that when one fails to receive a single reply to a Help Ad in The Review it shows the condition of the labor market as applied to greenhouse work.

The gem of sweet peas, as seen from a commercial point, is a sport of Rose Queen, grown and exhibited by Herman Marmitsch, of Rockville Center, L. I., who said that it has been constantly in bloom since January 1 and is now in full crop, with an average stem of twenty-two inches. It carries more than the usual number of blooms and the wholesale price has been $12 per hundred, which is evidence of its popularity. Having but a small stock, it is proposed by Mr. Marmitsch to cross-fertilize it, hoping to obtain a distinct variety on the order of the Spencer type, except that this will be far superior to that well known type.

Fred C. W. Brown, manager of the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., has declined the pressing invitations of his host of admirers to be a candidate for the presidency of the S. A. F., giving the reason of a full list of local engagements absorbing the little time that he has to spare.

J. D. Eisele, president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., noticing a hive of bees working in a transparent glass hive, said that it illustrated the condition of things both at Riverton, N. J., and at the seed store.

Henry F. Michell, of the H. F. Michell Co., almost missed an important engagement by tarrying at an exhibition of seed novelties and other similar exhibits.

Commenting upon the loss of an overcoat, Prof. E. A. White, secretary of the American Rose Society, was not so concerned regarding its intrinsic value as the associations connected with it. It was suggested that perhaps the purloiner was anxious to secure a memento of the professor.

Fred J. Mead, of concrete bench fame, was in a quandary regarding the selection of a boiler for his factory when a copy of The Review came to his hands and contained the exact thing that he wanted. He said that he saved about $1,400 on the deal. W. M.

ROSE SOCIETY MEETING

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

President Pyle Presents Problems.

At the annual meeting of the American Rose Society Tuesday afternoon, March 16, at the Grand Central Palace, New York, Robert Pyle, the president of the society, presented in his address a stirring survey of the society's accomplishments last year and its tasks for the next twelve months. The report of Henry O. May, the treasurer, showed a good balance.

The election, as indicated in the brief telegraphic report of the meeting in The Review of March 18, resulted in the continuance in office of all the old officers, as follows:

President—Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.

Vice-president—F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

Secretary—E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y.

Treasurer—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

The members of the executive committee elected are: J. A. Curry, of Portland, Ore.; S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.

The services of John Cook, of Baltimore, Md., and Dr. Van Fleet, of Washington, D. C., as hybridizers were recognized by their election as honorary members of the society.

Next June the Hubbard medal will be presented to E. Gurney Hill, of Richmond, Ind., the presentation being postponed from this meeting in order that he might receive it in person.

President's Address.

President Pyle's address follows:

"The business of the American Rose Society is not to promote the interests of any one section or separate group of people. Our business is broader than that. It is to promote the interest in roses for all the people.

"We aim to develop the rose and the use of the rose in order to help carry to every corner of our continent its message to mortals.

"We do not participate in rose growing because we love to do battle with fungoids and parasites, but rather because of what the rose means to us and what we aim that it shall mean to others. We would eliminate missteps by illuminating the pathway to success in the rose garden.

"By inducing and helping more men to know and grow their own roses, we would teach them to know the language of the rose and grow more devoted to this recreation and pleasure which 'age cannot wither.'

"In reporting to you of last year's business and of the present condition of the American Rose Society, I feel an embarrassment of riches. It is not easy to select that which would prove of greatest interest. May I not, however, present what seems to me to be the fundamental facts in the case, as we look forward to another year of progress? What is our present foundation and what our vision of the future?

Achievements.

"First—The American Rose Society has a growing and representative membership, both amateur and professional, exceeding 1,700 in number and representing all parts of the United States and much of the rest of the world. The work of the society is conducted by a group of unselfish rosarians, whose loyalty and ability have been abundantly proved.

"Second—Carefully planned rose test gardens have been established under the oversight of the American Rose Society in Washington, in coöperation with the Department of Agriculture; at Ithaca, N. Y., with Cornell University, and in coöperation with the park departments of Hartford, Conn., St. Paul, Minn., and Portland Ore. These test gardens are each under the direct charge of a local committee appointed by the American Rose Society.

"Third—There exists the beginning of a system of affiliated local rose societies, each holding meetings and arranging lectures and shows to arouse wider and more intelligent interest in roses among all types of people. These organizations profit in the way of literature, prizes and supervision by affiliation with the American Rose Society.

"Fourth—A great inducement to membership in the American Rose Society is the privilege, not otherwise obtainable, of receiving the American Rose Annual, edited by J. Horace McFarland. This yearly volume is a noteworthy permanent record of rose progress and rose thoughts.

"Thus, with a capable and enthusiastic personnel, with established rose test facilities for every important climatic zone of America, with a developing equipment for promoting local organized rose efforts, with the Rose Annual providing the collection and distribution of up-to-date rose information, it is apparent that the American Rose Society is ready to serve adequately in promoting a great rose advance.

Aims.

"Now, what is our rose vision for America?

"Millions of homes throughout this land have not yet sensed real rose joy. Upon us rests the duty of stimulating in them the love of roses. Indeed, with the encouraging example of England, we now know we can and must nationalize the love for roses.

"To realize this vision, personal effort is necessary. Therefore, on behalf of the executive officers, I urge every member to work for the accomplishment of the following definite aims:

"First, that in every American city with an active park department, there should be established a public rose garden. Inform the society if your town is interested.

"Second, that in 1920 we should at least treble the number of local rose societies and promote the holding in that year at least of ten times as many local rose shows as have heretofore been held. If ten people in your community are interested, please write our secretary for suggestions.

"Third, that we should provide means to increase largely the prizes and honoraria available for hybridizers of worthy roses or for any one making a noteworthy contribution to the cause of the rose in America. Rose lovers with available funds for this purpose are urged to consult officers of this society in reference to plans already formed in this direction.

"Fourth, and most important, that we should at least double our membership within the next year. Every member would profit by such increase, for increased income will make possible the needed publication of an authoritative American rose manual and of a complete American rose catalogue.

"Will you not help to realize this vision for American rose prosperity by inviting to membership your friends who ought to be interested?"

Treasurer's Report.

The report of Henry O. May, the treasurer of the society, for the year ending March 15, 1920, was as follows:

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

The Autumn Show.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society held at the international flower show in the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 19, it was decided to hold the autumn show in New York during September at one of the centrally located hotels and to charge exhibitors a reasonable price for floor space and also to charge for admission, to help defray the expenses.

The meeting was attended by growers from many states and considerable space was taken by those present at the meeting and a substantial guarantee fund was started.

The plan is to give the greatest dahlia show ever held and work to that end has already been started and will be prosecuted vigorously and continuously until show time. Every dahlia grower and lover of this popular flower is invited to coöperate.

President Vincent moved that Prof. George Fraser, of the Connecticut State Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn., be tendered the thanks of the society for the excellent manner in which the trial grounds were conducted last year. He was made a life member of the society.

Trial Grounds to Be Larger.

The trial grounds will be continued and will be larger and better than ever. Tubers for the trial gardens should be properly labeled with the name of the variety and the exhibitor and sent to Prof. Fraser. Last year there were many visitors throughout the season and, as the trial grounds are recognized as a permanent institution, there will be more visitors this year than ever.

James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y., moved that a new scale of points be made, so that good exhibition varieties and varieties good for cut flowers would be given an equal chance. The motion was carried.

A motion was passed protesting the quarantine of the states of Illinois and Michigan against dahlia tubers and bulbs.

Let dahlia growers everywhere, amateurs as well as professionals, begin now in the effort to make this the greatest exhibition of any single flower ever held. Edward C. Vick, Sec'y.

GARDENERS GATHER

GARDENERS GET TOGETHER.

For Conference in New York.

A conference of gardeners under the auspices of the National Association of Gardeners was held March 18 in the Engineering building, New York city. Robert Weeks, of Cleveland, ex-president of the association, presided. The conference was called to give the members an opportunity to discuss the aims of the association and the operations of the service bureau and to formulate plans for a campaign to interest young men in the profession of gardening.

W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., presented a communication from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, directing attention to Quarantine No. 37 and its detriment to horticultural progress in the United States, and asked that a delegate be appointed to represent the organization officially at a meeting to be held during the month of May, at which various horticultural interests are to be represented. The association voted to be represented at this meeting.

Following the meeting of the association, a statement was issued to the New York papers by an unidentified source, evidently with malicious intent, to the effect that the association had gone on record as being in favor of the exclusion act, preventing the importation of plants. This, of course, is an untruth, as the National Association of Gardeners, from the first, has been strongly opposed to Quarantine No. 37 and the discrimination now practiced by the Federal Horticultural Board in favoring those who have been friendly to it, while discriminating against those who have had courage to express their views regarding the injustice of this measure, is not weakening the opposition to it of the professional gardeners.

Service Bureau Commended.

The workings and immediate future plans of the service bureau were explained and generally discussed by the members from the floor, following which discussion a motion was carried heartily endorsing what has been accomplished by this department of the association.

Alexander Michie, chairman of the service bureau publicity fund, made a strong appeal for greater support of this fund by the members, so that the work which had been planned might be carried out. His appeal met with immediate response among many of those present, who came forward after the meeting to subscribe to the fund.

The discussion regarding the possibility of interesting young men in the profession of gardening drew forth optimistic expressions from most of those who spoke on the subject, while a few were rather pessimistic in their views of the success of bringing young men into the gardening profession while other vocations appear to be so much more lucrative. It was believed, however, by all present that the gardening profession is confronted by a serious problem at the present time, due to the inability to secure young men as assistants. It cannot look forward, as in the past, to Europe to supply them, for among the young men of the profession who entered the war the sacrifice of life was heavy.

The relation between the employer and the gardener came in for considerable discussion, with opinions about equally divided as to who was to blame for the lack of confidence existing between them.

Recruiting for Gardeners.

At an executive meeting of the trustees and directors of the association earlier in the day, at which W. N. Craig, of Massachusetts; Robert Weeks, of Ohio; George W. Hess, of Washington, D. C.; John Barnet, of Pennsylvania; Robert Williamson, of Connecticut; Joseph Tansey, James Stuart and Daniel Coughlin, of New York, and Arthur Smith and M. C. Ebel, of New Jersey, were present, the recommendation of the last convention that the 1920 annual meeting be held in St. Louis was favorably acted upon. The secretary was authorized, in conjunction with the committee appointed at the last convention, to develop plans immediately to bring to the attention of young men who may be interested the advantages offered by the position of gardener.

A communication was received from President L. P. Jensen, of St. Louis, regretting his inability to attend the meeting and the conference, owing to the new development work which he has just undertaken in connection with his position, and containing a number of recommendations which were acted upon by the executive board. President Jensen wrote that he would be glad to receive from officers and members of the association suggestions concerning its welfare and that of the profession which it represents.

March 17 W. N. Craig appeared before the Garden Club of America at its annual meeting at the Colony Club, New York city, and addressed a large audience of its members on "The Professional Gardener from His Viewpoint." Mr. Craig ably presented the cause of the professional gardener and, judging by the hearty reception his remarks received, his views met with the endorsement of those who listened to him. Mr. Craig also spoke of the iniquities of Quarantine No. 37 in a way which met with general approval, the Garden Club of America unanimously passing a resolution as opposed to the measure.

BRITISH NOVELTIES OF 1919.

Summarizing the floricultural achievements of 1919, a British review of introductions of new varieties of roses during last year states:

"The list of novelties for last year is not so long as usual, but this is scarcely to be wondered at when we consider the cumulative effects of five years of war, with labor shortage, coal on ration and all the other troubles which we hope are now behind us. What one does wonder at is the pluck and perseverance of the raisers, who, after surmounting all the difficulties of raising and growing their favorites, succeeded also in overcoming the obstacles put in their way by the carrying companies and got them up to the Royal Horticultural Society in show form. May no one grudge them the reward they richly merit.

"Rose raisers, though badly handicapped by the weather, scored a long list of awards from the National Rose Society, including nine gold medals. This number was considered excessive by many, but this matter has perhaps been sufficiently argued and may be allowed to rest. From the commercial standpoint one of the most important of the medal roses is Victory (McGredy), which is likely to oust Richmond from its present position as a forcing rose in the market. Of the others we were much struck by Mrs. Henry Morse (McGredy), which should become rapidly popular from its many merits. Mrs. Chas. Lamplough is a yellow which should be a stand-by for the exhibitor; Clara Curtis is another yellow by the same raiser, which should be good for show or garden, while yet a third in this popular color is Independence Day (Bees, Ltd.), a charming garden variety.

"In whites, Mrs. R. S. Darlington (McGredy) is promising, being an improvement on Mrs. Foley Hobbs. Mrs. C. V. Haworth (Alex. Dickson) was the best of the mixed yellow and pink tints, of which we have now a fair number.

"None of the crimsons, except Victory, got into the gold medal class, but several were worthy of note. To our mind Prince of Wales (W. Easlea) was about the most promising; Firebrand (Alex. Dickson) was also a big flower of good color, and Capt. Reid, by the same raisers, had scent in addition to other merits.

"Seafoam (W. Paul), a bracteata hybrid, took the Royal Horticultural Society award, and though not possessing much form, is so profuse that it ought to make a garden rose."

ROSE CULTURE.

Last fall I dug out about 600 rose plants from the field and placed them in a hotframe in the ground, in a temperature of about 50 degrees at night. In December I potted them and grew them in a temperature of about 45 degrees, then put them in a temperature of 60 degrees at night. A few of them have buds; almost all of them have come blind. Can you tell me the cause of this? I have cut the blind shoots back to two eyes and placed them under the bench. Do you think this cutting back will cause them to be in bloom by May 10? How long does it take for a rose to bloom after the bud has been taken off? A. F. C.—O.

Your treatment of roses has not been at all correct. The plants should have been left outdoors until they had been exposed to several good freezings, then dug up and heeled together closely in a coldframe. As soon as the Christmas plants are out of the way, it is customary to pot the roses, placing them in a cool house first. You made a great mistake in placing your plants "in a hotframe in the ground, in a temperature of about 50 degrees at night." That was 20 degrees too warm; the freezing point or a little lower would have been better. I do not know whether you are growing ramblers or bush roses. If the former, only dead and weak wood should be removed and the canes bent around stakes to make them break more evenly. If they are hybrid perpetuals, much harder pruning is needed. With baby ramblers, cut the growths back half their length.

Roses started in January will bloom as early as the middle of March and almost any kind can be had for Easter, April 4. For May 10, dormant plants cut back, started at 45 to 50 degrees and later advanced to 60 degrees, will be on time. C. W.

Board of Directors Meets.

In response to the call issued by the president, a meeting of the board of directors was held in New York Thursday, March 18, at which time Mrs. Charles Totty was elected chairman for 1920.

The matter of fixing the amount of the bond for the secretary and treasurer, in accordance with the action of the society at the meeting held in Detroit, was left to the board of directors. They have fixed the secretary's bond at $500 and that of the treasurer at $1,000.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

AN OLD VARIETY.

In a recent issue of The Review there was an inquiry as to a salvia-like plant with foliage that has the odor of pineapple.

No doubt the name of this is Salvia rutilans, an old inhabitant of gardens. The writer grew it forty years ago. This plant may be obtained at times in gardens. A short time ago we sent to England for plants, part of which were given to Fritz Bahr, of Highland Park, Ill., who valued it highly for window boxes. He may be able to supply plants now. E. O. Orpet.

DANGER IN FORMALDEHYDE.

I have had an experience with formaldehyde which may be of some benefit to the readers of The Review. My advice is never to use it to sterilize soil or sand, as it is sure death to plants or cuttings placed in them.

I sterilized some sand in my propagating bench with a solution of one to fifty; that is, one part of formaldehyde and fifty parts of water. I put 600 coleus cuttings in the bench and in forty-eight hours all had turned black. I watered a few in pots and they also turned black. It seemed to burn the root system of the latter and then moved up the main stem until the plant was dead. Live steam is much better than any other sterilizer that I have ever found, although it is the most trouble. D. E. Whitson.

EXTRA PAY FOR EXTRA WORK.

From a perusal of the help wanted columns in the various horticultural journals, it appears to be becoming a general custom to state that extra pay is given for Sunday work and overtime.

This custom has been a long time in arriving. It should be the rule in all places. There is no other business or trade where a man is expected to devote a full Sunday every two or three weeks without any remuneration. The weekly wages for six days in the florists' business do not, in most cases, compare favorably with those of skilled workers in other lines.

Prices of stock have been higher than formerly for a long time and should remain at a point that will allow the workers that which is reasonably due to them. E. E. Randall.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Lack of Cash Limits Space.

At a meeting of the publicity committee held in New York March 18, the committee gave instructions that arrangements be made to cover magazine advertising until September, to the extent of $20,000. This was an amount much less than it was anticipated could be spent, as funds have not come in as the committee had a right to expect they should. It was believed, however, that the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," could be maintained, special flower days taken care of and impetus given to regular daily business by the proper use of the money. They had hoped to have twice as much available at this season and they would have had it had the large army of nonsubscribers responded to the appeals constantly made to them.

There was a large attendance of the trade at the flower show held in New York. During the week the publicity committee held its meeting. The campaign work was the subject of conversation among many groups gathered at different times in the Grand Central Palace and it was generally agreed that it was wrong to call one who had subscribed to the publicity fund a contributor, but he should be called an investor, because his subscription was an investment rather than a contribution. All were greatly pleased at the results of the campaign and expressed themselves as willing to go the limit in their support.

Phonograph Record.

The Von Tilzer song, "Say It with Flowers," is now, we are informed, to be recorded on a phonograph record by one of the big companies. Judging from its reception everywhere as a vocal number, the sale for it as a record should be large and the publicity for the slogan immense and lasting. This is only one of the sources for publicity of a valuable sort which the committee has been able to promote and which costs us practically nothing.

Have you thought anything of our billboard proposition yet? Spring is here and the ground is being opened everywhere. If you are on a good highway, the never-ending line of travel past your establishment will soon begin and a billboard properly displayed would add to our publicity and, incidentally, identify you as an up-to-date florist. About 100 signs have already been placed and there are more to go out. The cost of a sign is $50 and it is well worth the money if used only to hide a bit of unsightliness.

Send In a Pledge.

But don't forget your subscription to the fund—your investment. The magazines will have to limit the space available for advertising in their fall numbers unless the paper supply situation changes materially for the better. It is not too soon to contract for October, November and even December issues, but how can contracts be made unless the money to pay for them is in sight? If those whose purses are not easy just now will send in a pledge, with payment at a certain time specified, they will provide encouragement for the committee and plans can be worked out, but we have no right to expect them to assume liabilities without a prospect of meeting them.

Why not send in your subscription, or pledge, at once? You will feel better for having done so.

John Young, Sec'y.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE MEETS.

New Bureau Formed.

A meeting of the publicity committee was held at the offices of the S. A. F., in New York, Thursday afternoon, March 18, at which were present Chairman Henry Penn, of Boston, Mass.; George Asmus, Chicago, Ill.; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; H. V. Swenson, Chicago, and Secretary John Young, New York.

The secretary presented a report showing in detail the fund available for the use of the committee. Major O'Keefe submitted copy for a broadside, which, meeting the approval of the committee, he was authorized to send out.

Appropriate $20,000.

Mr. Asmus moved, and the motion was seconded by Mr. Ammann, that the sum of $20,000 be appropriated for advertising in the magazines during the period ending with September. A vote was taken on the motion and it was carried unanimously.

The matter of having an audit of the books of the campaign made at the same time as the audit of the treasurer's books coming under discussion, on motion of Mr. Pierson, seconded by Mr. Ammann, it was directed that the books be sent to an auditor in the convention city, at convention time, and the finance committee was instructed to make the necessary arrangements.

Service Bureau.

H. V. Swenson explained a proposition he had made to handle all the dealers' helps used in the campaign from his office in Chicago, including the stickers, posters and folders for Mothers' day. After some discussion, Mr. Ammann moved that Mr. Swenson's proposition be accepted; that the promotion bureau stock be turned over to Mr. Swenson, at his Chicago office, and that he should render to the secretary promptly each week an account of all sales made; that the secretary or other authorized person have access to sales records at any time for the purpose of checking accounts; that Mr. Swenson shall also submit, at the annual meeting of the publicity committee, a regularly audited report in detail covering sales and royalties due for the year's work; that on the twentieth day of each month Mr. Swenson shall forward to the secretary's office all money collected on account of sales; that a committee of three be appointed to draw up a contract with Mr. Swenson on the terms arranged. The motion was seconded by Mr. Pierson and carried. It was also arranged that Mr. Swenson should handle this business under the name of the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., and that all checks be made payable to the bureau.

THE GLADIOLUS

KIRCHHOFF'S NEW GLADIOLI.

The entire stocks of three gladioli originated by W. E. Kirchhoff, Sr., have been bought by his son, Arthur A. Kirchhoff, Pembroke, N. Y., who will distribute them this year. The varieties are General Pershing, Prof. A. C. Beal and Gloxinia.

Particular stress is laid on the high qualities of General Pershing. Mr. Kirchhoff has already offered a silver and a bronze medal for the American Gladiolus Society's show in August for the best six spikes of General Pershing grown by professionals and has also offered prizes for a similar amateur class.

Gladiolus General Pershing is described by Mr. Kirchhoff as having large flowers, larger than those of Mrs. Francis King. "The flowers," he says, "are borne on a tall and erect spike, with three to four open at one time. There are anywhere from fifteen to twenty-four buds on a spike. This variety stands the heat of the sun and is also a good one to stand transportation. The upper parts are pale pink and the lower petals are yellow, striped and stippled with rich carmine."

GLADIOLI IN UTAH.

"Horticulturists of this country owe to Alex H. Oblad, of Salt Lake City, Utah, the success of gladiolus culture in the state of Utah," states Bailey & Sons Co., of Salt Lake City. "Mr. Oblad, after experimenting a number of years in the culture of gladioli in his small back yard, gained confidence that the industry could be operated successfully in Utah soil and climate. Several years ago he secured a few acres of choice land and started extensively growing the bulbs. For the last three years Mr. Oblad has supplied the trade with blooms of exceedingly high quality."

TATE'S TIPS

PUSHING THE SLOGAN.

Is Educating the Public.

That local coöperative advertising in conjunction with the national advertising campaign is fast becoming a fact is demonstrated by the recent activities of St. Louis, Chicago, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Baltimore. Cincinnati has a regular organized campaign in which most of the growers and retailers are banded together. By the percentage plan—that is, the growers pledging one-half of one per cent on all the stock they sell and the retailer one per cent on his purchases—a total of one and one-half per cent is obtained on all stock that is sold to the local market. This is the most equitable way to collect for this worthy cause, as every one is assessed according to the amount of business he transacts.

I do not understand how anyone could fail to join in such a plan when it is for the good of the entire trade, but, of course, there are in every city men who will find some fault with such a plan. My advice to the florists in such a city would be to go ahead without them; they will be marked men in a short time and will be only too glad to get in. There is no doubt that the best business men in the cities referred to above are linked up with the scheme. Get your campaign under way and in a short time you will have no trouble in getting 100 per cent of those who will be benefited by your campaign.

Dreams Realized.

Let us look for a moment at what local advertising means. It is not the business you already have in your particular locality that you should be so much interested in, as in the business which you have not. This country has a population of something like 100,000,000. Of this number it is safe to say that not over ten to fifteen per cent are flower buyers, or in any way interested in flowers. If this small percentage could be augmented to fifty per cent, can you not see how the business in flowers all over the country would be increased? This would mean that business would be from thirty-five to forty per cent greater than it is today. Some people will say that this is the assertion of a dreamer. To those I would reply that not over twenty-five years ago, when we saw the first automobiles, many of us looked upon them as the dream of some fanatics, which would never be realized. Today they are not a dream, but to the pedestrian in our crowded streets they are more of a nightmare. Let any man who has been successful in the florists' business look back over his career and see if it has not been more or less of a dream come true.

The advertising of flowers is anything but a dream. It is not a theory; it is conveying to the public a confidence in that which you grow. Advertising is not a game of chance, because you get out of it just in proportion to what you put in it. The best advertising agencies will tell you that if you have the right product there is no question about success. Has anyone who reads this article ever heard of the florists' product being questioned? I want to call your attention to one of the lowliest articles in existence at one time, the groundnut. Many times we have paid our nickel for a quart of this nut in the gallery of some theater or at the circus. Did any of us ever expect to see it as it is today, served on banquet tables, in the best confectioners' shops, put up in glass jars and made into peanut butter? I can remember the time when they were fed to the hogs. This is a victory for advertising.

New Uses for Flowers.

We are advertising the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Did we ever stop to think that the public is often unconsciously "Saying It with Flowers"? For instance, there is in Harrisburg, Pa., an office building, ten stories high and covering about half of a city block. Every window in this immense building has a window box. One of the things the national committee is endeavoring to do is to create new uses for flowers; surely here is at least a prospect. Is it too much to imagine that the time will come when architects will provide window boxes for the great office buildings they plan and let the tenants provide the plants? Think of what an education this would be to the public alone. We have merely scratched the surface as to the ways that flowers can be used.

I went into a lunch room recently in one of the busiest commercial districts of a large city at a time when flowers were extremely scarce. It was opening day and there were baskets, horseshoes and bunches of flowers in every nook and corner. As I looked at this sight, I could not but feel that the proprietor realized the advantage of "Say It with Flowers."

The florists have the product. Educate the public and organize every city and town in the country, not to advertise any individual, but to push the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Remember how small one-half or one per cent of your receipts is for this purpose and, at the same time, stand by the national committee. There will then be no danger of the future of the florists' business. Tate.

SHRINERS GOING WEST.

If you are going west next June to attend the greatest of all Imperial Council sessions, or, in other words, if you are going to attend the convention of the A. O. N. M. S. at Portland, Ore., in June, 1920, the Portland Floral Society wants you to register with James Forbes, 354 Washington street, state vice-president of the S. A. F., as soon as convenient, and the society will do the rest.

The city will be taxed to its utmost capacity to care for the "caravans," but the florists intend to see that visiting tradesmen are taken care of and properly conducted to the greatest and most flourishing spots in the oasis of Portland. And it will be some oasis!

F. A. Van Kirk, Sec'y,
Portland Floral Society.

OVER THE PEAK

HIGH PRICES PASSING.

Financial Critic's View.

Indicating to florists the trend of general business conditions that will duly affect the trade, the conclusions of one surveying the nation's activities in a critical way are of importance, inasmuch as they tell of a point reached that all have been watching for. The following is written by the financial editor of the Chicago Tribune, the largest newspaper in the middle west:

"The corrective influence of higher interest rates, which first asserted itself in the stock market a few months ago when liquidation began and a lower trend of prices followed, may now be distinctly recorded as having reached mercantile activity. There is a definite slowing up. The riotous giving of orders, without regard to prices or other limitations upon manufacturers, has halted, a condition that will soon be set forth in formal trade reports. It may now be asserted with reasonable accuracy that the peak of high prices in mercantile lines has been about reached and that recession is on the way.

"It is the experience at the banks that merchant borrowers have become uncertain over the outlook, are seeking counsel as to the prudent course to follow, and are being told that new conditions in the foreign trade situation must be recognized, that to try to continue business on the inflated war basis will not only prove expensive in interest rates during enforced prolongation, but ultimate losses must follow.

Situation Has Changed.

"As late as six weeks ago the average mercantile borrower was not looking for advice; he felt confident of his position because anything placed on his counters met a ready sale. Within the last thirty days this has changed.

"The caution in the matter of new buying being exercised by retailers is felt by manufacturers in reduced orders and a discontinuance of the policy of what may be designated as open orders. Until a short time ago the retail merchant was obliged to buy, not at current quotations, but at such quotations as might obtain at the time of delivery of the goods, three or six months forward. That policy on the part of manufacturers was dictated by the era of advancing prices. He proposed to be able to profit by the higher price that might be expected to have been attained by the time the goods were ready for the buyer.

"But now the manufacturer cannot secure such orders. He must accept today's prices for future delivery and for a smaller volume of goods. This, it may be expected, will result in accumulations of manufactured stocks and competition to dispose of them at price concessions.

"The banks express satisfaction at the manner in which their counsel favoring retrenchment is received. And even if such counsel were not regarded with favor the pressure of interest rates would in time effect the result desired.

"The large local institutions dealing with credit in the middle west feel convinced that the high price era is passing, that demands have started to approximate normal and a more wholesome condition is being established."

HERE'S SOMETHING NEW

BULB DEALER BOOSTS FOR YOU.

Publicity for the Lily of Easter.

Here's a new use for publicity, one that is in the interest of the trade as a body, but the cost is being met by only one concern.

The American Bulb Co., Chicago, has arranged for an advertisement of approximately half a page in the Sunday Tribune of March 27 to advertise lilies: "Your florist will help you select a perfect potted plant, or a bouquet of cut lily blooms." It is in line with the cooperative publicity for flowers being conducted by the associated florists of many cities, but is in the interest of the one flower in which the concern that pays the bill is specially interested.

What the Advertisement Says.

The advertisement is well written and illustrated. The cuts show a basket of lily bulbs, a field of lilies in Japan, a cleaning and grading scene with President Miller watching the work, and a pot of well bloomed lilies. The text will be as follows:

THE ROMANCE OF YOUR EASTER LILY.

On Easter morning it greets you—the most majestic of flowers. A slender stem arising from warm, brown earth. Leaves of tender green, delicately curved and pointed. The dewy blossom—a cup of pearl filled with gold.

It greets you on Easter morning—the lily—for five years nourished and cultivated in preparation for this hour!

Asleep in a round, brown bulb, you would first find your lily plant. In Japan, where flowers fill the fields and cover the hillsides, the lily bulbs are propagated. It requires from three to five years for them to mature, and each year they must be transferred to new soil. When developed to flowering size, the bulbs are packed in moist, sterilized earth and started on their journey across the Pacific.

In early fall your bulb arrives at San Francisco or Seattle, or New York by way of Panama canal, and is shipped in a refrigerator car to the florist. The temperature of the car must be kept low to prevent premature sprouting. No food for your table is handled more carefully. Before we sit down to the Thanksgiving feast the lilies for Easter have been planted, one brown bulb in each round pot.

Then comes a season of greatest vigilance. During the first three weeks the temperature of the greenhouse is kept low, but when the green sprouts rise to eight inches in height the temperature is increased to 70 or 80 degrees. This is summer heat, and must be preserved all through the long winter—through storms of driven snow and shortages of coal. The florist becomes guardian of your treasure.

Five months are required for the Easter lily to emerge from the bulb. In the late winter the plants must be closely watched to keep the buds from spreading their petals too quickly. Each plant must be held back or hastened forward, so that it will open, in full radiance, not a day too soon nor a day too late, but exactly on Easter morn.

The American Bulb Co., through the efforts of its president, Mr. A. Miller, who made a personal journey to Japan, has brought to America two-thirds of the great Japanese bulb crop. These bulbs are now in American greenhouses. American florists, this Easter, will offer the largest and most magnificent displays of Easter lilies ever grown.

Can it really be Easter in your home without the Easter flower? And at this season of glad rejoicing, when your heart turns in devoted remembrance to those you love, could you send a more welcome token than the Easter lily? Is there any offering that could better carry the Easter spirit into the sick room?

Your florist will help you choose a perfect potted plant for your own home, or a bouquet of cut lily blooms mingled with other flowers suggestive of the season.

Talk to your florist today that he may personally select the choicest blooms for your particular order.

Say It with Flowers.

The advertisement is to be signed "Contributed to the Publicity Campaign of the Allied Florists' Association of Illinois by the American Bulb Co."

A Real Boost.

Not only is it a real boost, occupying so large a space in a newspaper of over 750,000 circulation, but it will cost real money. The advertisement occupies 250 agate lines on four columns, a total of 1,000 lines. The Tribune's Sunday rate is 80 cents per agate line—60 cents to contract advertisers like the Allied Florists' Association—in addition to which is the cost of writing, photographs, drawing and cuts, also of a large number of proofs which are being mailed to florists with the good suggestion that they paste them in their windows next week.

It is a unique stunt, costly, but sure to be a big influence in helping turn the trade's big stock of lilies into cash next week.

It is figured good lilies should retail this Easter for 75 cents per flower and bud.

GALVIN'S NEW OFFICERS.

At the recent annual meeting of the directors of the Thomas F. Galvin corporation, Charles F. Boyle was elected president and general manager. Mr. Boyle has been connected with the firm for over twenty-two years, ten of which were spent as manager at 799 Boylston street, Boston. The last three he has been general manager of the firm's two Boston stores and also its New York store.

James J. Slattery, for over twenty years with the firm and recently manager of sales, becomes assistant general manager and is in charge of the store at 1 Park street, Boston. Both men are prominent in the trade and have been conspicuous in placing the firm in its high position among retail concerns in this country.

John R. McDonough advances to a manager's berth at the Boylston street store. The New York store continues under the able direction of R. A. Hale. Both are younger men, full of enthusiasm and with promising careers at their bidding.

The firm's business has increased, Mr. Boyle states, by leaps and bounds during the last year. With an energetic staff working hard for success, the firm has a high position in the flower world, where for seventy-three years its leadership has brought international fame.

Emporia, Kan.—O. G. Rindom, who was formerly manager of a real estate firm in Wichita, Kan., has taken charge of the Riverside Gardens.

C. H. A. CORNER

CANADIANS ARE ACTIVE.

Coming Events Are Important.

The arrangements for the executive meeting of the Canadian Horticultural Association to be held at Hamilton, Ont., April 12 and 13, are nearly completed and the local committees are making a final effort to cope with the many details of the comprehensive program.

Besides making all arrangements for the business end of the convention, the educational committee will take another step and an effort will be made to form a permanent council of horticulture, whose duty it will be to carry propositions for training schools, botanical gardens, etc., to the proper sources.

In connection with this work, a representative of one of the great American universities is expected to address a meeting which will take the form of a banquet. Plant registration will also receive attention, a permanent committee being appointed to look after this important feature.

There is much favorable comment on the general activities of the C. H. A., not the least of which is its coöperation with the F. T. D. in securing a clearing house in Canada, thus allowing American bills to be paid in Canada with Canadian currency. This is admittedly a great benefit to all retailers and both the F. T. D. and the C. H. A. are to be congratulated on the spirit of real coöperation shown.

Convention in August.

Two days of solid work will be necessary to complete the arrangements for what will undoubtedly be the greatest Canadian convention of all time. A record attendance is assured and it is especially gratifying to learn of the success attending the efforts of the officials to increase the membership. At this early date the membership list has been doubled and names are recorded from coast to coast, with many from the United States.

This convention, which will take place in Hamilton, August 10 to 13, will be of great interest to everyone connected with the trade and it is not too early to urge our American brothers to try to attend. Hamilton will exert itself to the utmost to pleasantly surprise you and will assuredly welcome you heartily.

H. E. Groves.

SPRING CHEER.

Just when a few warm days at the entrance of spring had stirred everybody in the uncanny way that early spring atmosphere does, the Allied Florists' Association took advantage of the opportunity to present to Chicagoans the advertisement, "Growing Plants for the Home," which is reproduced on this page. Catalogues from seed stores were just getting into circulation and the thoughts of the public were on their gardens. So the suggestion to anticipate the enjoyment of outdoor growth later by purchasing a plant for the home now came at a most opportune time. The advertisement occupied double-column space, seven inches deep, in the Chicago American, an evening paper, March 22, and in the Chicago Tribune next morning, March 23.

The Market.

The market remains unchanged and conditions are about the same as they have been for the last fortnight. Several funerals, one large wedding and the spring opening of many of the large department stores, requiring decorations, kept the demand at normal.

Various Notes.

William A. Clarke, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., spent Monday, March 15, at Bakerstown, Pa., looking over the range and inspecting the stock for Easter. Miss Alma Abiatti, of this firm, has returned to the offices after a several weeks' siege of the flu.

Manager Harry Gibson and S. J. Frampton, salesman, of the Sieger Floral Co., are again at the store after attacks of the grip. This firm had to work all night on two occasions last week for the floral pieces for a large funeral and the Whitworth-Lathwood church wedding, at Kittanning, Pa., Saturday, March 20. Columbia roses and cibotium ferns chiefly composed the wedding decorations at both the church and the home. The table centerpiece was fashioned in spring flowers in the Dresden shades.

Miss Margaret Baldinger, of the Ludwig Floral Co., is still confined to her home with stomach trouble. Miss Mary Bratner, order clerk for the same firm, is also on the sick list, being afflicted with the grip. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Ludwig have returned from an eastern trip. They were at the New York flower show.

J. E. Brown, of Vandergrift, Pa., was in the city last week combining business with social calls on his friends in the trade.

W. Jarvis Smith, treasurer of the A. W. Smith Co. and superintendent of the range at Canfield, O., spent last week in New York, attending the flower show and purchasing evergreen trees for the landscape department.

The McCallum Co. made two large displays last week, one for the New York show and one for the Michigan State Florists' Association convention, at Lansing, Mich. The latter was supervised by Edward J. McCallum, William T. Usinger, salesman for the north central district, and Henry L. Blind, manager of the Detroit branch. Samuel Seligman and T. J. Nolan were in charge of the New York display. Mr. Seligman recently opened a display room for the firm at 239 Fourth avenue, New York. Mr. McCallum returned to Pittsburgh after a tour of inspection of the branches in Detroit, Cleveland and Cincinnati.

A large motor truck has been added to the delivery service of G. P. Weaklen & Co.

Mr. Koenig, supervisor of the outside decorating department of the A. W. Smith Co., was busy last week with the spring openings of the department stores of Joseph Horne Co., McCreery & Co., Kaufmann Bros., and Kaufmann & Baer.

C. Colyn, of Voorhout, Holland, who spent last week in this city on legal business, delivered an interesting address at the March meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club at the north side Carnegie library. Mr. Colyn's address was on "The Propagation of Bulbs." Mr. Wiseman, director of Pittsburgh's war garden campaign, who is a member of the club, gave a talk on soils.

Visitors last week were: Isaac Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Peter J. Damen, of C. Keur & Sons, Hillegom, Holland, and Ralph A. McCrory, of California.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

MOTHERS' day falls on May 9, five weeks after Easter.

OPTIMISTIC predictions in regard to Easter business were never more general.

CABLES from France indicate chiffons at recent prices will look cheap six months from now.

FICKLE weather conditions make it wise to be prepared for the possibility of a cold Easter.

DESPITE the short supply and high prices of bulbs, ample stocks of Easter lilies are reported in most markets.

OF the carnations, rooted cuttings of Enchantress Supreme have been in such request as to suggest the variety is steadily winning new friends.

THE first action of the new Secretary of Agriculture affecting the trade was the promulgation of the New England quarantine for the corn borer.

IF your city is not represented in the news columns of The Review and you would like to put it on the map by acting as correspondent, write to the Editor.

THOSE who watch The Review's growth as an indication of the trade's progress will note that this week's issue, the largest regular number it has ever published, is within four pages as large as last Christmas's special number, which was only surpassed by last week's record-breaking Easter special. Truly it is said, The Review is the paper which grows with the trade.

NEWS-LETTERS from the numerous cities in which The Review has correspondents have so generally reported a good supply of lilies for Easter that it has caused observant persons to wonder if the imports of lily bulbs last autumn did not exceed the number believed to have been imported, and if the market at Easter will take, at the prices asked, so large a quantity of pot plants and cut flowers. The official Japanese government figures on the bulbs exported to America last season appear on page 120 of this issue, the first time they have been in print. The total is so huge it will cause much surprise.

PRICES are never so low that the buyer is not disappointed at poor quality.

THE time for window boxes is close at hand. Are you making preparations for pushing this business in your locality?

PRICES of flowers cannot be allowed to go down when coal, freight and express are all shortly to go up.

THE florists' business improves markedly as the units in it become larger. Big business can do easily what small business does only with difficulty.

WHEN prices are high everybody knows he is selling at a profitable figure. Do you know how low you can sell and still make money? That knowledge is a protection you should have.

"WHERE are the young faces in the trade?" a far-sighted florist asks. The question is a vital one to those who wish to avoid having their business run down as their own activity diminishes.

ABUNDANT stock offers greater opportunities for window decoration than retailers had during the winter months. This form of advertising is too valuable for florists to miss the advantage of.

THERE will not always be the equal of this season's demand for plants and the shipper who thinks anything good enough to send to the man who has paid cash in advance will be the first to feel the change.

A DAILY paper states: "Chicago announces a reduction in the cost of cut flowers. There is hope that the message of flowers will reach the gentlemen who write the price tags for the beef packers."

IF anyone is to hold special flower sales, let it be florists. They can afford to sell large quantities on a small margin as well as the department store when business is slack and the advertising is more valuable to them.

THE hopeful eyes of the business world are centered on a bill introduced in the House of Representatives to substitute for the excess profits tax a small tax on the turn-over of all business throughout the United States. It is only a 25-cent tax on every $100 worth of sales or fraction thereof, the collection thereof to be performed in a simple manner. The abnormal condition created by the excess profits tax has been felt by florists, even though they did not all pay it themselves.

HARD work can remedy high costs and avert possibility of a panic, in the estimation of J. H. Tregoe, secretary of the National Association of Credit Men, who says: "Human energy is necessary if our prosperity is to continue. To add to plant and equipment as an offset to the letting down of human energy is inflation for which a high price must eventually be paid, and every attempt should be made to build up the energies of the people from the least to the greatest. We have no hesitancy in saying that every worker in the land can do much more than he is now doing without impairing his physical welfare."

BUSINESS INFORMATION.

For years it has been habitual for members of the trade to discuss growing problems and for each one to suggest ways and means of improvement for the help of fellow florists. Now it has become generally accepted that there is more to the florists' business than merely growing flowers, even for the man who sends his stock to the commission house to be sold. The trade has realized that the purely business part of florists' enterprise is as important as the part concerned with growing flowers. Now what is needed is dissemination of the trade's business information like that of its cultural information. An interchange of ideas and experience on this head will aid tremendously in the trade's advance.

For instance, here is a query from a florist with a large business in a good-sized town:

"We are much dissatisfied with our system of bookkeeping and wish to make a change. Can you give us the names of any florists who have a good, sensible, practicable and simple system of keeping their accounts?

"At present we are using a Burroughs bookkeeping machine, but find that it is not exactly suited. We have in mind using a machine on the order of the Elliott-Fisher type. Do you know of any concern using this or a similar machine?

"We have in the neighborhood of 1,800 accounts on our books and have that many statements to get out on the first of the month."

The Review's columns are open to readers who have suggestions or experiences to offer on this subject.

RULES FOR PROPHETS.

When one undertakes to play the role of prophet, he is assuming a task that few perform with any degree of luck and none with a consistent record of success. But there are certain rules that can be relied upon with a fair degree of accuracy. And the man who applies such rules to the business outlook can arrive at a safe conclusion. For the present situation the case is stated by a writer on business in the following terms:

"In our reading of the future we are compelled to be empirical and draw our conclusions entirely from the record of the past, from which we can deduce only two rules or laws that we can rely upon with safety.

"One is the law of average, which men have applied in developing the science of insurance.

"The other is the law of reaction or compensation.

"The existence of these laws is as certain as anything in life. The question is, what will be the result of their operation during the present year?

"It is certain that prices cannot advance forever and it is equally certain that business cannot always be prosperous.

"For the last five years the value of money has been diminishing all over the world and the cost of commodities has been correspondingly advanced. During the same five years business has been exceptionally prosperous—at least in this country.

"Has the climax been reached? No one can say. But we are justified in pointing out that each day that passes brings the period of reaction nearer and that extravagance and underproduction must be hastening its arrival.

"This is not a counsel of pessimism, but of caution, offered with a keen consciousness of our own limitations as the ephemeral present fades into the eternity of the past."

OBITUARY

Charles C. Chollar.

Charles C. Chollar, of the Chollar Floral Co., Dallas, Tex., died March 9 at the age of 37. He was found with two knife wounds in his left arm by two small boys near the Santa Fe railroad tracks about noon. The boys ran for help and an ambulance was telephoned for, but Mr. Chollar died in the ambulance while being taken to the hospital.

One of the arm wounds was near the wrist and the other above the elbow. No knife was found on Mr. Chollar's person or in the vicinity where he was found; a revolver which had not been discharged was, however, found in his pocket. He was wearing a coat and an overcoat, neither of which had been cut. According to a clerk of the Chollar Floral Co., Mr. Chollar had come to the store early that morning, but soon left in an agitated condition. An inquest was held by a justice of the peace, who gave a verdict to the effect that death was due to self-inflicted wounds.

Mr. Chollar is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters, two brothers, G. E. and R. F. Chollar, and three half brothers. His brothers and half brothers live in Fort Worth, from which Mr. Chollar moved to Dallas nine years ago.

The funeral service was held at the home, 821 North Lancaster avenue, Wednesday afternoon, March 10, with the dean of St. Matthew's cathedral officiating. After the service the body was taken to Fort Worth for burial.

F. W. Ziechmann.

F. W. Ziechmann, one of the oldest members of the trade in Cleveland, O., died at his home Wednesday, March 17, at the age of 72 years. He is survived by a widow and three sons.

Mr. Ziechmann was born in Germany, January 30, 1848, where he first became an apprentice. He was with different firms in Germany for a time and then went to France, working in Lyons and Paris. He went back to Germany to the botanical gardens in Berlin and later to the botanical gardens in London, England. He came to the United States in 1872 and started as a private gardener at Passaic, N. J. He was married there and stayed there until 1876, when he went to Cleveland and started a small place on East Madison street, now East Seventy-ninth street. A year later he began the operation of the greenhouses at the present location, 6520 Quincy street. He started building a range of greenhouses last fall on a farm he purchased on Center road, but he did not live to see them completed.

Mr. Ziechmann's hobby was growing orchids.

The funeral was held Saturday, March 20, at 2 p. m. Interment was at Woodlawn cemetery. Many beautiful floral pieces were sent by the members of the trade and his personal friends.

W. F. B.

Mrs. Frances M. Frank.

Mrs. Frances M. Frank, wife of Joseph Frank, a retailer at 764 Third avenue, New York, died Saturday, March 13, after a long illness. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Emilie.

Stephen M. Weld.

General Stephen M. Weld, of Dedham, Mass., died suddenly at Bocagrande, Fla., March 17, while on a visit for his health. The deceased gentleman, who was head of the Boston brokerage firm of S. M. Weld & Co., had a beautiful 1,200-acre estate in Dedham, which contained many plants of horticultural interest. His rock garden was probably the largest and most interestingly designed and planted of any in the east, if not in the entire country, and annually attracted crowds of visitors. It contained many rare, unique and valuable plants.

General Weld had been connected with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for over twenty years and for a large part of this time served as a director, filling the office of president for two years. He was an enthusiastic horticulturist and his death is a distinct loss to horticulture. Funeral services were held in the Unitarian church, Dedham, March 21, and were largely attended, there being representatives present from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. W. N. C.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan.

(Obituary in issue of March 11.)

MICHIGAN FLORISTS MEET.

At Agricultural College.

An effort to secure an appropriation from the state legislature to be used in an investigation of diseases among greenhouse plants in the state was one of the features of the 2-day session of the first annual convention of the Michigan State Florists' Association, held at the Michigan Agricultural College, at East Lansing, Mich., March 16 and 17. The rendering harmless of two of the most serious diseases, aster wilt and the tomato disease, by means of recent discoveries, was brought out as an example of what could be done if funds were provided. Dr. H. G. Coons, of the plant pathology department of the Agricultural College, urged support by the association.

The exhibits in the armory of displays from all over the state attracted much attention.

The Program.

The entire morning Tuesday, March 16, was spent in inspecting the exhibits. In the afternoon the first meeting was held. An address of welcome was made by President F. S. Kedzie, of the Michigan Agricultural College, and there was an address by H. W. F. Goetz, president of the association. Dean R. S. Shaw then discussed the work of the experiment stations.

Wednesday morning a tour of the Lansing greenhouses was made, starting from the Kerns hotel at 8 o'clock. In the afternoon Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, gave a talk on "Present Day Problems of Retail Florists."

Officers Elected.

At the closing of the session, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Henry Goetz, Saginaw.

Vice-president, W. S. Wells, Ann Arbor.

Secretary, Robert Plumb, Detroit.

The election of trustees resulted as follows: Three-year term, Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit; 2-year term, Harvey E. Kidder, Ionia; 1-year term, J. A. Bissinger, Lansing.

During the convention the membership of the organization, which has only been formed a few months, was nearly doubled. The aim now is to get the majority of the 600 florists in Michigan to join the association.

CHICAGO.

Express Service Resumed.

Express service returned practically to normal March 24, on which day all embargoes were lifted as far as cut flowers and plants are concerned. The first day of unrestricted shipping there was pick-up service only until 2 p. m., but assurances were given that wagons would thereafter be available until the market's closing hour and that full, complete and responsible service would be provided for the enormous Easter business which is expected next week.

This happy development was due to the efforts of the Chicago Wholesale Cut Flower Association, headed by John Poehlmann, acting for President A. F. Poehlmann, and C. J. Michelsen. March 19 conditions had become intolerable, the management of the express company not only making no effort to give service, but causing its station and train employees to refuse such service as the company plainly was in position to furnish. When the wholesalers tried to take the matter up with the officials they met with little cordiality, but partial service was resumed March 22 and broadened March 23. By that time the wholesalers had made their determination sufficiently plain so that they got the attention of the highest officials, with the result that it was arranged to resume full service on cut flowers and plants ahead of other freight, thus recognizing the special needs of the market.

The tie-up of the express service by the strike, which has not yet been declared off, has been a great injury to the trade, but assurances now have been obtained that every possible effort will be made to help the shipping business resume its normal volume and to handle the Easter rush in satisfactory manner.

The Market.

Although shipping conditions have been extremely unsatisfactory, the market has done surprisingly well. At the beginning of last week there was a change for the better. Receipts of flowers were lighter and the demand was stronger. Instead of closing at night with their iceboxes full of flowers, the wholesalers began making fair clean-ups and the average price of stock began to improve without any change in quotations; it merely was the usual result of cleaner selling to the regular trade.

The present week started with the market in much better condition than it has been since the express strike started. There still are plenty of flowers, but not so many that the supply is unwieldy. Prices are moderate, all things considered, and the demand is increasing day by day. There is no reason for feeling that business is otherwise than good. Any buyer who can use flowers at prices which will let the growers live can get all he wants and, apparently, the public is waking up to the fact that the high prices of the winter are a thing of the past, and are coming back to the flower stores to buy for other purposes than funeral use. There is every reason to feel that there will be a big spring business.

Easter orders are coming in rather more slowly than most of the wholesalers like. It is feared that the express strike has been turning business away from the Chicago market. A number of customers have indicated that they were afraid to place orders here for large quantities of flowers, to be shipped under previously existing conditions. But now that the express company has resumed service, it is thought the apprehension will subside. Indeed, the last day or two has brought something approaching a rush of Easter orders. The buyers who have placed orders have almost invariably ordered more stock than ever before.

There has been a shortage of greens, which has advanced the price of ferns and of asparagus, but, the embargo now having been raised, shipments soon will be coming in again.

Putting It to the Test.

The Allied Florists' Association has been urging retailers to buy liberally when flowers are plentiful, and W. J. Smyth, who is treasurer, believes in practicing what he preaches; so he bought a few thousand carnations from an overloaded wholesaler and put a sign in his window announcing a special sale for "today only." Of course, the prices advertised were ridiculously cheap, compared with winter prices, but it was explained by posting in window and store several copies of the association's "Flowers Are Plentiful" advertisement in the daily papers. The sales were so numerous that the store was thronged and, important to note, the profit on the lot was greater than an ordinary day's profits on an ordinary day's sales of carnations. Mr. Smyth was so well pleased that he followed a few days later with a similar sale of roses, which was equally successful. Mr. Smyth is convinced that if the 400 retail florists in Chicago would try the plan whenever stock is to be had cheaply, no flowers ever would go to department stores and thousands of new customers would be made for the trade. His sales have attracted numbers of people who never had entered the store before, although they had been seen passing.

Various Notes.

Edward Heim, the Blue Island grower, is reëntering the field after having been out of it for two years. He is replanting his houses with carnations, having received delivery of 15,000 rooted cuttings from the J. A. Budlong Co.

C. L. Washburn and wife traveled 3,000 miles on their recent trip south,

FINE ROSES

Lilies, Carnations and Peas

For quality and price it will be hard for you to find a better place to do your buying for Easter. We say this because we know the conditions on the local market and do not hesitate to assert that our stock is the very highest grade and, in connection with the same, our prices are reasonable. Service to our customers is our first consideration, and we are constantly striving to improve on the usual methods—no order is packed without personal inspection.

reaching Galveston and Mobile. Mr. Washburn says the oil section of the southwest is booming, but that in other parts of the south the high prices of flowers last winter gave the trade a setback.

F. M. Johnson, whose judgment has been good during the strenuous times of the last five years, says he can see nothing in sight but steadily rising prices. Mr. Johnson thinks the demands of labor, the greater cost of coal and the certainty of higher freight and express rates are enough to force all other prices up still further, and he believes the autumn will see nearly all lines of merchandise costing more than they cost this spring.

Sam Pearce, veteran grower of bulbous stock, celebrated his sixty-first birthday anniversary March 20.

The old Siegel-Cooper store was reopened March 22 by seventy-one merchants, each operating individually, but under one roof, and with delivery and other service facilities in common. Peter Kutrumanes has the flower shop and Grossberg, Tyler, Finnerman Co. has the artificial flowers, decorations, baskets, vases, etc. Each is on the main floor.

A. L. Vaughan, whose lease is out April 30, says he has not yet found a new location and that he may close up. The building is to be torn down.

Hilmer V. Swenson, who is secretary and advertising manager for the Allied Florists' Association, was in New York last week to attend the meeting of the S. A. F. publicity committees. He reports that arrangements were made to have his office take over a large part of the work of the S. A. F. promotion bureau, which hereafter will be handled from Chicago.

In the midst of the sea of rapidly rising costs of doing business the trade last week encountered one little island of relief. The iceman sent notice of a reduction of $5 a ton in the price of ice.

C. A. Samuelson is at home from Montana, to be in the store during the Easter rush.

W. A. Hansen has been swinging around the circuit made at Christmas for the E. C. Amling Co. In addition to large Easter orders, he has sent from nearly every customer visited "one for today." Mr. Hansen reports that the retail flower business is not dull anywhere in the middle west.

The Chicagoans who visited the New York spring show last week returned with the report that it seems not yet time to undertake a large exhibition.

A. L. Randall and Mrs. Randall have gone to Hot Springs, Ark., for a delayed winter vacation.

Elmer Volkman and his wife, who is E. C. Amling's youngest daughter, have joined the Amling family now domiciled at Sawtelle, Cal.

ROSES, Our Selection, $8.00 per 100

Cut Flower Co., was here March 22 for a look at the market. He is building up a large shipping trade for his concern and finds much of interest in the Chicago market and methods.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business has picked up considerably and a slight increase in funeral orders, along with the general buying, has kept the market in a fair condition. Carnations continue to arrive in large quantities and are of the best quality. Roses are not so plentiful as might be desired, but there are enough to satisfy the demand. Easter and calla lilies are making their appearance in quantity in the stores. At present the prices remain unchanged.

For the last three weeks there has been at least one bad wind storm each week. The worst one came Wednesday night, March 17, and, while no serious damage was done to any of the greenhouses, a few had a loss of glass and it was cause for the growers to worry about their stock. Thursday afternoon, March 18, another storm came up, a part of the gale from Wyoming and Colorado. For a time the dust and sand were thick in the air and everything was soon covered. The soil sifted through the windows, but did not injure the plants or flowers.

Various Notes.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. had a shipment of hydrangeas Friday, March 19, which were quickly sold out. This firm has been getting some daisies along with the spring stock.

turned to their home in Denver, Colo., after a week's visit with their sons, H. R. and L. H. Neff.

Shipping business has been heavy with T. J. Noll & Co. They have been receiving large quantities of choice carnations and extra fine sweet peas, but have cleaned up on all of them. They suffered in the storm of last week to the extent of a large number of broken panes of glass, but no stock was injured.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new Longview Greenhouses and they are expected to be completed on schedule time. A carload of material is now on the ground and no delays are anticipated.

Two new greenhouses, each 25x131 feet, at the Boyd range, have just been completed. Mrs. Boyd's business has increased materially. She is soon to have a window display at Kresge's 5 and 10-cent store, where she has had a department for several years. Saturday, March 20, she sold 3,600 carnations and a week before that, 2,600 and three truck loads of plants.

Adolph Mohr's Easter lilies are starting to bloom. They are long-stemmed and in condition to be in readiness for Easter. Mr. Mohr says that he will have plenty of them, too. He will also have a good supply of hyacinths, tulips, daffodils and cinerarias.

Samuel Murray had a good week. He had the orders for several large funerals.

Henry Kusik & Co. sold 15,000 carnations and between 12,000 and 15,000 roses last week, besides 20,000 sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bennett are the proud parents of a 10-pound boy, born March 12.

Roy Millice, manager of the Alpha Floral Co., announced a new 10½-pound boy at his home and, to celebrate the event, he purchased a Buick instead of an ordinary baby carriage. He is eager to give the boy his first ride.

William Foith had several dozen panes of glass broken in the storm last week.

Benjamin Rice, a grower here for years, is now with Koppenhaver, Florists. They have about 300 Easter lilies and 5,000 geraniums, some of which are ready for sale now.

The Bennett greenhouses are about completed and will soon be fully stocked. They are owned by Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bennett.

McGrail & Conkling have bought a new Dodge truck in time to take care of the Easter deliveries.

Tucker Smith and P. A. Manson, of Pleasant Hill, were in the city Friday, March 19.

Miss Nettie Seymour spent Friday, March 19, in St. Joseph, Mo.

J. E. Murray & Co., formerly Miss J. E. Murray, have joined the F. T. D.

A. Newell reports a number of advance orders for Easter. He anticipates a good demand for plants and baskets aside from lilies. J. E. K.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

In spite of the lateness of the season, weather conditions in this locality are far from good. The streets have been hardly free from snow for nearly five months. A heavy snowfall took place Friday night, March 19, and again we were apparently in the middle of winter. However, the sunshine is considerably stronger now and melts the snow and ice quickly.

Business last week was good and an abundance of spring flowers is on the market. Large quantities of stock are moved each day. Jonquils, daffodils, tulips of all colors and calendulas are in abundance. Large quantities of sweet peas are seen, and sell quickly at reasonable prices; among them are some excellent orchid varieties. Roses are plentiful and the demand is good, considering the crowded condition of the

In the Last Minute Rush for Your Easter Supplies

Don't underestimate your requirements—better by far to overestimate, for an overstock of supplies, in these times of continual price advancing, is an act of foresight and a good investment as well.

Lay in all the ribbons, chiffons, baskets and other staple florist supplies you can handle—then sit back and profit by your good judgment.

The McCallum Extended Service Can be Depended Upon to the Limit

In the hurried preparation for a big Easter business you have probably overlooked one or more items of importance—here's where you can depend upon the McCallum extended service to the full limit. Never was there a more complete line of exclusively florists' supplies gotten together for the trade.

Order From the Nearest Branch

The whole theme of opening branch houses in the various centers was so that we could render a greater service to you without delay in transportation, and the relieving of congestion at our Pittsburgh Headquarters. Coöperate with us by ordering from the nearest branch.

market. Callas are plentiful and sell well. Easter lilies are fine, but the supply is not at all large at present. Valley is in fine condition and moves well. Good violets arrive daily and the quality is excellent. Orchids and gardenias are in good supply, but the demand is not heavy. Carnations are of good quality, with a steady demand. Some splendid potted stock is seen.

The outlook for Easter is promising. An unusually large supply of bulbous stock is expected on the market.

Various Notes.

George B. Hart, who was one of the judges at the New York flower show, returned to this city Thursday, March 18, highly enthusiastic over the show.

The Rochester Floral Co. was responsible for the elaborate decoration for the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr opening last week.

Horace J. Head, representing George B. Hart, has returned from a trip through the southern and middle western states.

SWEET PEAS

We are glad to say that we can offer this item in quantity for Easter. We have never been able to give our customers all the Peas they wanted at Easter, but we expect to be in a position to give them to you this year. Most of our growers have a splendid crop in sight, and we see no reason why your orders should not be filled complete. There is no other item on our list for Easter that shows any better value than Sweet Peas, particularly for corsages.

What is worthy of mention is the good quality of our Recent visitors to the trade include R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y.; Manuel Oppenheim, of Olean, N. Y., and W. H. Workman, of Oswego, N. Y.

F. J. Keller, of J. B. Keller Sons, was one of the visitors to the New York flower show last week.

Mrs. E. M. De Klyne was absent from business during the greater part of last week through sickness. Mrs. Arvilla Smith, of H. E. Wilson's force, has had a hard time this winter, having been sick the greater part of it. James Sproat, of H. Schlegel's Sons, has also been confined to his home, as also have Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y.

St. Patrick's day again proved to be quite busy, with the general sale of green carnations, a charity ball and several minor functions. Fortunately, white flowers were plentiful and the sale was good. Suitable decorations were seen in all florists' windows, with shamrocks, harps, pipes and green flags in profusion.

A herald of spring was seen in the window of Salter Bros. last week, when a large limb of cherry blooms attracted many passers-by. This was placed in the back of the window, with a splendid selection of potted plants in the foreground. H. J. H.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

"I think that the worst is over." William J. Moore voiced the general opinion of the wholesalers at the close of the third and most disastrous week in March.

Carnations have fared about as well as anything. Supply and demand have been fairly well balanced at the prevailing market prices of $6 to $8 per hundred. The chief difficulty with carnations lies in the splits and culls that are more noticeable at the close of a hard winter. St. Patrick's day had some effect on white carnations, but not enough to advance the price, which did, however, increase in some quarters on the unexpected demand that sprang up at the end of the week, presumably for use in the churches.

Sweet peas are exceedingly plentiful. The price depends a good deal on the quantity desired. For instance, a customer who wants 100 extra fine peas pays $2.50, while the customer who can use 1,000 can have them for a much lower figure, sometimes for 10 cents, taking them as they run. In other words, sweet peas are plentiful and they deteriorate rapidly when carried long.

The general market conditions have been discouraging. Flowers needed a lot of pushing; even then success was only partial. Prices were low and irregular and some stock remained unsold. The outlook for a good supply at Easter is excellent. There will be lots of cut lilies and, given a reasonable amount of sunshine, there will be lots of sweet peas. There will be enough of the other flowers to make up a good assortment.

Prices are likely to be about the same as last Easter.

With William J.

Some fifty years ago William J. Young established himself in the florists' business at School lane and Pulaski avenue, in Germantown. He built greenhouses and a store, where the residents of the handsome places in his neighborhood could get their cut flowers in winter and their bedding plants in spring. The business prospered. Today his son, William J. Young, Jr., carries on the good work, aided by his better half. The greenhouses, keeping pace with the times, make a specialty of Easter plants. So cleverly are these plants grown that the leading plantsmen draw on Mr. Young for some of his surplus stock. This year the stock is so large that the residents of School lane are going to spare quite a lot to the residents of less favored sections in this and other cities.

Dahlias are one of Mr. Young's specialties. He is preparing a carefully selected assortment for planting out at his farm at Linfield. Mr. Young's loyalty to the finest bulbs makes his name as well known in certain sections of Holland as it is here. His judgment on varieties and their culture is excellent.

Lilium Brownii.

The Easter novelty at the place of William K. Harris is the orange-colored lily, Lilium Brownii. Mr. Harris thinks that it will be a great acquisition in hampers and plant basket combinations. Lilium Brownii, as seen at this place, grows to a height of about eighteen inches. It is of slender build and erect in habit. The leaves are small in size and deep green in color. The flower is of medium size, suggestive of Tulip Couronne d'Or in coloring.

The gems of a well grown collection of Easter plants here are a lot of beautifully colored Hydrangea General de Vibraye in 11-inch tubs and a house of home-grown baby rambler roses. Mr. Prince is justly proud of some fine specimen azaleas, both indica and Hinodigiri.

At Second and Bristol.

Edward Aschmann believes that the lilies are the finest that his firm, Aschmann Bros., have ever grown. They are fine. The entire lot is a credit to the place.

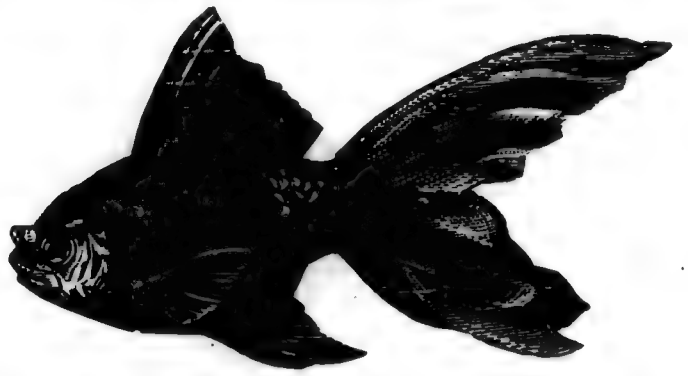
The pot-grown American Beauties are interesting. A large number of Beauties and of Magna Charta are grown in good shape. There is an immense stock of hydrangeas. Mme. Chautard is the favorite variety. Cinerarias are making their debut this year. Gold is represented by genistas and Boston yellow daisies; bulbs, mainly by fine looking Dutch hyacinths.

Various Notes.

Among the Philadelphians seen at the New York show last week were Robert A. Craig, Edwin J. Fancourt, E. Farenwald, James W. Heacock, Frank P. Myers, Martin Samtman, Leonard J. Sieger and C. Vander Breggan.



A large shipment of silk fiber ribbons long overdue has prevented H. Bayersdorfer & Co. from filling orders as expected.

Frank R. Hastings says half-humorously that the wholesalers and growers have destroyed the flower business by their high prices during the winter. It now remains for the retailers to build it up again.

Paul R. Klingsporn, manager of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, was here March 17, on his way to New York. Philadelphia is proud of Mr. Klingsporn's success in Chicago.

George Craig celebrated his forty-fifth business anniversary at 233 South Eleventh street, March 17, St. Patrick's day. The original firm that opened this store in 1875 was Craig & Bro. It was formed by Robert and George Craig. Later Robert Craig withdrew, devoting his attention to his greenhouses at Forty-ninth and Market streets, while George Craig conducted the retail store alone. Mr. Craig, who succeeded Thomas Cartledge as treasurer of the Florists' Club over twenty years ago, has a high reputation for business sagacity and integrity.

Judge Savage, of Lewisburg, Pa., was here a few days ago. Judge Savage is one of our retired judges. While here he was transacting some business for his son, P. M. Savage, who is a florist in Lewisburg.

Isaac M. Bayersdorfer, who has been in the middle west for the last two months, has just returned to this city after an excellent business trip. Mr. Bayersdorfer is so modest that his incomings and outgoings are rarely heralded.

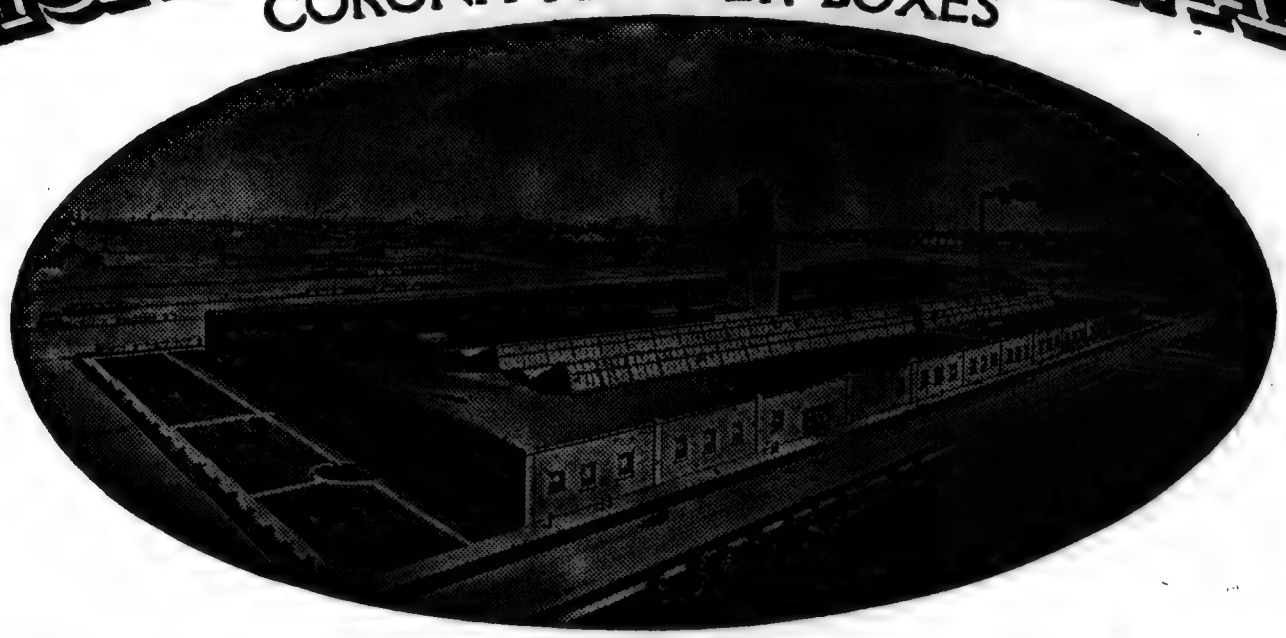
John Wilson, lately with Ira G. Marvin, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., has returned to J. J. Habermehl's Sons. Mr. Wilson, who was absent from this city for a number of years, is one of our ablest and most popular florists.

Fred Berger has purchased the Yeakel farm of twenty acres near Arlington station on the Fort Washington branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. Mr. Berger's new farm is directly opposite to the Sunnybrook Club, profanely known as the millionaires' golf club. It does not require much imagination to picture cozy little dinner tables in the golf club next fall, beautifully decorated with dahlias and cosmos, as only a true floral artist can do it.

J. P. McCarthy, of the M. Rice Co., is back from New England. His reception was hearty everywhere.

Robert B. Bragg and Mrs. Bragg are entertaining a youthful visitor, a little laddie who has come to stay with them.

The Jonah steamer, the Westchester from Antwerp, three months overdue, arrived here March 16. It carried merchandise for H. Bayersdorfer & Co. Mr. Bayersdorfer said he was glad it did not arrive March 17. The steamer was in two collisions, putting back to Antwerp after the first and into a West Indian port after the second. The florists' supplies on board included statice, which has been much wanted, artificial valley and beech sprays. For the most part, they have already gone out on orders of long standing.



The Robert Craig Co. has put a new Pierce-Arrow truck on the force to help get out the Easter plant orders.

The genial Robert Q. Shoch has returned to the headquarters of the M. Rice Co., after a southern trip full of such greetings as only the sunny south can give.

Recent visitors include Miss Getz, of Westman & Getz, Cleveland, O.; Henry Eichholz, Waynesboro, Pa.; C. M. Wagner, Cleveland, O.; Miss Carrie Stacner, with H. A. Schroyer, Lancaster, Pa.; Mr. Russell, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O.; W. H. A. Schmidt, Carbondale,

The Market.

Some decrease in the arrivals of both roses and carnations is noted and while there is no great amount of business, some improvement has shown itself in prices. Roses, for short-stemmed stock, have advanced to $5 and $6 per hundred, other grades running up to $35 per hundred, with some fancy Hadley reaching $50. Carnations are somewhat off crop and clean up fairly well at improved prices. Poor grades sell at $3 to $4, with fancies reaching $5 to $8, and Laddie $12 to $15. Violets are abundant and low in price; so are sweet peas. The supply of the latter was surely never so large before at this time of year nor the quality higher.

Bulbous stock remains about the same. Lilies move somewhat sluggishly; so do callas. For Easter delivery 30 to 35 cents per bud is being asked at wholesale. Anemones of good quality

CONTINUOUSLY, for over ten years, we have specialized in the manufacture of high grade Florists' Boxes which have been most satisfactory in quality and price.

LARGE or small shipments from stock sizes in Oxford Gray, Mist Green, Mist Tan, White Patent Coated or Favorite Manila grades receive prompt attention.

IN addition we have ample facilities to print in plain inks or bronzes, to stripe, or emboss just what you require, at a reasonable extra charge.

MOST of the leading florists, those who desire a box in keeping with the high quality of their flowers, are numbered among our satisfied customers.

ALL conditions considered, we believe we have, fortunately, had reasonably good deliveries from our mills to take care of your requirements.

XTRA! Have you placed your order for Easter requirements? We are prepared to serve you, in large or small quantities, to make shipment when desired.

play of camellias, and the A. Leuthy Co., some nice French hydrangeas, well flowered. Each was awarded honorable mention. The report of the committee on the dance and entertainment showed a small deficit, which it was voted to pay from the treasury.

John Watson, of Princeton, N. J., was the speaker of the evening and gave a splendid talk on "The American Association of Nurserymen; Its Aims and Progress." His address was a most thoughtful one and contained a great deal of common sense and logic. A long discussion followed the address, a good deal of it being in regard to Quarantine 37, which, as usual, came in for strong denunciation. A number of members left for the New York show at the close of the meeting on the midnight train.

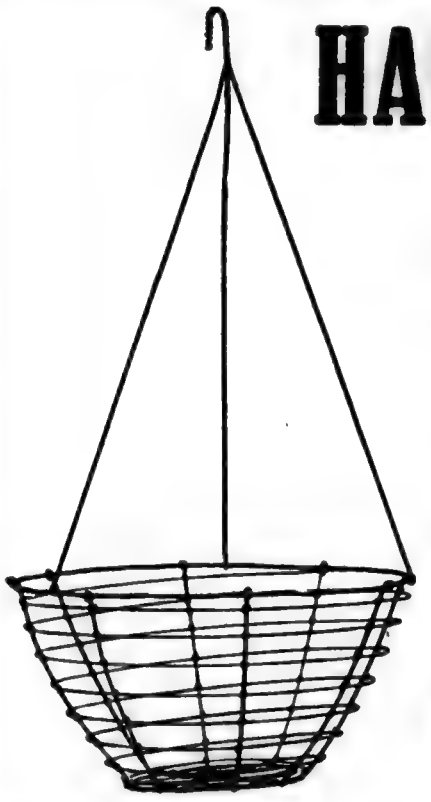
Various Notes.

At the end of last week a great deal of material was already in position for the great spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, opening March 24. The extensive orchid display of A. C. Burrage was installed and the large lecture hall had been transformed to receive it. Rockwork, formed with tufa stone pillars, covered with cork bark and capped by tree ferns and palms, is arranged with a magnificent and bewildering display of orchids. More than twice as many orchids are shown in this one display as were exhibited altogether at the New York Grand Central Palace show. There are many other notable features which tax the hall accommodations and, had more space been available, the show would have been of even greater proportions. A record attendance is assured at this show.

Among additional members of the local trade noted at the New York show were William Anderson, F. N. Sanborn, Gustave Thommen, Charles E. Robinson, J. T. Butterworth and Miss Butterworth, George T. Elliott, Mrs. W. W. Edgar, P. J. Van Baarda, Ralph Messenger and W. J. Collins.

William H. Elliott has incorporated his business under the name of W. H. Elliott & Sons Co. The officers are as follows: President, George T. Elliott; secretary, John F. Elliott, and treasurer, W. H. Elliott, Jr. These officers and Marjorie K. Elliott and A. R. Hutson form the board of directors. The capitalization is for $300,000. W. H. Elliott, Sr., is at present en route to California, where Mrs. Elliott has been for some time. He will visit many establishments on his way to the Pacific coast.

The new officers of the T. F. Galvin corporation are C. F. Boyle, president; James Slattery, manager of the Park street store, and John R. McDonough, manager of the Boylston street store. At the New York store R. A. Hale will continue as manager. Mr. Boyle, the new president of Galvin's, was for ten years manager of the Back Bay store and Mr. Slattery has been over twenty years with the firm. The 1919 business was far the largest in the firm's history.



The store of Hamlin the Florist, in the Little building, opened during the present winter, has been closed and will probably not reopen.

March 20 we were treated to an additional fall of snow eight inches deep, as if to inaugurate spring properly. It would seem as though the weather man this season took a particular delight in serving out snow storms Saturdays, the florists' busiest days, as we have not had a pleasant week-end for many weeks. Melting snow is causing serious floods in this section.

The Julius Roehrs Co. sent its large collection of orchids in auto trucks over the road from Rutherford, N. J., for the big Boston orchid show.

Albert C. Burrage has prepared and had printed 10,000 bulletins of popular information about orchids, for free distribution at the great orchid show. The admission price for the show, which has been 50 cents for some years, will be $1 at the coming show, the same as in New York. A large New York delegation will visit the show March 24 and 25 and many will attend both the banquet and the orchid conference.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

The available supply of flowers is increasing, but the growers are still unable to fill all the orders. The demand is large, though the call for design work has decreased with the abatement of the flu epidemic. There is still considerable illness in the city and a number of the florists are on the sick list.

The stock of lilies for Easter is larger than that of last year and, if prices do not frighten the buying public, a big Easter business will be done. The retailers are arranging for extra help and additional delivery trucks. If warm weather comes for Easter it will be a profitable one, but if the cold weather continues and extra wrappings are required and all the other extra expenses, the higher prices will make the retailer hustle to make the Easter business pay.

Club Meetings.

The Toronto Retail Florists' Association met March 15, with Vice-president Silas McFadden in the chair. It was decided to invite the growers to meet with them at their club rooms April 19, to discuss matters of mutual interest. Many of the retailers spoke along the line that the sooner the retailer and the grower get together and pull together, the better for the trade. It was in this spirit that the meeting was proposed. The executive committee was instructed to send the invitations. The growers are cordially invited to attend or to have representatives present to talk over matters for the benefit of the business. A large representation of both growers and florists is expected. James Cannon was proposed for membership.

Alexander Simpson, secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association, was present and requested that the retail club take part in the Canadian national exhibition this year. He proposed that the club accept the responsibility for keeping the flowers on the tables fresh each day and that they also have 300 square feet in the Horticultural building. The nurserymen will have 500 square feet, the park department will have the greenhouse under the dome and several seed firms will have good exhibits.

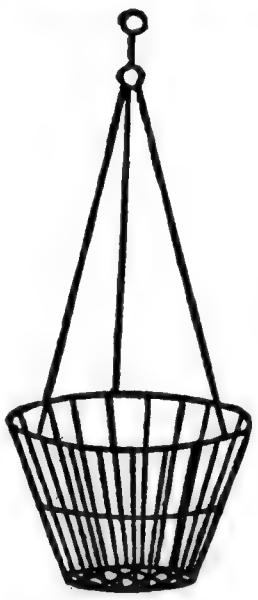
The Gardeners' and Florists' Association held its regular meeting March 16, with John Mills, president, in the chair. E. B. Hamilton, president of the Canadian Horticultural Association, was present and spoke of the coming convention. He was given a warm reception and was assured that there would be a big delegation from Toronto. The prize list of the Canadian national exhibition was revised and will be submitted to the C. N. E. board for approval. P. L. Whytock, the association's representative on the C. N. E. board, reported regarding the proposed arrangements for the laying out of the Horticultural building and the schemes to increase interest in this branch at the exhibition. The report will be discussed at a future meeting. Mr. Whytock left the same evening for the New York show. George Hall acted as secretary in the absence of Alexander Simpson, who was at the New York flower show.

Various Notes.

Grace Nelson was at Shea's theater last week and sang "Say It with Flowers." Flowers to throw to the audience during the singing were furnished by the Retail Florists' Association.



The executive meeting of the C. H. A. will be in Hamilton, Ont., April 12 and 13. J. J. H.

The Market.

The market continues to be plentifully supplied with flowers, in spite of some rather unfavorable weather experienced Friday and Saturday, March 19 and 20. There is an immense supply of bulbous flowers, but, while their movement is at times anything but active, little goes to waste. The street peddler has returned, after an absence from business of many months, and his offerings cover some of the choicer flowers, including fine roses and gardenias. With all this increased supply, the demand has not been proportionate and, consequently, clearances have been difficult all down the line. The extra demand for white carnations Tuesday and Wednesday, March 16 and 17, was not so large as is usually the case on the eve of St. Patrick's day. It is reported that this was due to the inability of retailers to procure a good green dye.

is rather more plentiful than it has been for some time, but, except for carried-over stock, the top price for specials is $75 per hundred, the same as in the previous week, with clearances of inferior flowers in the same grade as low as $30. Hybrid teas are quite abundant and the shortage in the lower grades seems to have passed.

Carnations are in good supply, but much inferior stock is arriving, also many splits. The demand is fair, but much stock is housed in the iceboxes overnight.

Cattleyas are in fair supply, but really good flowers are somewhat scarce; $15 to $75 per hundred is about the range, with a rather sluggish demand. Longiflorum lilies are quite plentiful again, with movement slow at $8 to $20 per hundred. If Easter prices for cut stock are to be much advanced over this range, there is no indication of it at present. Lily of the valley continues to be in oversupply, the best bringing no more than $4 per hundred sprays. Gardenias are more plentiful than ever and move slowly at from $5 to $25 per hundred.

Arrivals of miscellaneous flowers continue on the heavy side, particularly of sweet peas. Snapdragons, myosotis, daisies, calendulas, pansies, stocks, violets, wallflowers and primulas are all plentiful, but move fairly well.

Various Notes.

Monday, March 29, Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin will establish two municipal flower markets, one on the Central Park Plaza, at Columbus Circle, near the Maine monument, the other in Union Square. The commissioner calls this an experiment in the beautiful, with the purpose, not so much of giving opportunity for barter, as of giving the poor and the dweller in three or four rooms a chance to satisfy a longing for flowers at a minimum of expense. If, at the end of a month, it is found that growers do not show appreciation of the plan by lending their support or that the public does not take to the idea, the experiment will be discontinued. Monday and Wednesday of each week are to be regular market days, when the markets will be open from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Saturdays the hours will be from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. Applications for permits to sell must be made to the office of the commissioner of parks on the tenth floor of the municipal building. The nominal rent to be charged will be only sufficient to cover the cost of cleaning up and looking after the markets.

The death of Mrs. Frances M. Frank, wife of Joseph Frank, a retailer at 764 Third avenue, March 13, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

Professor E. A. White, secretary of the American Rose Society, had the misfortune to have his overcoat stolen from his booth on the main floor at the international flower show Friday evening. A heavy rain storm was in progress outside.

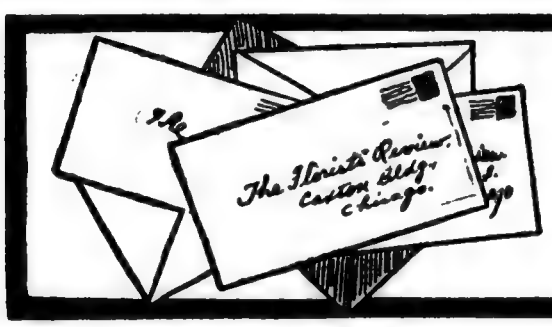
SPRING COURSE AT AMBLER.



While various state universities are doing much to give men advanced training in floriculture, education for women along that line is available only at private institutions. One of these, the School of Horticulture for Women, at Ambler, Pa., has issued announcement of its spring course from April 6 to June 26 and a brief summer course from August 2 to August 28. The spring course, in its morning and afternoon sessions, will take up on the different days of the week floriculture, vegetable gardening, fruit growing, school gardening, landscape gardening and similar subjects. Floriculture will occupy Saturday and, according to the announcement, the morning course deals with the propagation of annual and perennial flowers and the planting and care of summer beds and borders and the afternoon course deals with the culture of specific flowers, roses, carnations, sweet peas and other flowers. During the summer course, floriculture will come Monday and Wednesday mornings and Friday afternoons.

The tuition charge for the spring course in floriculture alone will be $23, for the entire course $75; board will be $10 per week and lodging $2 to $4 per week. The tuition fee for the entire summer course, including, in addition to floriculture, vegetable gardening, fruit growing and canning and preserving, will be $25; board and lodging will be $12 per week. Since the accommodations are limited, registration should be made early.

Akron, O.—E. F. Bartell has bought the greenhouse, in this city, of Mrs. Gertrude A. Starks, who lives in Cuyahoga Falls.

Greenville, S. C.—A controlling interest in the Greenville Floral Co. has been purchased by John Dodds and his stepfather, Robert Lockerbie, who have taken over the properties recently. Mr. Lockerbie was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to this country and started in business in Philadelphia in his twenties. He has been connected with the trade continuously since that time.

Cleveland, O.—The J. M. Gasser Co., March 11, opened its new branch store, to be run independently under the name of the Annex Flower Shop. The location is one of the best on Euclid avenue for catering to the popular-price trade and the store is well and completely fitted up. From the opening day it has seemed that the throngs of buyers assured the unqualified success of the undertaking.

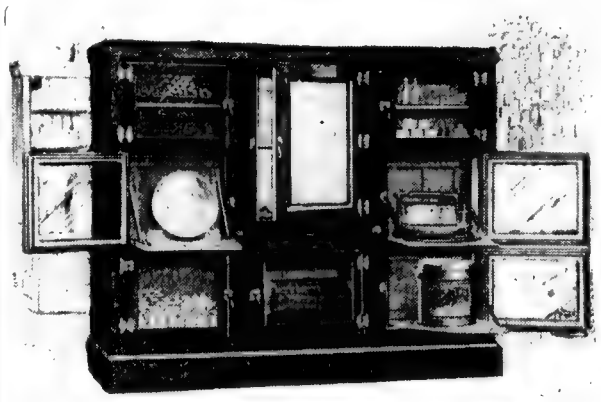
Penn The Florist

The Most Modern and Artistic Home of Flowers in New England



A VERITABLE crystal palace of flowers is the Penn salesroom, the daily scene of the greatest activity in the Boston retail flower trade. The tiled floor is in soft buff colored stone and walls of Ivory Caen stone. In the rear is the crowning scenic feature of all—"The Fountain Court." In the center plays a wonderful Italian fountain, the work of a Boston sculptor. The court is surrounded by eight marble pillars and each top with an ornamental frieze, while above is a steel and leaded glass ceiling which lights the Court day and night, for at night there are electric fixtures sculptured and modeled by a famous Italian artist in the purest of alabaster marble above the ground glass to take the place of the sun.

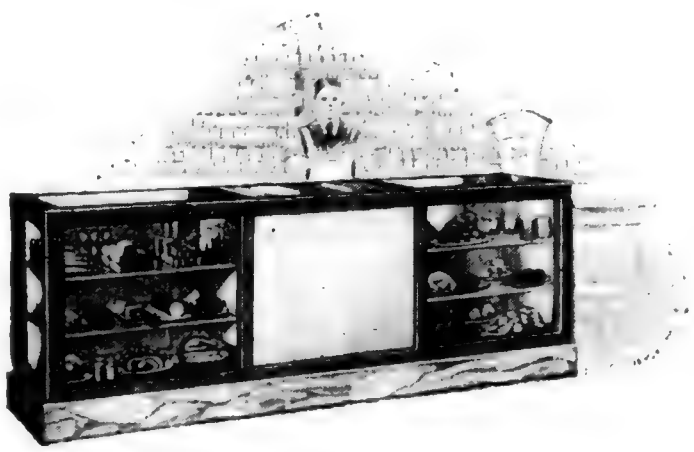
McCRAY
REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

McCRAY builds refrigerators for every kind of business. Thousands of florists' shops, stores, markets, clubs, restaurants, hotels, hospitals, institutions and homes depend on McCray for efficient, economical refrigerator service.

For Florist Shops in Particular—McCray Refrigerators are best because they are made to conserve flowers, and at the same time give proper display to floral goods. In appearance the McCray will make any floral store more attractive. Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage.

Remember—Thirty years of continuous development have resulted in the perfected McCray System—by which fresh, cold air is kept in constant circulation through the storage chambers. The McCray System assures perfect preservation of flowers.



McCray features of convenience and appearance are of the highest type—and in the McCray you are certain to obtain years and years of satisfactory refrigerator display service. Only in the McCray will you find concentrated thirty years of unquestioned leadership in refrigerator building. Our position of leadership is a tribute to McCray quality.

Our Catalog, illustrating various models of McCray Refrigerators for Florists, will gladly be sent to your address—just write us for it: No. 74 for Florists; No. 94 for Residences.

Henry Penn's Easter Message:

This will be the biggest Easter business you ever had, providing you have the foresight and courage to place your orders with your Growers in advance, so that your patrons can be assured of having their orders filled when they call to see you.

We have always carried out this policy.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

DECORATING FOR EASTER.

Short Supply a Handicap.

Another Easter season is here and the retail florist is going to be handicapped this year by lack of the stock which he is accustomed to handle; that is, old stand-bys which he has been in the habit of depending upon, such as azaleas and rhododendrons, and even lilies are not going to be so plentiful. But this is just where the true florist has his opportunity. I can remember an old Scotch florist of the time when I was a boy learning my trade, who, when funeral work was being made up and flowers were scarce, a frequent occurrence in those days, and the designer would be complaining of insufficient stock, would say: "My boy, don't you know that is just the reason a man learns the florists' business? Anyone who has plenty of stock can arrange it in a more or less artistic manner, but when stock is scarce it takes a florist to make it into an artistic design." The appearance of the retail store this year will show whether the proprietor is a florist, or whether he just deals in flowers.

Beware of Monotony.

The fact remains that no matter how scarce good plants may be, we are facing a flower day which, according to every indication, will be a record-breaker. There will be the same number of church decorations and these are likely to be more elaborate than ever. In most cases those who have orders for this work will, on account of their having done it year after year, know their ground fairly well, but it will be wise to remember that, since you may have been doing this work year after year, the same congregation has been watching you and will be quick to notice the sameness. In most church decorations your scheme is necessarily much the same, with the same material to work with. No one will be quicker to notice this than the decorator himself. Many a time after laborious work and deep study I have been disgusted with the effect of decorations about which others have been highly enthusiastic.

The point I want to make here is the need of having some outstanding feature in the scheme which will be quick to catch the eye and hold the attention. In most cases this will make your whole plan of decoration serve as a finish to this central feature. For instance, take a cross of from five to ten feet, according to the space in which you have to place it, made entirely of Easter lilies and plumosus; hang this by wires, alone and with no background whatever, directly over the center of the altar, not straight up and down, but with the top of it leaning toward the congregation. This will have to be studied to get the correct angle, but once you have this in the correct position the rest of your decoration will be easy. This will be the first thing to catch the eye of the worshipers as they come in and we all know that first impressions are everything.

Standing Wreath which Artistically Combines a Variety of Flowers.

Decorating Windows.

There will be many smaller jobs, such as memorial windows to be decorated, and here again a little change, something different, will always be appreciated. I remember a church in the neighborhood of our store; every window in it was a memorial window; the congregation was one of the most exclusive and wealthy in the city. It was our business every Easter to decorate most of these windows. Everyone wanted something different from his neighbor and, on one occasion, I attracted much comment on one of these windows. We had a few frames of the old English daisies at the range, pink and white, and we had a wire frame that had been made for one of the windows to fill with cut flowers. We lifted the daisies and filled them into this frame with wet moss about the roots. In the center I had one of William K. Harris' pans of Harrisii lilies. This had thirty open flowers on it besides the buds. To cover up the pot we cut several astilbes and put them in the moss-filled frame, foliage and all. It was our habit to drape the upper portion with garlands of smilax, but on this occasion the lady for whom it was done asked me to omit that part of the decoration. She claimed that it would detract from the general effect and, as I went to the other side of the church and looked at the window, I recognized the wisdom of her request.

Don't Overdo It.

The point I wish to emphasize is that many a creditable decoration is spoiled because the decorator does not stop soon enough. Another window of the same kind was done with yellow pansies, with standard genistas in the center.

Where a decorator is in the habit of doing certain work year after year, it will be continually on his mind. He may run across something as early as Christmas that will suggest his Easter work to him and, if there is merit in the plan, he will have it improved upon and by the time Easter arrives it is only a matter of executing his plan.

But some new orders may come in when it is late and he is busy. Above all things, he should spare the time to go and study the surroundings he will be obliged to work in. This may be his first order; he is going to make a new customer by the big decoration, and he should not overlook the prospects that will be among those who admire the work. Whatever the decoration may be, above all things let it be neat. I do not mean by this that it should be in any way cramped or uniform; let it be loose and airy, but let it always conform to a well defined plan. Tate.

COMBINING VARIOUS FLOWERS.

Too often the mistake is made in designs and decorations of using one flower so much to the exclusion of others that the effect is overdone and the pleasing quality is lost. To combine variety of effect with the predominance of one or two kinds of blooms, is far more pleasing to the customer and, in reality, of greater advantage to the florist. Of course, there will always be those who demand a casket cover of orchids and nothing else, just as there are those who wear an excessive amount of jewelry, whose object is to produce a quite different effect than that desired by the florist, the artistic. For customers who make such demands the florist will always do his best. He has to cope with far more difficult eccentricities than these. But when left to his own devices he will find greater range, in funeral work particularly, in combining various kinds of flowers in one piece.

In the illustration on page 68 is shown a standing wreath in which lilies and roses are conspicuous enough to predominate, but not employed so exclusively that their use seems overdone. The other flowers used to fill in are of various sorts, so that none of them seems at all conspicuous. The result is one of pleasing variety, with the lilies and roses sufficiently dominating the effect. The standing wreath illustrated was from the store of W. J. Smyth, who caters to the best south side trade in Chicago. Located at 3101 to 3109 Michigan avenue, he is on the boulevard where were once Chicago's most fashionable homes, many of which are still occupied by the city's leading families, and the calls upon him are for orders which will bear the strongest test of scrutiny and comparison by those who are most particular. In the funeral work from his store the charm of variety to be noted in this standing wreath is general.

The Real Truth

about who originated the phrase "Say It with Flowers"

This morning I woke of a sudden just at daylight.
And what do you think woke me?
A robin.

A cheer-chirking, song-filled lad, who sat on the top of an evergreen and told his drowsy lassie what a beauteous thing was spring and flowers.

In billing it to her, he likewise told it to me. With its telling came thoughts of chubby fists, tightly holding meadow flowers picked for teacher.

Not that in those days of childish long ago, that I so much appreciated flowers, but that I knew my teacher knew they said for me, what I couldn't say for myself.

When you and I talked together at Valentine's day, it was agreed that the dear old monk, Valentina Valentia, originated 'Say it With Flowers;" although we did, however, give full credit to Penn and Major O'Keefe, for recognizing its surpassing fitness for the S. A. F. slogan.

But in all truth, now after all is said and done, you and I, years and years ago, were the real discoverers of the happy power of flowers, to say exactly what we wanted to say, exactly the way it should best be said.

And now comes Easter, so who can blame us for telling others to let flowers tell the things they want told?

for payment came, but more than one member of the retail trade has gained, rather than lost, financially, as a result of the simple business analysis required by the tax regulations.

In this trade, perhaps more than in some others, it has been easy for the small retailer to go along from day to day ordering his stock on a guesswork basis and relying on a kind of mental bookkeeping to keep his accounts straight. He could sense the general demand, but he did not know exactly which flowers and which plants were most profitable. He kept reasonably out of debt and was well thought of by those who had business dealings with him, but he did not really know where he was at, nor did he stop to realize that he did not know. If he grew all or part of the stock he sold, his work in the greenhouse made such demands on him that a regular system of bookkeeping would have seemed a waste of precious energy. Bookkeeping suggests the entering of the same figures in several books in several ways; he naturally avoided anything so complex and, so far as he could see, so useless.

Every Little Bit Counts.

It may be said that such a retailer was wise in avoiding elaborate business methods and devoting as much time as possible to the actual selling. A good trade experience would tend to make his judgment sound and his estimates nearly correct. But the trouble would come in the cumulative effect of all the year's little inaccuracies. The total result of a large number of orders for stock which, when it came, was not all moved at regular prices and had to be sold at a reduction or thrown away would be a quite appreciable loss. So, too, the other little misjudgments would mount up and, by the end of a year, would have a decided effect on the net profits. The trouble would be, not that any one thing was wrong, but rather just a little bit here and there. And he would not think of improving his methods, because he would not think there was any need of improvement.

Getting the Evidence.

The federal income tax hit him. He could not make proper returns, because he did not have the records on which to base them. This may have been true even if he was doing a quite good-sized business; the stock and the money passed through his hands in large amounts, but were not sufficiently recorded.

But the government sent an investigator. If there were no written records to guide him, he took an inventory, watched the operation of the business, cross-examined the retailer as to its details and finally estimated the income and profits. Probably the estimate seemed unfair, but the recordless retailer had no way to disprove it. So he resolved that next year he would have his defense ready in the actual total figures.

To do this does not require a complicated, or apparently complicated, system of double-entry bookkeeping. As a matter of fact, no system of bookkeeping is really complicated; its essence and purpose is rather simplicity. The trouble is that most people look at it wrong-end-to. It is true that the figures for the year start out with a host of individual items from the inventory and build up toward grand totals. But the analysis of a system works the other way around. It recognizes first what totals are wanted and why; then it works downward through the details to pick out and classify the items needed for the purpose in view.

A Bit of Bookkeeping.

In order to get the figures required for the income tax returns, one needs simply to make careful inventories at the beginning and the end of the year and to keep accurate records of sales, expenses and purchases. The first inventory plus purchases during the year shows the amount of stock which the store had for sale during that period, in cost figures. This total minus the inventory at the end of the year gives the cost price of the stock which was sold. Then the net profit, on which the tax is figured, is calculated by adding the expense total to the cost of stock sold and subtracting that sum from the gross sales.

This may be somewhat simplified by

MR. JOHN T. MUIR,
4647 Grand Blvd., City.

Dear Mr. Muir:

It might be of interest to you to know how much the officers of this bank appreciated the admirable taste which you displayed in the arrangement of the design and the beautiful flowers used in the floral piece furnished by you at the time of Mr. Lambert's funeral.

It was an occasion on which we felt that the best was none too good and we were very much gratified at your efforts in that direction. It was also spoken of by Mrs. Lambert afterwards as being the most wonderful assemblage of flowers that she had ever seen.

Feeling confident that you would be pleased to know of these favorable comments, I have taken the liberty of writing you this letter.

Very sincerely,

H. R. KENT, V. P.

expression in brief formulas, using the following symbols:

IB—inventory at beginning of year.
IE—inventory at end of year.
SP—stock purchased during year.
SO—stock offered for sale during year, in cost figures.
SS—stock sold during year, in cost figures.
GS—gross sales for the year.
E—expenses for the year.
NP—net profit for the year.

Then the method of calculation already described may be expressed in three simple equations, as follows:

IB+SP=SO SO—IE=SS.
GS—(SS+E)=NP.

Or these may be simplified into one:

GS+IE—IB—SP—E=NP.

Consequently, when at the end of the year the retailer has before him the five essential facts, namely, the totals of the two inventories, the amount of stock purchased, the expenses for the year and the gross sales, the net profits can be found at once by substracting the sum of the totals for the first inventory, the stock purchased and the expenses from the sum of the totals for the gross sales and the second inventory.

In applying this method to his own business, the individual retailer may want to subdivide the fiscal period and not wait till the end of the year to know where he stands. He may, also, prefer to use a system of stock-keeping records and do away with some of the inventories.

One point that will be of assistance in keeping the necessary records will be the exclusive use of a check book. If all the money that is received is deposited in the bank, instead of being used directly to pay expenses, and if every payment is made by check, with a record on the stub of the important facts about each payment, the keeping of the necessary records of income and expenses will be made much easier.

Where It Leads.

While the simple method of calculation which has been outlined will be enough to satisfy the income tax collector, the retailer is not likely to stop there. His natural curiosity about his own business will be aroused. He will analyze the records for particular seasons and particular lines of trade, even for particular flowers and plants. He will compare his cash business and his charge business, his local trade and his telegraph trade. He will find out what kinds of advertising are most profitable; he may wonder whether he is contributing his share to the national publicity campaign, which is strengthening both his local and his telegraph trade. He may discover in the course of this examination that the character of his district has been changing and that he must either appeal to a different class of customers or move to a different location. He may have been carrying two side lines, such as goldfish and pottery, and may find that one is running at a loss and should be discontinued, while the other is profitable and should be developed.

What started as a mere attempt to supply the government with certain figures thus has led to the overhauling of the whole business. Not only this; it has given the retailer a new attitude toward his business, a new keenness in improving it, a new sense of the bigness of the small detail. H.

The Market.

The wholesale market had more stock on sale daily last week than the demand called for. March 16 the demand for white carnations was excellent, the bulk of them for dyeing green for St. Patrick's day sales; except for these, the day did not cut much figure in the way of an extra demand for cut stock.

The prospects for cut stock for Easter depend much on the weather, but, according to the present production, it looks as though there would be plenty of everything. Growers of Easter plants are well sold up in advance, indicating that the Easter demand for plants will be heavy.

Last week stock did not clean up so well as the commission men expected; still a good deal of stock was shipped to outside points.

Roses were in excellent condition and of extra quality, especially Premier, Rus-

Wednesday night, March 24, a battle royal was staged when the Roses met the Carnations in a contest for first place.

Various Notes.

The officers of the St. Louis Florists' Club will hold their monthly meeting at the home of W. A. Rowe, in Kirkwood, to arrange an interesting program for the club meeting, which will take place in the new music auditorium of Vandervoort's department store April 8.

W. H. Kruse, on Arsenal street, has a fine house of Tausendschoen roses for Easter at his Kirkwood range and is cutting a good crop of carnations, all for his own use.

Edward Nibeling, of the Bergstermann Floral Co., attended the bowling congress in Peoria, Ill., as a member of the Rigoletto team and rolled well.

C. G. Hensley, of Benton, Ill., spent a day in this city in the wholesale district, buying Easter supplies. He reports a splendid run of business during the Lenten season.

At the meeting of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners April 7, the awarding of six valuable trophies will take place. Secretary Schaff says that all having books should turn them in at once. The association is raising funds to be employed to defray the expenses of entertaining the National Association of Gardeners.

there were more flowers on the streets than there have been all winter. The writer knows of one instance where a street vender bought 3,000 carnations for $90. This shows the confidence this class of merchants have in the business. A street man has bought the entire crop of lilies of one of the prominent growers here for Easter. The consideration in this contract is in the neighborhood of $1,500. This contract was made around March 1; yet some of our oldest retailers will be complaining about their inability to get stock for Easter.

The establishments that handle baskets have not been able to keep their lines at anything near normal. The manager of one place gave the reason that there are going to be more made-up baskets of plants this year than were ever known before and that advance orders for Easter were coming in slowly.

Stock for Easter.

Everyone should be able to estimate approximately at least the number of plants he can use for Easter and it would be that much off his mind to have orders placed. There will be a fair supply of hydrangeas and the wise buyers are already picking out the choicest of these. One wholesaler said that he would have a good stock of valley, but the public has been so long without it that he did not know how it would sell. Bulbous stock will be in fair supply, as will roses and carnations. There is not going to be anything like a glut of any single item of stock.

Various Notes.

The local advertising committee is working hard and now has its plan in working order. Monday, March 15, those who had signed up found either one-half of one per cent deducted or one per cent added to their statements. The committee has added to the list since the last meeting several of the largest growers and retailers. It will only be a matter of a short time until everyone will be in. No man is going to stand by and see others carry on a campaign that is benefiting his business without bearing some of the burden.

Philip B. Welsh has his usual supply of Easter stock. The lilies are in fine shape and he will have a big cut of the Welsh quality of sweet peas and a fairly good quantity of bulbous stock. Mr. Welsh rarely misses it for any of the big flower days.

Another old reliable who always can be depended upon is James Glass. We are all familiar with his hyacinths at Easter; there is something about his stock that is different; the pots are clean, the foliage is always perfect, the blooms are fine and he has a knack of having just the right colors. Mr. Glass will have a fine batch of lilies and hydrangeas, to saying nothing of smaller blooming plants.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

With the improved weather of a week ago, there was a feeling that a flood of stock would be arriving and that it could be expected that lower prices would prevail. This belief brought out special sales, some of which were at prices of about one-fifth of those of the previous week. In fact, roses were offered as low as 75 cents per dozen and carnations at 60 cents per dozen.

The market during the week was well supplied with a variety of stock. Prices held comparatively firm, especially for good stock. Second quality stock could be had at lower figures than those of last week. This was due to a decrease in funeral work.

Easter Supply.

Every year, two or three weeks before Easter, the trade is in a nervous state about the supply and demand for al supply of bulbs, primroses, deutzias and hydrangeas of good quality. The supply of rose plants is shorter than that of last year, and the largest part of it is of poor quality. The main supply of pelargoniums will come from one local specialist. It is worth while noting that they are of exceptional quality.

Various Notes.

Charles H. Netsch has purchased a corner building at 361 Genesee street. It is now being remodeled so that it will make an ideal flower shop about double the size of his present quarters. It will be ready for occupancy about May 1. Mr. Netsch has just recovered from an attact of influenza. During his illness, Mrs. Netsch has had her hands full managing the store, "but now," she says, "we are all well and, though we are heels over head in work, we are all happy to have all we can do."

Oscar Luendorf, who, with Charles Sandiford, purchased the Neubeck greenhouses, at Williamsville, N. Y., some time ago, has bought Mr. Sandiford's interest and will now conduct the establishment himself.

A new store opened last week at 1347 Sycamore street.

Plans are under way to remodel the building in which S. A. Anderson's store is now located. The expenditure will be $75,000 and work will commence about May 1.

Charles L. Dole, of Lockport, N. Y., made an inspection trip to the local greenhouses March 15, looking over Easter stock.

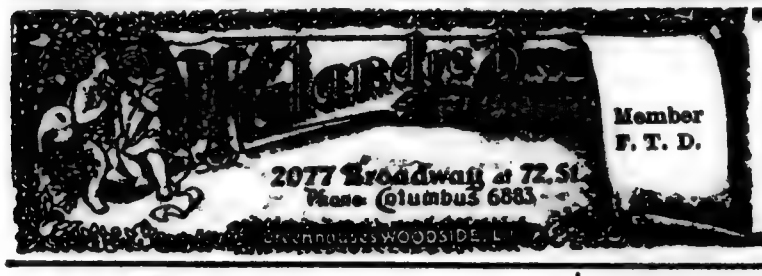
LECTURE ON PERENNIALS.



Before Pennsylvania Society.

A large audience was present at the lecture of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society Tuesday, March 16. The subject of the lecture was "Perennials and Bulbous Plants." It was given by E. I. Wilde, assistant professor of floriculture at the Pennsylvania State College.

The exhibits of plants and flowers at this meeting were the best this season. Philadelphia has always been noted for specimen plants of cinerarias, of both

Wm. Comfort, gardener for A. B. Johnson, Rosemont, Pa., took first prize for cinerarias, and Wm. Fowler, gardener for Mrs. S. F. Wheeler, Bryn Mawr, Pa., took second prize.

A special feature of the exhibition was a plant of schizanthus exhibited by Alex. MacLeod, gardener for S. T. Bodine, Villa Nova, Pa. This plant, to which the first prize was awarded, was covered with flowers of a rich copper-bronze color. It was most attractive, standing out clear among all the other exhibits. Second prize was awarded to Wm. Fowler, on a much larger, well

Club Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, Wednesday, March 10, at 7 p. m. President Thomas Twigg occupied the chair. Joseph Bouhler was elected to active membership and two petitions for membership were received.

Thomas Henderson, William Noonan and Thomas Scott were appointed to judge the monthly exhibits. Owing to the impossibility of transporting exhibits in any other way than by hand, the showing was not so brilliant as usual. John F. Johnstone was awarded first prize for an exceptionally fine pan of tulips. James McCarthy, James McDonald and John Johnstone were appointed a committee to secure judges for all coming shows.

A resolution of sympathy was sent to Ernest J. Brown, treasurer of the society, on the recent sudden death of his wife. A resolution of congratulation was sent to Alexander McKenzie, who was recently married.

William Noonan gave a practical talk on bees and the keeping of bees, which was interesting and, from the number of questions he answered, there seem to be a large number of beekeepers or prospective beekeepers in the society.

The exhibits for the next meeting, to be held April 14, will be heads of lettuce, cauliflower and spikes of antirrhinums mixed.

Arthur S. Cook, Cor. Sec'y.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

The week has shown little change in market conditions. A good reason advanced by several of the retailers for the slack season is the fact that everyone was called upon to pay the income tax recently.

While the express strike in Chicago interfered with shipments to this market, little, if any, inconvenience was felt, as nearly everything in stock is procurable in this market. This fact helped the local commission men and helped to keep supply and demand at a fairly even mark.

Roses are of good quality and in the better grades get good prices. Double daffodils are slow in arriving, but evidently most of the bulb growers are figuring on having a good stock for Easter. Single daffodils are scarce, probably for the same reason.

Snapdragon is exceptionally good and in all colors is a ready seller. Homegrown valley that has been grown on the cool side has blooms of great substance and foliage. It sells well at $6 per hundred. Dutch hyacinths in all the different shades are slightly better than tulips. Sweet peas are down to $10 to

ANAHEIM, CAL.

In the annual prosperity edition of the Anaheim Daily Herald Howard E. Gates, besides contributing a page upon the flowers and plants which embellish Anaheim, appears before the public eyes in the following paragraphs:

There are few residents of northern Orange county who are not acquainted with the fact that Howard E. Gates, florist and landscape gardener, who maintains a spacious nursery and gardens on Illinois and West Center streets, Anaheim, has given over more than a score of years to the art of landscape gardening, as well as the growing of various plants, shrubs and flowers.

Mr. Gates, who aided Uncle Sam in the recent war, also served his country during the Mexican trouble some years ago. He is well versed in army tactics and has been active as a National Guard member.

Together with the growing of plants and flowers, Mr. Gates features ornamental and floral designs, as well as catering to the wants of those interested in the art of landscape gardening.

The appearance of many Orange county homes has been greatly improved through the addition of shrubs and ornamental plants, as well as the general landscape work done by Mr. Gates. So familiar and experienced is Mr. Gates in this work, that he has been asked to write many articles on the subject of plants and shrubs, all of which are held as highly beneficial by the home owners of Anaheim.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Stormy weather, with heavy rains and rough winds, made it even more difficult last week than the week before to get good shipping stock of carnations and the wholesale houses at the end of the week were crowded with stock which was not good enough to stand a day's journey. Complaints of nonarrival and of arrival in poor condition have been frequently received from Arizona and other places having more favorable weather, but it is a condition which cannot be remedied.

Greenhouse roses are fairly plentiful and of good quality. Lilies promise well for Easter, but the price is high and there will not be sufficient cuts to fill the orders. Callas will be fairly abundant and will help out somewhat. In bulbous stock, late daffodils, irises, Narcissus poeticus and tulips are the most effective, but the supply will be short for Easter.

Local retail business has fallen off somewhat, but shipping keeps up well when good stock can be obtained.

Various Notes.

Among the growers of colored freesias, Gilbert Prechtl has been working for several years at hybridizing and seedling raising. He has evolved his Sunset collection of varieties and is showing elegant flowers from his 1-year-old seedling bulbs. The flowers are borne on long, wiry stems and are exceedingly bright and telling in color, showing a wide range. The yellows and reds are particularly good, dull and unsatisfactory colors having been culled out annually. In spite of the increasing competition among the growers of these beautiful flowers, Mr. Prechtl has something quite distinct and especially good as a cut flower.

Walter Garbett, who for three years has been connected with W. Armacost & Co., managing the cut flower department, has taken a position as manager for Frank Lichtenberg. Mr. Garbett is well known as an experienced florist and good business man and his friends will all wish him the best of success in the important position which he now holds.

H. Suzuki, president of the Yokohama Nursery Co., of Japan, was in the city last week, in company with C. W. Scott, of the New York office of this firm. Mr. Scott was notified by wireless to meet Mr. Suzuki, the message coming from the mid-Pacific to New York city. After a tour of this country and Europe, Mr. Suzuki will return to Japan.

Easter Flowers

Plenty of stock is now available

We have an ample supply of Roses, Carnations, Violets, Greens, Woodwardia Ferns, etc., etc.

J. A. AXELL, WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORIST 463 Bush St., San Francisco, Calif.

J. Dieterich has purchased a 10-acre tract in the San Fernando valley and proposes to plant a considerable part of it to Erica melanthera and other stock. The big shipment of aspidistras has all been planted out at the Wintersbury nursery.

Burns the Florist has moved from the basement on Third street to the store above. This change gives him more room, which was much needed, and a far better chance for display. Mr. Burns has been on Third avenue for several years and, in a quiet way, has worked up a good business.

Angelo Tassano is going to build three more greenhouses for maidenhair fern at his Artesia nursery. Mr. Tassano is sending in excellent maidenhair, grown in Pacific humus, and he has placed orders for another large consignment of the humus as soon as the new houses are ready.

F. R. Hills, of the Hills Nursery, is on the sick list. St. Patrick's day almost every second person on the streets was carrying a shamrock grown by Mr. Hills for the Hibernian bank, which annually gives away many thousands to all comers. Mr. Hills has grown these for many years.

The Cedar Nursery Co. had a decidedly attractive lot of Easter lilies, about 4,000, and the sold-out sign was on them early. Mr. Kimura is a skillful and careful grower of plants and the lilies this year were a fine, even lot.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The coast rains during the last few weeks, which are practically the first of the season, have come as a great relief to growers. The outside crops have been greatly helped, while the inside crops have profited by the added moisture.

The prices on roses and other cut flowers dropped a little lower last week, on account of the supply of spring flowers now on the market. The second crop of roses is abundant and in splendid condition. The supply of Ophelia and Columbia is especially good. Russell is not so plentiful as it has been recently.

Due to Lent, the demand for large supplies of flowers has been lacking, but Easter promises to open up the best season yet known in San Francisco.

Daffodils are greatly in demand and are steadily increasing in price. They went from 50 cents per hundred last week to 75 cents, and will no doubt reach $1 per hundred before Easter. The second crop is reported in good shape, but not yet equal to the demand.

Pink, red and white carnations are plentiful. St. Patrick's day brought a great demand for green carnations, as there were several Irish celebrations held through the bay region. Violets are still plentiful and still in demand, especially among the eastern tourists.

There is a lessening of the local supply of orchids, which has caused a considerable advance in the price of these blooms during the last week. The supply of spring flowers is excellent; both wholesale and retail dealers have a good selection of lilies of the valley, marigolds, tulips and anemones. Maidenhair ferns and Asparagus plumosus are entering the market in large quantities.

Potted Dorothy Perkins roses and other potted plants are now arriving to supply the Easter demand. The florists are all busy preparing for the Easter rush and both wholesale and retail dealers are putting in a large supply of flowers. Lilies of the valley, tulips, anemones, daffodils, potted roses and potted ferns appear to be among the more popular flowers this season. The florists are preparing for their window

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

With a steady increase in the supply of spring flowers, more weddings and small social affairs and an automobile show, everything has worked to produce more business for the Seattle florists during the last week, with the result that general satisfaction is expressed over the present conditions. Funeral work has held up in fairly good style, but the passing of the influenza epidemic has curtailed this to a notable degree.

Roses, violets, greens and some spring offerings are still arriving from the south regularly, but the local growers are coming nearer to supplying the trade needs and Spokane and Portland growers fill in a good share of the remainder of the shipments. Local violets were offered last week. Local greenhouses were also offering flowering Japanese plum branches for windows and large table decorations. The local cut of orchids is increasing and the quality has been about the best that local traders can remember. Gardenias are more plentiful and enough lily of the valley is received to fill all needs. Columbia still leads the local cut of roses as to volume, with Ophelia a close second and Ward and Premier about even. The Ward stock has been of exceptional color and proved enough contrast with the pink varieties to sell especially well.

Laddie carnations from Spokane growers continue to top the market as to price, but the other stocks are showing up better, in color, strength of stem and keeping qualities. White carnations were in big demand at the beginning of the week, suffering the usual metamorphosis to fill the call which always comes on St. Patrick's day.

Potted plants continue among the good sellers, with cinerarias heading the list. The bright colors available undoubtedly influence the buyer. Tulips and hyacinths are being used freely and hydrangeas have been common in the fancy baskets sent out of late. Anemones have also been freely used in

The automobile show brought out a number of fine window displays in Seattle, but none better than that shown at the Hollywood Gardens. A border of maidenhair fern and jonquils laid out a road in the big display window and on this was placed a child's automobile blanketed with acacia and jonquils and handled by a life-sized child's clothing figure. The Market.

Although business has been a little slower the last week, it is by no means poor and the demand seems to keep pace with the supply. Prices, in some instances, are perhaps a little lower, but they are holding up exceedingly well.

Roses are plentiful and of excellent quality. They are all sold out every day. Sweet peas are meeting with a ready sale and there are plenty of them. Tulips are beginning to arrive and, in a short time, will be plentiful. Many potted plants are being sold and there are some fine specimens in the local stores. The weather is fine and, if it continues, there will be a large supply of flowers of all kinds in a few days.

Various Notes.

The Ever-Ready Flower Pot Cover

The Ever-Ready Stands Out Strongly in Meeting every Pot Cover Requirement

Of What and How Made. It includes a strong cardboard foundation the outside of which is covered with best quality Waterproof crepe paper with fiber ribbon ties at top and bottom, and all firmly put together with improved metal fastenings.

Low of Cost. It is supplied at low enough prices to allow of gratis disposal, as the improved appearance of the plant justifies advanced pricing that more than offsets its cost.

A Time and Money Saver. Compared with trimming pots specially, with papers, mattings and the like, it freely saves flower store workers' time and avoids the cost of high-priced materials.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A FEW days of warm weather started the rush in the retail stores last week.

A DRIVE for 1920 thrift gardens, the successors to war gardens, has been begun by the Department of Agriculture, which may somewhat increase home planting.

VEGETABLE growers are not such heavy buyers of seed this year as formerly, since most of them have been forced to reduce their plantings because of inability to secure help.

C. W. SCOTT, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., returned to New York March 18, accompanied by H. Suzuki, of the Yokohama headquarters of the concern, whom he had met in Seattle.

BENJAMIN F. BROWN, president of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., fell upon the ice on the sidewalk recently and sustained a fracture of the right hip. He is getting along well and expects to be on his feet soon.

JAPANESE LILY BULBS.

The 1919 Crop Imports.

In view of the high prices at which giganteum and other Japanese lily bulbs sold last fall, and of the present high prices of pot plants and cut lilies, the figures as to the number of lily bulbs exported from Japan to America in 1919, here published for the first time, will be of much interest:

Month of	Bulbs exported
July, 1919	481,040
August, 1919	455,570
September, 1919	4,448,190
October, 1919	3,879,062
November, 1919	708,952
December, 1919	105,875
Total for season	10,078,689

These are the official figures of the bulbs inspected by the Japanese government and certificated for export to America from Yokohama and Kobe. The figures include formosum and rubrum as well as giganteum, but the bulbs, of course, were in great part of the latter variety.

A commercial report gives the export from Japan in 1919 at 11,475,689 bulbs.

A crop of 10,000,000 to 11,000,000 exportable bulbs would represent almost half a pre-war year's crop, but 10,000,000 for America would represent a practically full supply, America never having taken much over half of the crop prior to 1914. That the American supply should have been so great in face of the short crop and the competition of English buyers, who appear, however, to have been unwilling to meet American bids, will be a great surprise to many.

The 1920 Crop.

It is reported that the 1920 crop of cultivated lily bulbs in Japan, meaning principally giganteums, may be expected to approximate 15,000,000 exportable bulbs, principally of the grade 7 to 10. This will compare with pre-war crops of 20,000,000 to 22,000,000 bulbs.

The Japanese feel that they can not afford to grow lilies at less than last year's prices and, indeed, they are asking a little more, in spite of the prospect of a larger supply.

Two Japanese bulb merchants, H. Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., and E. Yamamoto, vice-president of the Satsuma Trading Co., recently have arrived in the United States to study the situation.

Mr. Yamamoto's visit represents a development which had been foreseen by some observers of last year's bulb market in Japan. It was then suggested that the bulbs rose in value so rapidly after they passed out of the producers' hands that it would be likely to cause the growers to want to get into closer touch with the dealer and consumer in America. It has done just that. The Satsuma Trading Co., which Mr. Yamamoto represents, has been organized at the Chamber of Commerce at Kagoshima, its members representing a large part of the annual production of lily bulbs, to deal direct with the jobbers in America, instead of through brokers and exporters in Japan. On his trip, which began at Seattle, Mr. Yamamoto will call on the principal lily bulb dealers all the way to Philadelphia, New York and Boston. He speaks little English and is piloted by S. Osaka, of the Dai-Fuku Trading Co., Seattle.

NAPIER GRASS SEED.

Packets of Napier grass seed and Merker grass seed are being distributed through portions of the extreme south and California by the United States Department of Agriculture for the purpose of widely introducing these closely related plants, whose value, especially as green fodder for dairy cattle, is now well established. Accompanying the allotments of seed are instructions for planting and the making of cuttings in order that the growers can take care of their own and their neighbors' future needs. Napier grass was first introduced by the United States Department of Agriculture in 1913 from Africa and Merker grass somewhat later. Experimental plantings have shown that they will thrive south of a line drawn from Charleston, S. C., to Shreveport, La., also in the southern portions of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico and in portions of California.

Dreer's Famous American Asters

As usual, our Asters are American-grown, were carefully inspected when in bloom, and we feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality. For complete list, see our Wholesale Catalogue for 1920.

Astermums

This strain of Giant Comet Asters was first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and Chrysanthemum-like appearance created quite a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors.

White, Pink and Lavender, each 40 cents per trade packet; $2.00 per ounce.

Crego's Giant Comet Asters

Magnificent fluffy flowers, averaging over 5 inches across, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors of the highest quality.

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0.40	$2.00
Pink. Delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Purple. Bright purple	.40	2.00
Rose. Rich deep rose	.40	2.00
Lavender. A rich deep shade	.40	2.00
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

King Asters

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0.50	$2.50
Lavender King. Pale lavender	.50	2.50
Pink King. An attractive shade of delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose variety	.40	2.00
Violet King. This is the original of this type, and is a pleasing soft shade of violet	.40	2.00
White King. Pure glistening white	.50	2.50
King Mixed. All colors	.40	2.00

Astermum Aster

Dreer's Late Branching Aster

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming. The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. Pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	.30	1.50
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	.30	1.50
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	.30	1.50
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson. Very rich	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All the colors	.25	1.00

Dreer's "Peerless Pink" Aster

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink or Mary Semple. It has the same strong, sturdy habit of growth; comes into bloom a little earlier, bears freely almost globular flowers rarely under 4 inches across and frequently over 5 inches. The color is rich shell-pink, similar in shade but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

New Red Aster, "Sensation"

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit, about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

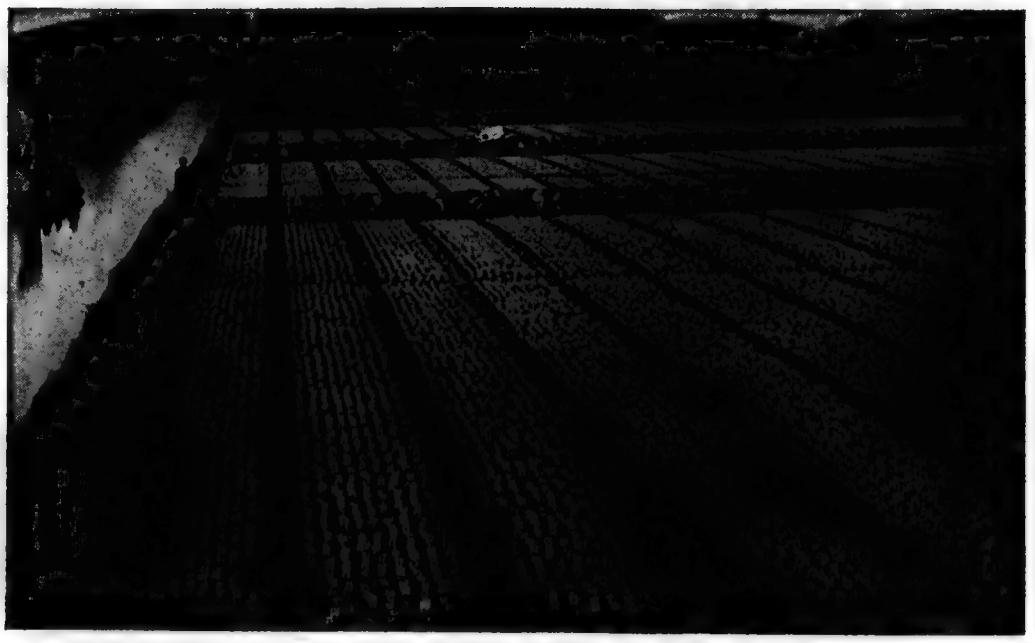
As forage plants both grasses are still regarded as being in the experimental stage, but federal scientists state they are both valuable, though further data as to their value in comparison with Japanese sugar cane, corn and sorghum are needed. Attention is called to the fact that attempts have been made to apply other names to Napier grass, namely, Japanese bamboo grass and Carter grass. The use of these names is not desirable, according to the government's representatives. Some of the advertisements setting forth the value of these grasses are probably too enthusiastic, but that the grasses are valuable new assets is clearly demonstrated.

BREACH OF CONTRACT.

In Sale of Beans.

It has been said by some judge that "the law will not permit juries to guess money from one man's pocket into another's." In other words, where suit is brought to recover damages for breach of a commercial contract, the plaintiff must prove a basis upon which his damages may be assessed with reasonable certainty. It is not sufficient for him to rest on his oars when he shows that the defendant has broken his contract.

The point is illustrated by a decision handed down recently by the New Mexico Supreme court in the case of R. W. Rounsavall & Co. vs. H. Herstein Seed Co., 186 Pacific Reporter, 1078.



The plaintiff sued the defendant for $1,670 as damages for lost profits on a carload of pinto beans contracted to be sold to the defendant. The contract was made through a telegram from the plaintiff to the defendant, offering to sell "at 15 cents f. o. b. Trinidad, Colo.," and the defendant's acceptance, "at 15 cents Trinidad." The plaintiff's place of business was at Lexington, Ky., and the defendant's at Clayton, N. M.

It does not appear to have been disputed at the trial that the defendant refused to accept delivery and that the plaintiff sold the beans to dealers in Kentucky.

Nominal Damages.

At the trial the plaintiff offered no evidence as to the market value of the pinto beans at Trinidad at the date of the breach of the contract, nor as to his inability to sell them there. The trial court awarded nominal damages only, because of this failure of proof, and the plaintiff appealed to the Supreme court, which affirmed the action of the lower court, saying:

"Plaintiff contends, as we understand counsel, that Trinidad, Colo., was not the place of delivery, but simply a point in transit. We agree with the trial court, however, that under the evidence offered by plaintiff, Trinidad, Colo., was the point of delivery. Under the contract, title to the carload of beans would pass from the seller to the buyer at Trinidad, Colo.

"Plaintiff argues that the measure of damages was the difference between the sale price and the amount which the plaintiff was able to get for the beans after notice to the defendant of his intention to sell and after exercise of reasonable diligence in attempting to sell the beans at the best price obtainable. The general rule is well established that the measure of damages in such a case is the difference between the market value of the goods at the time and place of delivery and the contract price.

"The trial court rightly awarded plaintiff only nominal damages."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Peter Henderson & Co., New York, N. Y.—"Henderson's Farmers' Manual," sixteen large pages and cover. Typical and interesting farm scenes are shown in the pictures, both in the text and on the cover, which is printed in black and green. Both staple and rare farm seeds are listed. The index serves the extra purpose of indicating the "quantities to sow per acre."

J. K. Rugowski Seed Co., Inc., Manitowoc, Wis.—Fifth annual catalogue of seeds, bulbs, blooming and vegetable plants, shrubs, small fruits, tools and sundries; illustrated, twenty-four pages, in a distinctive cover which is decorated with colored panels on a gray background. Some of the varieties of stock were originated by Mr. Rugowski.

American Seed & Seedtape Co., Newark, N. J.—An accurately edited, attractive catalogue of vegetable and flower seeds; twenty-eight unusually large pages, in a colored cover. Several of the illustrations in the text are also finely colored. The company's specialty is the "Pakro" seedtape, which is said to "eliminate backache and save money, time and seeds."

Clarke Bros., Portland, Ore.—"Clarke Bros.' Oregon Roses and Other Beautiful Flowers," an illustrated, 64-page catalogue, in an artistic green cover. The title of the book is truly indicative of the prominent position that the roses hold in the company's stock. The roses occupy the first twenty-two pages; then follow gladioli, shrubs, vines, perennials, miscellaneous greenhouse and outdoor plants and flower seeds.

Jos. W. Vestal & Son, Little Rock, Ark.—"Vestal's Spring Guide," an illustrated catalogue, in a tasteful black and white cover. Twenty-six of the total eighty pages are devoted to roses; next in order are large assortments of miscellaneous flowering and foliage plants, vines, perennials, shrubs, fruit-bearing stock, vegetable plants, vegetable and flower seeds.

Rainbow Gardens, St. Paul, Minn.—A 28-page, illustrated catalogue of irises, peonies and gladioli. The proprietors of the gardens state that they specialize in these three genera because they are "the most satisfactory and dependable" garden flowers, since the irises and peonies are a steady source of blooms in spring and early summer and the gladioli are equally reliable in summer and fall.

James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y.—Two illustrated catalogues, general and wholesale, offering full stocks of seeds, bulbs, plants, nursery products, insecticides and miscellaneous supplies. The general catalogue, entitled "Vick's Garden and Floral Guide," consists of 112 pages, in a handsome, colored cover. The wholesale list, though less pretentious-looking both in size and style, is neat and businesslike. The receipt of the special aster list, "Vick's Aster Book for Florists," was announced in The Review of March 18.

George H. Walker, North Dighton, Mass.—Catalogue of the Walker specialty, dahlias; a tasteful 20-page booklet, printed on cream-tinted paper. The bulk of the stock is listed alphabetically under two heads, "Novelties" and "General Collection," without any other division, but the type or class is indicated by the word "cactus," "decorative," etc., immediately following the name of each variety.

L. M. Smith & Co., Laurel, Del.—"Artistic Floral Tributes," a high-grade, effectively arranged 32-page book, intended for distribution among present and prospective retail customers. It is printed on enameled paper and bound in a purple and gold cover. The first part of the book contains views of the Smith home and other attractive scenes, outdoors and indoors, with reading matter that makes a general appeal for patronage. Further on are pictures of funeral sprays and designs. Such special occasions as Christmas, Easter and Mothers' day also receive attention.

W. E. Barrett Co., Providence, R. I.—Seventy-second annual catalogue of "Barrett's Best Seeds," an accurate, illustrated book, in a striking and attractive, colored cover. Besides seeds and bulbs, the book offers an exceptionally comprehensive and interesting list of machines, tools and other equipments, great and small, for farm, garden, greenhouse and home. These implements and supplies occupy more than forty of the total eighty-eight pages.

Palisades Nurseries, Inc., Sparkill, N. Y.—"Palisades Popular Perennials, for Rockery or Herbaceous Border; Old-fashioned Hardy Plants, the Kind Our Grandmothers Grew." Those words, forming the title of this illustrated, 12-page book, give a good idea of the greater part of the contents. The last three pages, however, contain special offers of evergreens, shrubs and roses.

William Rennie Co., Ltd., Toronto, Ont.—"Rennie's Jubilee Seed Annual," eighty pages, besides the colored cover. The cover, which is printed by the offset process, bears a small panel portrait of the founder of the business and pictures of sweet peas, pansies and petunias. As befits the occasion, the company's fiftieth anniversary, the catalogue is a good piece of workmanship; it is well printed and many of the illustrations are colored. Bulbs and plants, as well as seeds, are offered. On a separate sheet is a special, revised list of farm seeds.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE Evansville Nurseries, Evansville, Ind., have acquired another tract of land, making forty acres now devoted to nursery stock.

THE official roster of the Piggott Nurseries, Inc., Piggott, Ark., is as follows: President, A. H. Ballard; vice-president, T. L. Davis; secretary-treasurer, E. H. Ballard.

VIOLATIONS OF QUARANTINE.

"Three violations of the federal quarantine prohibiting the shipment of currants, gooseberries and white pine from states east of and including Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana to the western states were discovered by agents of the United States Department of Agriculture during the fall of 1919," states the weekly news-letter of the department. "It was ascertained upon investigation that the nurseries making the shipments did not willfully violate the quarantine, but were ignorant of the regulations. Violations of the federal quarantines are punishable by a fine not exceeding $500 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

"The purpose of this quarantine is to prevent a destructive disease of the 5-needled pines, commonly called the white-pine blister rust, from reaching the western states and attacking the extremely valuable western white-pine and sugar-pine forests. This disease may be carried from one state to another upon 5-needled pines or upon any species of currant or gooseberry bushes. All nurserymen, therefore, are urged to coöperate with the Department of Agriculture in enforcing this quarantine and thus prevent the disease from reaching the western forests."

GERMINATING JUNIPERUS SEED.

Temperature Important.

Nurserymen find considerable difficulty in getting good yields of vigorous seedlings from seeds of various species of juniperus. Even the usual stratification gives rather poor results. Therefore, a thorough study of the germination and of the seedling development of several species of juniperus seeds was conducted, for the purpose of finding the cause of these difficulties and of getting the best method of handling these seeds.

A great amount of work done in various laboratories shows that many seeds will not germinate readily when first harvested, but that they must go through certain changes preparatory to germination. The necessary changes for germination have been termed after-ripening. Many seeds have embryos that are ready to grow as soon as the seeds are ripe, but surrounding structures (seed coats, etc.) prevent growth. In such cases immediate germination can be secured by the use of various chemicals and other forcing methods. Other seeds have embryos that are dormant and will not grow when entirely naked and furnished germination conditions. In these cases the embryos must go through a series of fundamental chemical and physical changes in the germinator before they are ready to germinate. The after-ripening in these seeds takes considerable time. Juniperus seeds are of this type and the after-ripening takes place fastest in a germinator at 39 or 41 degrees, Fahrenheit.

Low Temperature Best.

Not only does this seed after-ripen at about 41 degrees, but it also germinates most rapidly at this low temperature. Seeds will germinate slowly at 50 degrees, but at temperatures above 60 degrees they are thrown into a state of secondary dormancy and refuse to germinate. There are a few seeds in a hundred or thousand that will germinate at temperatures above 60 degrees. This fact accounts for the one per cent germination reported by some planters. Over seventy-five per cent of the juniperus seeds were made to germinate by observing the procedure outlined in this article, thus increasing the percentage of germination many fold.

Seeds are freed from the fruit by milling, but care should be taken not to crack the coats. Then the seeds are rubbed between two sieves in the presence of an abundance of water. This removes the gums and adhering parts of the fruit, leaving the seeds perfectly clean. After the seeds are dry they should be sterilized in five per cent formalin for two and one-half minutes and thoroughly washed several times with boiled water that has been cooled.

Transfer to Higher Temperature.

The seeds are then put into petri dishes or other covered flat vessels on filter paper supported by wet cotton, which furnishes an abundance of moisture for germination. These vessels of seeds are kept at a constant temperature of about 41 degrees for after-ripening, which takes 100 to 110 days. This after-ripening period can be shortened ten days by drying slightly and moistening again the seeds at about the forty-fifth day. When the coats have split open and the hypocotyls are one-eighth inch long, the seedlings are transferred to pans of leaf-mold and kept at 60 degrees. These pans are prepared in the ordinary way, using leaf-mold and sand. If a glass plate and paper are placed over the pan to protect the seedlings from drying and from direct light, the hypocotyls soon penetrate the soil and erect the cotyledons. When the seedlings are about one and one-half inches high, touching the glass plate, they are put into separate small pots or beds containing relatively more sandy soil and less leaf-mold. One should, however, transfer the seeds when the coats have split open from the germinator at 41 degrees direct to beds at 60 degrees, if they are protected for the first few days.

Though these seeds have been germinated every month in the year, one can take advantage of the temperature conditions by placing them in the germinator about January. If this is done, one has less bother in keeping the germinator at a constant temperature of about 41 degrees. The importance of this after-ripening and germination at this temperature cannot be overemphasized.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

The call for green carnations and shamrocks for St. Patrick's day was brisk. More plants and cut flowers were disposed of than in former years. Other flowers that were colored green included roses, narcissi, sweet peas, Easter lilies and callas.

All of the local greenhouses are well stocked for the Easter trade. Bulbous stock is coming along well and is plentiful. There will be a good supply of Easter lilies this year. Azaleas are scarce, but bougainvilleas will take their place. The opinion is that prices will be higher than those asked last year. Among the other plants noticed are hydrangeas, primroses, cyclamens, rose bushes, daisies, rhododendrons and genistas.

Cut flowers are plentiful. Although funeral work has dropped off to a great extent, counter trade is good and cut flowers are kept moving.

Various Notes.

James E. Beach reports that he is kept busy with funeral work. His Easter lilies are in fine shape and his snapdragons are starting to bloom. The violets are coming along nicely and other cut flowers are plentiful.

The Park Garden & Floral Shop is cutting some fine snapdragons and sweet peas. Counter trade is good.

John Reck & Son have a larger supply of Easter stock than usual, in anticipation of a large Easter trade. They are exceptionally well supplied with azaleas, Easter lilies and heather. They will have a branch store on Main street during Easter week. They sold a number of shamrock plants and green carnations for St. Patrick's day.

The Arcade Flower Shop had a pretty window decoration last week, consisting of hanging baskets and vases and baskets of spring plants. The general run of business is good with this firm. It will have a stand in the arcade for the Easter trade.

Robert Hawkins says that although funeral work has dropped off to some extent, there is still enough to keep them busy.

James Horan has a fine collection of cinerarias this year. He says that everything is in good shape for Easter.

General Pershing visited Bridgeport March 16 and was entertained at the Stratfield hotel. The Manufacturers' Association entertained him at dinner. Robert Hawkins furnished the decorations, which consisted of ferns, jonquils, stocks and palms. He also decorated the ballroom where the reception was held. The decorations here consisted of vases of stocks, roses, carnations and festoons of huckleberry. I. L. B.

ASCHMANN BROS., Second and Bristol Sts. and Rising Sun Ave. Philadelphia

FLINT, MICH.

The people of this city are to have greatly improved facilities for obtaining flowers, which is just another way of saying that the consumption of flowers in this prosperous community will increase rapidly.

The new facilities will take the form of two downtown stores, the first here. The Hasselbring brothers, who operate greenhouses as Hasselbring, Florist, have leased a well located store in the Durand Hotel building and are fitting it up with the expectation of opening a well-appointed store about May 1. Thus far they have retailed only at the greenhouses.

Vogt & Son, of Coldwater, looking about for the best opportunity for broadening their field, have arranged for opening a store in Flint. Not finding a suitable store, they have bought a residence which happened to be well located for their purpose and are remodeling it for flower store purposes. It will be part store, part workroom and part dwelling, an admirable arrangement for one who wants always to be on the job.

Both the new stores are being fitted up, with refrigerators and fixtures, by the store equipment department of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Columbia City, Ind.—The Wagner Floral Co. is cutting some extra fancy Spencer sweet peas and expects a heavy crop in a short time. For the wholesale market, it is growing a large number of geraniums and other bedding stock.

Racine, Wis.—This city now can boast of a flower store second to none in places of this size and excelled by few in the metropolises. March 20 Reil & Benz, who trade as The Flower Shop, opened their new home. They have a large store and artistic surroundings. All the fixtures were built to order by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

Rooted Cuttings, $1.50 per 100, $12.00 per 1000. 2¼-inch pots, $3.50 per 100, $30.00 per 1000.
BECKWITH'S GEM. Center velvety maroon, bordered with red; the edge is green changing to creamy yellow at the point of the leaf.
DUNEIRA. A magnificent Coleus. A fine, showy bedder standing the sun as well as Verschaffeltii. In color it is a combination of various shades of crimson.
FIREBRAND. Bright maroon.
GOLDEN BEDDER. Golden yellow; the old original, true to name.
LORD ALVERSTONE. Velvety plum with yellow, green and pink markings. A handsome combination. Has a constitution that will resist sunscald and drought.
LORD PALMERSTON. A beautiful variety that immediately commands admiration. Deep maroon center with dark crimson venation.
QUEEN VICTORIA. Cardinal red with distinct golden border.
VERSCHAFFELTII. The standard crimson.

ENGLISH IVY.

Invaluable evergreen variety, used for covering graves where other plants will not thrive because of shade. Excellent for covering walls, etc.
3-inch pots, $1.50 doz., $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000; 4-inch pots, $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100; 4-inch selected, $2.50 to $3.00 doz., $20.00 to $25.00 per 100.

Club Meeting.

The Wholesale and Retail Florists' Association of Western Pennsylvania held its meeting March 6 at Punxsutawney, Pa. The association was entertained by George Crissman, of the Crissman Greenhouse Co.

During the day the members visited the range of V. E. Carr, in the east end, and the Crissman Greenhouse Co. At 6 o'clock in the evening, dinner was served in the dining rooms of the Elks' Club house and the meeting was held later at the same place, with President C. E. Gunton presiding.

The members present were: C. E. Gunton and William Graham, of Bradford; H. W. Girton, of Ridgway; Morris Jones and William G. Jones, of Dubois; Fred Goss, of Falls Creek; V. E. Carr and George Crissman, of Punxsutawney. Mr. Shaw, of the Blacker Floral Co., Clearfield, and E. A. Whiteman, of Brookville, were present and were elected to membership.

The next meeting of the association is to be held at Dubois, Pa., with William G. Jones as host, June 26.

George Crissman, Sec'y.

Springfield, O.—The local florists were swamped with both telegraph and local orders for floral pieces by the friends of George D. Schwarz, sales agent for the National Cash Register Co., who died recently.

Dayton, O.—The Florists' Club of Dayton will try to bring the S. A. F. national convention to Dayton in 1921. J. W. Rodgers is the new local president; Charles Bower, vice-president; E. E. Schaeffer, secretary, and Forrest Mitman, treasurer.

This photograph was taken December 28, 1919, and will give a good idea of what HAMBURG LATE PINK looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

HAMBURG LATE PINK CHRYSANTHEMUM

is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals and, if grown for late, will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of Chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. Hamburg Late Pink has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but for late pink is one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers. By selecting late buds, after October 1, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, Hamburg Late Pink cannot be surpassed.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

OIL FOR HEATING HOUSES.

Because of the scarcity of coal, would it be wise and economical to use oil for fuel in a greenhouse? What equipment is needed to heat the house at ordinary temperatures? I understand that oil, after gasoline and kerosene have been extracted, can be bought at a greatly reduced price and, consequently, I should be especially interested to know about the installation and maintenance of such a heating system. Are there any heating plants of this kind in operation? R. W. U.—Mich.

In several eastern states, as well as in the west and southwest, distillate is generally used as fuel for heating greenhouses, with quite satisfactory results. The economy in its use of course depends largely upon the relative cost of coal and oil. When one uses oil there is a large saving in the expense of firing and in the removal of ashes.

The same boilers may be used, the only change being the removal of the grates, and often this is not done.

The special equipment for the burning of oil depends in part upon the size of the heating system. For boilers heating 1,000 square feet of radiation, or less, simple and comparatively inexpensive burners have been invented. The barrel in which the oil was shipped may be used as a reservoir or a tank holding fifty to 100 gallons may be used. Simply connect the reservoir with the burner, which is placed on the grate in the fire pot. With large greenhouse ranges, for which oil is shipped in tank cars, a tank wagon and a storage tank which has the same capacity as the tank cars should be provided.

For such plants it is necessary to use burners in which a jet of either steam or air is furnished. An electric air compressor will supply the air jet.

The burner is placed just above the level of the grate, with the end through which the oil is sprayed just inside the fire door, so that the jet of oil will be well scattered through the fire pot. There are several forms of oil burners, the most common having the oil pipe in the center. This is connected with the oil reservoir and another pipe runs either to a reservoir containing compressed air or to a steam boiler. Both pipes should have valves, so that both the supply of oil and the steam or air pressure can be controlled.

HEATING BY HOT-AIR FLUE.

I have a house 20x50 feet, standing east and west and protected at the west end by the furnace room. The east end and both sides are exposed. The sides consist of three feet of cement wall and three feet of glass, and the exposed end has three feet of cement wall and glass for the remainder. Could this house be heated by the following plan? I want to maintain a temperature at night of 50 to 55 degrees when it is 10 degrees below outside.

In the northwest corner I plan to dig a pit two feet below the grade line, large enough to receive a brick furnace with a fire box 2x3 feet. From this the flue, made of 8-inch vitrified tile, will run to the farther end of the house along the north side with a 12-inch incline, then across the end of the Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

Write today for facts and figures on what the Morehead System will do in your plant.

house on a level and from there to the southwest corner or along the south side, maintaining the 12-inch incline on the south side and entering the chimney at this point.

This would allow a bench on each side and on the east end, with the flue under it and out of the way. A solid bed eight feet wide through the middle would complete the arrangement.

But will it work? J. T.—Ill.

Judging from the size of fire pot suggested, it is evidently proposed to use coal as fuel. Coal gas is injurious to plants and if much of it is allowed to escape from the fire door, as would almost be necessary, it would be fatal to the plants in the house. There would also be great danger that it would escape from cracks in the furnace or flue, which would be almost certain to open. For this reason it would be inadvisable to use a coal-heated flue, especially one with the fire door inside the greenhouse. The furnace would need to be built so that cracks would not be likely to occur in the outer wall and the flue should be enclosed with a gas-tight outer wall for a distance of fifteen or twenty feet, as there would otherwise be trouble from the cracking of the tile.

Serious trouble might also be expected from lack of draft when starting the fire. The draft could be aided by building a small fire pot at the base of the chimney, which could be tightly shut in by means of an iron door. A fire built in this would soon heat the air in the chimney and start a current of air in the flue from the furnace.

However, I do not recommend attempting to heat the house described by using coal and a hot-air flue. If wood can be readily obtained, it would be adequate to arrange the furnace and flue in the manner outlined, except that the furnace should be built six feet long, twenty inches wide and eighteen inches deep, inside measurements, with a grate eighteen inches square at the front end, opening into the ash pit. Even with wood as fuel, it would be well to have the fire door outside the greenhouse and to take the precautions already suggested in order to obtain a draft and to avoid cracks in the furnace and flue.

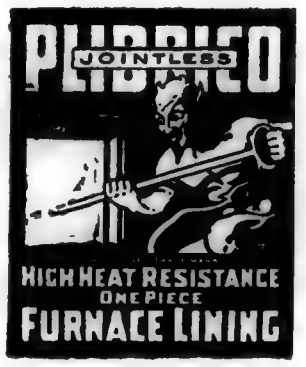
PLIBRICO Keeps the Heat Where It Belongs

PLIBRICO keeps the heat in the furnace, because it forms a jointless one-piece lining in your front door arches, entire fronts, side walls, arches, bridge walls, etc. This lining is gas and air tight, saves fuel while at the same time greatly reduces your furnace upkeep, will last longer, give better satisfaction and can be more easily repaired than a lining constructed of fire brick and fire clay.



PLIBRICO is also unexcelled for baffle construction and repairs.

The Market.

The market continues to clean up fairly well, with the exception of bulbous stock, especially narcissi and daffodils. Roses and carnations are available in large quantities. Some fine Columbia, Premier, Hadley and Ophelia are seen.

Violets move fairly well and both Easter and calla lilies are in good supply. Sweet peas find a ready market, some exceptionally good stock being available. Calendulas, daisies, myosotis, mignonette and wallflowers are picked up readily.

Greens are still scarce. Boxwood is in large supply.

Plant growers report business good and many are oversold for Easter. The bright spring weather prevailing in this locality is helping wonderfully to bring on some stock that was behind schedule time. Everyone is looking for the biggest Easter business ever.

Various Notes.

George Semonnes has added another Dodge delivery truck to his service. He is now able to give the retailers quick and better service.

L. Kitzerow has had a new icebox installed in his store.

The notice of the death of F. W. Ziechmann appears in this week's obituary column. W. F. B.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—Because the snow blocked the railroad in this vicinity and prevented the shipment of coal in time, violets valued at over $50,000 have been destroyed in greenhouses in this town and in Red Hook and violet stock of still greater value has been seriously menaced.

The United Flower & Supply Co. reports a good supply of spring flowers, especially of anemones, tulips and sweet peas.

Quantities of lilies of the valley, marigolds, tulips and roses are being booked by C. Kooyman & Co. for the Easter trade.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has a good supply of Russell roses. However, Mr. McLellan reported a scarcity of the flowers last week. This firm also has an assortment of beautiful spring flowers.

Domoto Bros. have their Easter stock in readiness. An excellent supply of potted Easter lilies and potted ferns are now in. Mr. Domoto reports that they are booking heavy orders for this spring.

B. M. Joseph's Grant avenue store has received a new supply of spring flowers and expects a splendid business for Easter and for spring weddings.

Avansino Bros., who opened their new store March 1, report good success and a large assortment of spring flowers.

The San Lorenzo nurseries are sending in large supplies of daffodils every day, but cannot keep up with the demand.

J. A. Axell is well supplied with Easter stock.

Weddings are not numerous at present, but reports from the florists indicate that they expect to be kept busy all during the remainder of leap year.

The Market.

Spring bulbous stock is arriving on the market in large quantities and the prices are reasonable compared with the recent high figures. Potted spring plants are also arriving in large quantities. The outlook for the Easter trade is excellent. Trailing arbutus has made its appearance for the first time this season. There continue to be large numbers of funeral orders.

Various Notes.

Harry I. Stein, who has been conducting the flower department in Hahne's store, in addition to his flower shop in the Public Service Terminal, has withdrawn from the management of Hahne's flower department and is devoting his whole attention to his terminal store. This has been enlarged, allowing for a much larger stock and display of flowers, plants, etc.

The novel St. Patrick's day window display of A. Begerow's store attracted much attention. Green carnations, shamrocks, long green and yellow candles and American and Irish flags helped to make up the display. R. B. M.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Stock continues in plentiful supply. Sweet peas are abundant in all colors and qualities; good ones, however, are in the majority. Freesias are on the decline; the glut of these is entirely over.

Roses are fairly plentiful, but are not abundant and range from $6 per hundred up. Carnations are in large supply and can be purchased at $6 to $10 per hundred. Bulbous stock is conspicuous. Tulips, jonquils, hyacinths and daffodils are attractive this year. Other offerings include violets, calendulas, etc. Calla lilies are bringing $2.50 to $3 per dozen. Easter lilies are bringing $3 per dozen.

Potted plants are available in an assorted variety. Bulbous stock predominates. Cinerarias, begonias, a few primroses and azaleas are also in this class. Easter lilies are showing in fair supply, and it is predicted that there will be plenty for Easter. E. E. T.

THE ROSE BUG IS DOOMED

THE FLORO-CHEMICAL CO.

Announces the First and Exclusive Offering of

MELROSINE

(TRADE MARK)

The first real and only effective remedy for the destruction of the rose beetle or chafer

Reprinted from The Florists' Exchange, February 7, 1920.

Is the Rose Bug Doomed?

If there exists anywhere around this section a more cantankerous brute—one that you cannot possibly have a sympathetic feeling for, as in the old way, you drop him into the can of oil—than the Rose bug, we don't know of it, him or her. You go over your Roses in the dewy morn or at nearly twilight and gingerly pick or shake him and her off the Roses until you can't see a last one remaining—but he and his wives and family (or their close relatives) are back again on the job next day about as numerous as before, doing their spiteful best to disfigure and destroy your Roses.

Once we thought we had a remedy. Fifty young chickens one day found their way down to big old Crimson Rambler, just when the bugs were coming to the surface. What a glorious time those chicks had that day! The second day they were not so keen on the Rose bug food. And the third day they absolutely refused to go anywhere near. However, that Summer that particular bush (which was isolated from the Rose beds) was little troubled.

This story is just en passant.

Seriously, any eradicator of the Rose bug pest will be hailed with joy by commercial grower, private gardener and amateur, whatever be the form it may take or the labor it may entail.

We follow with a letter from Mr. Wohlert, an old and esteemed subscriber for The Exchange, and wish only to add our hope that the preparation he mentions will be made known to the commercial man before the Rose bug makes its next appearance.

* * * *

Editor The Florists' Exchange:

Rose bugs are surely difficult creatures to get away with and up to the present it has been almost impossible to eliminate them. Therefore, perhaps, you may be pardoned for your comment in your issue of Jan. 24, upon a remedy for Rose bugs in a manner which cannot but leave the impression that such a remedy or this particular remedy, is of but little value in ridding our Roses of this injurious insect. I hold no brief from the originator or introducer of this remedy, but having known the originator for many years and having watched with great interest his endeavors to perfect his remedy, I feel qualified and justified in stating that his remedy not only is an efficient one from my viewpoint, but know that it has been severely tested by many men well known to the trade who would not vouch for its merits as they have done were the remedy not a most excellent one.

It seems to me that your comment was not exactly proper, at this time, inasmuch as we should encourage any helpful endeavors to assist horticulture, and I am sure Mr. Barclay, the originator, should, by all means, receive a vote of thanks from all horticulturists for doing something for us which has heretofore not been done, particularly as he did not allow the remedy to be marketed until it had been tested out by such authorities as Theodore Wirth, J. Horace McFarland, Bureau of Entomology of Pennsylvania and others—this relieving buyers purchasing a pig in a bag.

I have no financial interest in this preparation, but know it to be of commercial value, also I understand a New York seedsman has thought well enough of it to pay a good price for it.

A. E. WOHLERT.

Narbeth, Pa.

The product of a private gardener, Mr. Hugh Balfour Barclay, of Merion, Pa., to whom horticulture owes an everlasting debt for his discovery.

Mr. Barclay conducted exactly 872 experiments before he was satisfied that his product was really effective and good enough to be placed on the market, assuring the public of an article which fulfilled every need demanded of it.

In 1919, samples were sent to the most eminent Rosarians and Horticulturists in America for tests, and all have voiced their approval by word and letter. To the skeptical ones, we will gladly mail copies of written testimonials.

MELROSINE while destroying the Rose bug does not leave a blemish or spot on the flower, nor has it any odor.

MELROSINE when used is diluted with twenty times the amount of water. Full directions for use on each can.

MELROSINE is sold as follows: Sample cans, enough to make a gallon of diluted mixture for thorough trial on a number of plants, 50c; per pint, $1.00; per quart, $1.75; per 2 quarts, $3.25; per gallon, $6.00; per 5 gallons, $25.00; per 10 gallons, $45.00.

A special discount of 10 per cent is allowed to florists and growers and a further discount if put in stock for selling over the counter.

HERE IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY to make an extra dollar when trade is dull.

SEATTLE NOTES.

formed the background and on either end were placed two large tires on stands. In the road and delaying the progress of the automobile were five china ducks.

Flowers were everywhere used at this year's show, the general work having been done by the Woodlawn Flower Shop and the individual exhibits by different houses. One firm featured six dozen roses, giving these away each evening at the close of the show and replenishing the basket the next day. Practically every exhibit had at least one basket or a large potted plant.

But the automobile show was not the only motif for window decorations last week. At the Woodlawn Flower Shop, St. Patrick was given the call, with green and gold used throughout. Green velvet window drapes marked the corners of the window and the background. At one end stood a golden harp about seven feet in height and at the other end was a tall pedestal, to which were chained two dark green parrots. Greens and spring flowers completed the display and cards above the parrots' heads were used to indicate conversation concerning the store and the need for using flowers.

Further expansion of their growing business was indicated last week by Rosaia Bros. in their purchase of the Woodland Park Floral Co., which is better known to the trade by the name of the Orpheum Floral Co. Rosaia Bros. will continue to operate this store and have placed Henry Day, from the main store, in charge. This means a better outlet for the crop from the Thomas Floral Co., which supplies Rosaia Bros. They struck a novelty note last week when they offered Ward roses and small sprays of California dwarf oranges for use in homes and small decorations. Some fine azaleas and cattleyas are arriving for this house and both have been cleaning up fast.

Satisfaction is expressed here by William Goldsbary, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, over having closed a contract with a local undertaking firm for total business of $14,000. This shop showed the first window of flowering Japanese plums for this season, which attracted much comment.

Some of the local florists last week maintained that Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Co., took a chance last week in showing green carnations and jonquils in the same window. This shop is directly across from the city offices and officials of Irish extraction agreed that only the fact that the carnations were on the highest pedestal in the window prevented a disaster. M.

Better Than Putty

—and Why?

Federal Greenhouse Cements are proving so wonderfully efficient because they possess to a superlative degree just those essentials which provide the greatest service to the greenhouse owner.

A greenhouse cement, first of all, must be absolutely watertight and airtight; it must work readily with glass and metal or wood, adhering tenaciously under all weather conditions; it must possess enough elasticity to take up all strains, due to windstorms, etc., as well as the normal contraction and expansion of the glass, wood or metal; it must possess resistance against sudden blows, such as hailstones; it must, above all, possess endurance, that quality which makes it last over a period of years without deterioration.

Federal Greenhouse Cements perform these functions, as well as many others, better than any materials you have ever used; if you once try them you will never be satisfied with any other brand.

We recommend the black as most efficient and, by the way, 90% of the greenhouse owners use our Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 2, which is the black in a consistency suitable for use in the putty bulb.

The reason we recommend the black is because it is possible for us to use it as the primary base to certain pitches and gums, which possess marked elasticity and waterproofing qualities. Combining these gums and pitches, as we do, with suitable oils and reducing agents, and with high-grade asbestos fiber, produces cements which have an inherent strength absolutely defying weather and other conditions.

In making colored and white cements, which are more expensive than the blacks, it is necessary to use as pigments such materials as white lead, zinc, lithopone, barytes and similar materials. These pigments in themselves possess no waterproofing or other value except as metal and wood protectives. Cements made from them depend for their efficiency as greenhouse cements solely on the oils and other materials combined with them. Now, the oils which we use, together with asbestos fiber, which is a part of every one of our cements, enable us to make white and colored cements which are far better than the putties and other materials which you have hitherto used, and a good many of the greenhouse owners use them in preference to the black cement. We, however, urge you to use the black.

For repairing broken lights, no matter how badly they may be broken, we recommend our black paste Federal Elastic Cement. For roofing work and for covering the brick work of boiler settings we also recommend the paste consistency. In fact, the paste consistency is most advisable except where a thinner material is required in order to do work quickly and effectively.

Federal Greenhouse Cements are sold at very reasonable prices. Their great success has brought numerous imitations on the market.

Now is the time to start using Federal Greenhouse Cements. Glass is high and every other essential has risen to a degree making economies and conservation not only desirable but necessary. The use of Federal Greenhouse Cements will prove a step in the right direction and in a short time you will express your approval, as so many hundreds of others have done.

Write us for our free advice on your glazing problems—today.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Several pleasant days last week raised the hopes of the public that spring had at last arrived, but, instead of spring, came more snow. But while the pleasant days lasted the florists took advantage of conditions, and daffodils, tulips, sweet peas and violets and also bunches of pussy willows gave a cheering appearance to the downtown windows. Among the notable displays were those of Macnair, T. J. Johnston & Co., Johnston Bros., W. A. Bowers and Timothy O'Connor.

Prices for the week have been about normal, with an ample supply of all staples and the appearance of a few novelties. Funeral work is active and the trade is making final preparations for the Easter rush.

Various Notes.

Timothy O'Connor has returned from a short stay in Florida.

John Lindblom has leased the greenhouses of Johnston Bros., on Hope street, and has taken possession.

J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, Inc. of Philadelphia, was in the city last week.

William Doel, of Pascoag, R. I., was in the city Friday, March 19, looking for Easter supplies.

Eugene McCarron is contemplating numerous changes in his houses this spring.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., made a trip through New England last week looking for Easter stock.

Benjamin Resnick has resigned his position with Johnston Bros. to take one in the cut flower department of S. S. Kresge's 5 and 10-cent store.

A. Johnson, Page F. Potter, of Johnston Bros., and Edward C. Scott, manager of the Westminster Greenhouses, Inc., were in New York at the flower show.

With the lifting of the freight and express embargo here last week, the Eastern Wreath Co. began the shipment of many delayed orders of large amount.

William Sword, of Valley Falls, R. I., who has been on the sick list, is now convalescing.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., was in Boston attending the automobile show last week.

Frank J. O'Brien has been appointed superintendent of gypsy moth extermination at Uxbridge, Mass. W. H. M.

The Market.

Business continues good, with prices holding up well. Carnations are abundant, but are moving well at $6 to $8 per hundred. Roses are in better supply than they were last week, but the supply is still short of the demand and February prices still prevail. Sweet peas clean up nicely at $2 per hundred. Daffodils of fine quality are selling from $5 to $8 per hundred.

Easter Outlook.

Easter stock of all kinds is looking fine and a larger supply than ever before will be available. While the supply of Easter lilies is large, it is feared that those who order late will be disappointed. Lilies will sell for the same price as last year and the demand will be enormous. Cut flowers, such as roses, carnations, snapdragons, callas, daffodils and tulips, will be in fair supply, with prices a little higher than at present.

Various Notes.

Mr. Wilson, of the Salt Lake Floral Co., is looking for the best Easter in the history of his business. He has on hand some extra fine formosum lilies, the only ones in the state.

The Miller Floral Co., at Farmington, Utah, has 8,000 Easter lilies in excellent condition, which will just be right for Easter.

William Sorensen, of the Inter-Mountain Floral Co., has some fine hydrangeas for Easter trade.

A. Mour, manager of the City Floral Co., at Idaho Falls, Ida., visited the growers last week and placed his order for Easter.

L. B. Westholder, owner of the two largest stores in Wyoming, was a Salt Lake visitor Saturday, March 20.

This year you can give your lawn better care at less cost

All those who have large lawns to care for know only too well how difficult such care has been during the past two years. Many fine lawns have been badly neglected because it has been next to impossible to get the necessary help.

This year you can give your lawn the attention it requires and have the work done better and at less cost than was ever possible with hand mowers. The Ideal Power Lawn Mower will solve your grass cutting problems just the same as it has for hundreds of others.

Advantages of the Ideal

The Ideal is a power mower and roller in one and the sod is rolled every time the grass is cut. This keeps it smooth, firm and free from bumps. The Ideal is scientifically designed to keep lawns in fine condition. The weight is just right for steady year around work.

The Mower has a thirty-inch cut and one man can easily mow four or five acres of grass per day at an operating expense of about fifty cents for fuel and oil.

Cuts Close to Walks, Trees and Shrubbery

Machine turns easily and will cut close up to walks, trees, flower beds and shrubbery.

When running over walks, driveways, pavements, etc., the operator simply lifts the cutting mower from the ground by means of a conveniently placed lever. This feature is also important in the early spring when it is desired to use the machine for rolling only. Simply lift up the cutting mower, add more weight if required and you have the most convenient power roller imaginable.

The success of the Ideal is due to its sturdy and powerful, yet simple, construction. No clutches or complicated parts to wear and get out of order. The Motor is built in our own shop and designed especially for the work.

Owners of large estates, public parks, golf clubs, country clubs, cemeteries, etc., are all using the Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower with great success.

Special Cutting Mower for Putting Greens

For work on golf courses we furnish, at slight additional cost, a special set of cutting blades for use on the putting greens. In less than five minutes the regular 30" blade can be substituted for cutting the fairway.

When desired, we also furnish, as an extra, a riding trailer which fastens to the frame and permits the operator to ride and at the same time have the same easy control as when walking.

You can secure the Ideal through your dealer direct or from our factory. Write today for catalogue and further details.

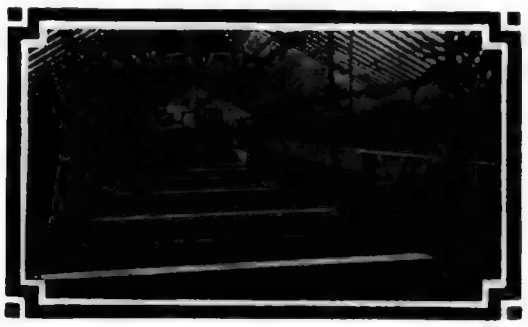
TRI-CITY FLORISTS MEET.

St. Patrick's day always brings a host of parties, but the good old saint never sponsored anything more enjoyable than the dinner dance given the Tri-City Florists' Club at the Davenport Outing Club house Thursday, March 11. The saint this time was none other than Victor De Lascaille, of Davenport, Ia., a recent member of the club, but already a real comrade and co-worker.

Members and ladies, numbering about seventy-five, after a brief business meeting, partook of a bounteous dinner, made even more enjoyable by its beautiful environments. The numerous tables were adorned so artistically with flowers, ferns and accessories in keeping with the season, that even the keen eyes of the florists themselves marveled at the effect. Especially unique were place markers of wee pots of growing shamrock.

Judge N. A. Larson, of Moline, Ill., was the chief speaker of the evening, but when the strains of the orchestra became irresistible all formality was put aside, all forgot care and age and either danced or watched others do so. Here daffodils, hyacinths and Laddie carnations, a courtesy to the host, lent their grace and fragrance.

An impromptu program of æsthetic dancing and vocal numbers added to the entertainment.



After a seemingly short evening, but really at a late hour, the guests took leave, declaring Mr. De Lascaille a most royal and hospitable host.

The April meeting will be held with Henry Gaethje, of Rock Island, Ill.

Officers for the ensuing year were unanimously elected as follows: President, Charles Reardon; vice-presidents, John Staack, of Moline, Ill.; Joseph Tuckis, of Rock Island, Ill., and Victor De Lascaille, of Davenport, Ia.; secretary, William Knees, Jr.; financial secretary, L. Stapp; treasurer, William Knees, Sr.; trustees, C. Sorensen, R. E. De Ryke and Miss Tearney.

William Knees, Jr., Sec'y.

Charleston, W. Va.—The Capital City Floral Co., William Grey, manager, has taken over the business heretofore known as Alexander's, with greenhouses on Glenwood Heights. For the last two years Mr. Grey has been with the Charleston Cut Flower & Plant Co.

HERE'S A GOOD ONE

Everyone who grows single Pompons knows Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. It has been the best late pink variety. Now comes a sport of Godfrey, its name is:

ANNABEL

It is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched. Have cut stems with seventeen flowers and buds running up to 3½ in. across. Unusually good keeper in bench or when cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. It is better than parent or any other Pompon and will bring more money. It is later than any variety we know of. 2¼-in. plants for delivery April and later. Orders filled in rotation. Order early. Sold under agreement that you dispose of no stock to any person until 1922. Prices, $3.00 per doz., $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100, delivery May and later. Strong plants and careful packing guaranteed.

We offer a selected quality. All produced from young bulbs that were never allowed to flower. We guarantee our stock to be up to size, free from disease, and will refund any money advanced if dissatisfied upon return of bulbs. It is important to know from whom you buy. We own our own stock which was especially grown for us. Our growers and ourselves stand back of you.

FLOWER GROWING IN AFRICA.

Flower shows similar to those given at the Grand Central Palace, New York, may become popular in Africa before long, according to a statement of the Interchurch World Movement. American horticulturists have introduced a number of American plants into the country and are finding that gladioli, oxalis, geraniums, phloxes and other flowers give a larger yield and bloom for a longer period there than in the United States. The rich fertility of the soil and the warmth of the climate enable many of them to grow wild once they are transplanted. Natives of the country have never taken an interest in cultivating flowers, but since the introduction of the flower show they are eager to act as gardeners on the flower farms which are being established by Americans and Europeans.

It has always been the custom for the country folk to come into the towns and cities laden with wild flowers, which they auction off to the highest bidder. In Cape Town, flower day occurs several times a week, and it is always possible to secure large bunches of flowers for a small sum. Many of the baskets contain flowers similar to those which are cultivated in America. The ravines in South Africa are full of calla lilies, and geraniums grow luxuriantly. Although the flowers brought to market are plentiful, they wilt quickly and soon wither away.

It is reported that the flower show with its varied exhibits is serving as an impetus for natives to care more for the flowers and use greater effort to preserve them. They have always considered that as more could be gathered so easily, it was not worth while to give special care to those brought to town. The western methods of tending plants are bringing such beautiful results, however, that natives are eagerly learning all that they can about horticulture.

LILIES AND HYDRANGEAS.

What is the best food for Easter lilies and hydrangeas and how often should it be given? A. F. C.—O.

You can feed Easter lilies and hydrangeas every four or five days, provided the pots are well filled with active roots. Liquid cow or sheep manure is excellent. Such highly concentrated fertilizers as Clay's are splendid and safe to use. Discontinue feeding when the flowers start to open. If continued after hydrangeas show color, it will make them soft and the color will fade out badly. Avoid heavy feeding. Better give moderate doses each fourth or fifth day rather than a more powerful one at wide intervals.

SOLUTION TOO STRONG.

I am sending a few chrysanthemum cuttings, unrooted. Can you tell me the cause of the edges of the leaves turning white and what the outcome may be? W. A. M.—Pa.

The trouble is caused either by spraying with too strong a solution of nicotine extract or by heavy fumigating with the same material. There is no great damage done, because, as the roots grow, they will gradually grow away from the leaves now affected, but in the future reduce the strength of your spraying solution or do not fumigate so heavily, especially while the growths are young and soft. SERMONS IN FLOWERS.

Florist Brings Them Out.

Combining the artist spirit in vocation and avocation, W. J. Olds, of Union City, Pa., gives it expression by his flowers and by his pen. He follows in the footsteps of celebrated poets when he takes flowers for the subject of his verse, and his "Sermonettes from the Flowers," contributed to a local paper, are perhaps more logically derived than the classical "sermons in stones." Mr. Olds put his position in these words:

"Has it not occurred to you that the first requisite of the successful artist in flowers is that he should have the soul of a poet, that he must have the gift to idealize and the power to give expression to his ideals with whatever tools he works? If the idealist be given a pencil to work with, he becomes a poet; if a brush, he becomes an artist. But if his tools be flowers, he becomes a Designer (with a big D), and his every arrangement is, or should be, a poem in flowers.

"We take as much delight in working out our ideals in flowers as in trying to give them expression with a pencil. But we find that the mute appeal of the flowers may ofttimes be enhanced and given voice by the coöperative aid of the pencil.

"That the public may be awakened to a livelier appreciation of flowers and their mission to the world, I am endeavoring to give them an interpretive pencil.

"I am furnishing a series of sermonettes to our local paper, the idea being to awaken a higher appreciation of flowers in a community where the popular estimate of them is not merely a luxury, but that they are rather a useless extravagance."

A Sermonette.

Chapter 5 in the series of Mr. Olds' sermonettes, consisting of a prose message and a poetic reinforcement, is "The Joy Message of the Sweet Peas." It reads as follows:

How pleasant must have been God's thoughts toward us when He created the sweet peas, when He gave to them such a wide range and loveliness of color, such grace of form and such surpassing fragrance! How joyously the angels must have fluttered their wings when they beheld these lovely angel-winged blossoms upspringing from the earth! How eagerly they must have watched and waited to see whether our ears should catch the music and the message which the sweet peas were bringing to us!

Poised like the skylark, with wings all aquiver,
Filling the air with the lilt of his song,
Sweet fairy faces, like angels, forever
Winging and swinging the zephyrs among;

Thus the sweet peas, all their dainty wings waving,
Give to each zephyr the wealth of their hoard,
Pouring unstinted, not grudging nor saving,
Lading each breeze with their fragrance outpoured.

Bonny sweet pea! With thy fragrance and beauty,
Filling our souls with thy joy and delight,
May we not glean from thee visions of duty?
Shall not we, too, lift our hearts to the light?

Shall not we, too, from the bounty which heaven
Hath to our spirits so freely bestowed,
Freely pour out what our Father hath given,
Spreading His grace and His goodness abroad?
Joyously, W. J. Olds, 1920.

How Mr. Olds used such poems as these as an aid in the florists' business was told in The Review for March 11. The daffodil poem quoted there is also used in chapter 2 of his sermonettes. Others have for topic lilies, tulips, hyacinths and primroses.

The Harveys Build Hitchings Houses

One crisp September morning, some five or so years ago, I was met at Brandywine Summit, Pa., by one of "The Harvey Boys" and taken to the Old Harvey place for as delightful a day's outing as I ever hope to have.

Meeting the elder Mr. Harvey, was not the least of the day's pleasure.

Recall how we stood in front of the old house and looking across the field, Mr. Harvey said: "Here was where the old Revolutionary battle of the Brandywine was fought.

At that spot right over there was where the fiercest fighting was done.

Some summer evenings, when the day's work is over, I come out here and look across this field and kind of let my imagination have its own way in seeing that battle all over again. And then I think of Washington, who against such tremendous odds broke the chains of the country's enslavement; giving to us all a liberty, like which the world had never known. Somehow, thinking of Washington like that, always renews my vows of sincerity towards life.

It makes me renew my determination that in doing whatever we do, we will build strong.

Build our greenhouses and our characters equally strong."

Having read these inspiring words of Mr. Harvey, you know why that day stands out so particularly strong in my mind.

You can also understand why I was more than usually pleased when one of our salesmen phoned that "The Harveys" had just ordered two Hitchings Houses.

Two Half Iron Frame Houses, one 243'x33' 6"; the other 252'x33' 6".

We know you, who know the Harveys, can but congratulate us on numbering them among our customers.

Just ask yourself—

When you build a house:

Do you have to dig the post holes?
Do you have to mix and wheel the concrete to fill these holes?
Do you have to build the benches and install the heating?
Are there a hundred and one things you thought the builder was going to do, only to find out later that it is in your part of the contract to supply these things?

Who takes the responsibility for the foundation work which you put in?
Who bears the loss if the market advances on labor and material between the time you let the contract and the time of its completion?

Do you have to pay for all the little extras the builder left out and you didn't figure on?
Who's to blame if things arn't just right when the job is finished?

But—

If you contract for an AGMCO complete house, you can use your brain cells and vital forces to take care of the business that makes your cash register jingle and your bank account swell. For—

The AGMCO takes care of everything from the time you put your name on the dotted line to the time you commence to bench your stock in the new houses.

Isn't that worth your consideration? Your most serious thought?
